Birchall's Antecedents.

A correspondent writes to The Pall Mall Gazette:—It was in 1885 or 1886 that Birchall matriculated at Lincoln College, Oxford. His father was a dignitary of the Church, but Birchall was fond of giving out that he was a very important personage, connected with the Great Western Railway, and very wealthy. Birchall's tastes were neither elevated nor particularly refined, and his companions belonged to a set that the more reputable of the undergraduates fought shy of. Birchall could be a very agreeable companion when he chose, and came to be looked upon as the leader of the set in which he moved.
He played football occasionally. There is no doubt his popularity depended to a great extent on the lavish way in which he threw money about, and this habit of his covered a multitude of sins that would not perhaps have been otherwise condoned, even by his chosen satellites. He rapidly developed a character for eccentricity, and endeavored to maintain this reputation by oddities of conversation and the perpetration of innumerable practical jokes. For the use of a club he established in Oxford his fertile brain devised a weird and wonderful "blazer" with broad perpendicular stripes of most inharmonious shades of olive and pink. It was a favorite pastime of Birchall's to walk down the Corn Market and through St.
Giles' on a crowded Saturday night, tapping his stick loudly on the pavement in front of him, after the manner of a blind man. His eyes would be half closed, and however great the crowd he would always go straight on, and generally succeeded in clearing a path for himself. He was morbidly anxious for notoriety, and to obtain this he not only got into hot water with his fellow-students but did not hesitate in embroiling himself with the authorities. He was frequently in trouble, and more than once threatened with the expulsion that finally overtook him. He was always clever with his pencil, and developed a great liking for the stage, though he was not much of an actor himself. At the close of his last summer term he got together a scratch company of his companions, and going down to a well-known seaside town in Wales, gave a two nights' performance, aided by some ladies staying there at the time. Also during the long vacation he became interested in a theatre in a small northern provincial town, and might often be seen in the front row of the stalls during the performance with a bottle of champagne in one hand and a glass in the other, offering refreshments to any of the audience who might have struck his fancy while standing at the wings. Before he left Oxford he became involved in a painful matter, to which in would be invidious to refer here, and soon afterwards married.

The Crops in the States.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The October estimates of the yield per acre for the entire breadth of cereal crops as consul-dated by the Department of Agriculture are.—Winter wheat, 10.8 bushels per acre; spring wheat, 11.05; the wheat crop in general, 11.1; oats, 19.8; barley, 21; rye, 11.8 bushels. The condition of corn is 70.6 instead of 70.1 last month; buckwheat, 90.7 instead of 90.5; potatoes, 61.7 instead of 65.7; tobacco, 85.4 instead of 82.4. The returns report a material decline in cotton prospects and a fall in general percentage from 85.5 to 80.00. The cause is too much rain. The value of the crop will be somewhat reduced by discoloration. In the more southern districts there is some complaint of the bolt worm.

A Pennsylvania couple have been married in a balloon. Married life would appear to have enough of its ups and downs without starting in that way.

A Williamstown, Mich., man, whose well ran dry, found that the roots of a willow had grown a distance of 24 feet, coiled up on the bottom in a solid mass, and were carrying all the water into the foliage.

The Irish Secretary, Mr. Balfour, says that the reports of a general famine in Ireland are absurd. There is some distress, but the proper authorities will be able to give all the relief required without calling for outside contributions.
On the other hand the Irish agitators assert that famine with all its dire consequences stares the Irish people in the face, and that unless aid comes the poor will die of starvation.
