Cholera.

The outbreak of cholera in Russia, Germany and France, and its appearance in England a few days ago has not only created great alarm in those countries but has given rise to fears that it may cross the Atlantic, and ships that arrive from foreign parts, especially from Hamburg, where the greatest number of deaths have occurred, are very properly being subjected to a most rigorous quarantine. There is but little likelihood, of course, that the disease will reach small towns and villages remote from the seaboard, especially as winter is coming on; but should it be brought to this continent a good many would not doubt fall victims to it in the crowded quarters of the large cities, where the conditions under which it thrives are always to be found. The London correspondent of the Toronto Globe says that although cholera has often been brought into British parts during the past quarter of a century it has never effected a lodgment; but it is feared that this time (why, we are not told,) it will obtain some sort of foothold, and already deaths have been reported from several towns in England, Scotland and Wales. No doubt is entertained that the outbreak has been caused by the Russo-Jewish exodus, the unfortunate wretches being compelled by their abject poverty to herd together in squalid wretchedness wherever they go; and the most bitter anger against Russia for driving them forth is expressed by all the nations in which the unhappy Jews have taken refuge.

A Good Percentage.

Minnie Ingram, Millie McCallum and George Pearce, students of the Fenelon Falls public school, succeeded in passing the recent public school leaving examination. These, with the five successful primary and ten successful entrance students, whose names have already been published in these columns, give Fenelon Falls an average of 80 per cent. entrance and 60 per cent. primary candidates passed out of those who attempted the examinations. All the successful primary students obtained commercial certificates, and two of the unsuccessful entrance ones passed on the whole but failed in arithmetic. In addition to added severity in the papers set this year, the slaughter in marking was such that the average pass in entrance students for this county was only 20 per cent., and that of the primary throughout the province 30 per cent. Some of the towns succeeded in passing 10 per cent., while others failed entirely. In the face of these facts we have great reason to be proud of the flourishing condition of our public school, which at present stands second to none in the county.

The Salvation Army.

The split in the Salvation Army appears to be widening, ex-Brigadier Philpott's explanation of the origin of the trouble being entirely satisfactory to the immense crowd that met to hear him in Toronto on the evening of the 25th ult. As we expected, money, "the root of all evil," was the chief cause of the discord that had arisen in the Army. Philpott has long been dissatisfied with the manner in which "headquarters" roped in the cash, leaving inferior officers barely enough to sustain life, and at last he ventured to remonstrate, which was looked upon as rank treason. When the barracks in London, Ont., were partially destroyed by fire the soldiers, who raised the money to pay for the property, wished to rebuild; but head-quarters, in spite of the remonstrances of Philpott and others, sold it for $4,000, and to this day have not carried out the promise then made to purchase another. In two other places—Lucan and Alveston—in which Philpott was in command, the corps were allowed to run down and then head-quarters sold the property and appropriated the proceeds. He read a number of letters from other officers, (whose names he would not make public, as it would get the writers into trouble,) declaring that the management was running the organization to Old Nick, and that it was not accomplishing the work it started out to do. When La Marschal, Gen. Booth's daughter, an I Commissioner Ree's and his wife went through Canada on a begging expedition, they took Brigadier Philpott with them as treasurer, and he says that they travelled in section rooms on the Pullman palace cars, and between meals had frequent lunches which sometimes cost as much as $5 for the three, Philpott refusing to join in the extravagance or to ride in an ordinary first-class car. It is no wonder a train hand remarked: "I tell you, we have some blooded Salvationists on-board to-night." Last year, he alleges, nearly $12,000 was raised by self-denial contributions, nominally for the purpose of paying Army debts; but the greater part of it was banked at Toronto, so that the staff would be sure of its salary. His protests against such work as that was what brought him into bad odor with his superiors. Brigadier Philpott's statements were corroborated by other ex-officers. The meeting was entirely one-sided, as Commandant Booth, to whom an invitation had been mailed and registered, was not present, neither did anyone appear on his behalf. At the close the following resolutions were unanimously carried:

"Having listened this evening to the defence of Mr. Philpott against the charges and insinuations preferred by Commandant Booth, this assembly wishes to place on record the expression of its entire approval of the action taken by Mr. Philpott and his colleagues in resigning their position in the Salvation Army, and its admiration of their Christian conduct throughout the whole proceedings."

"It is the unanimous conclusion of this assembly that the action of Commandant Booth in refusing to grant to Mr. Philpott any opportunity for defence; in branding him before the public as dishonest and disloyal; in making wholesale accusations without producing evidence or giving satisfactory explanations, is worthy of the severest condemnation, being contrary to the spirit of Christianity and to human justice."

"In view of the recent developments as to the interior working of the Salvation Army, it is the voice of this vast assembly that the Salvation Army has forfeited that sympathy and support so long bestowed upon it by the deluded public, and that the Christian people of Toronto extend a helping hand to Mr. Philpott and his colleagues who have taken such a noble stand for conscience and truth."
