A Severe Cyclone.

SAN ANDREAS AND OLD PROVIDENCE IN THE CARRIBBEAN SEA VISITED BY A FIERCE WIND.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 4.—The following particulars of the damage done by a cyclone which passed over Old Providence and San Andreas in the Caribbean Sea have been received here: The cyclone began about 2 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 8th at San Andreas. The wind began first with a strong gale from the north-east. The velocity of the wind increased rapidly until everything about the Island began to shake from the force. In about two hours after the beginning of the gale the wind suddenly shifted to the westward and the cyclone was on in earnest. The islands are mostly devoted to the cultivation of coconuts, and acre after acre of these trees were twisted from the ground and carried off. Many of the little frame houses characteristic of that part of the world were lifted from their foundations and carried a hundred feet by the wind. At San Andreas the coconut crops of about fifty plantations are almost entirely ruined, while others were badly damaged. At Old Providence the cyclone worked with even more destructiveness than at San Andreas. The island has a population of about 1,500 persons. The planters' houses are elevated from the ground on piles, leaving a space of about three feet. The wind played havoc with these little buildings, and nearly every house on the Island was either completely wrecked or badly damaged. On the east side of the Island a frame church owned by the Baptists and another on the north owned by the same denomination disappeared. The roofs of these were lifted off like so much paper and the rest of the buildings collapsed. A 60-ton schooner named the Ameer, owned by Frederick Robinson of Old Providence when the cyclone began. It was blown across the clearing from the island and carried out to sea, and has never been heard from. There was no one aboard at the time. Although the cyclone lasted for over fourteen hours no one, so far as known, was killed. It will take a long time to rebuild the wrecked houses on the island. The damage to the coconut trees will shorten the crop.

Diphtheria From Turkeys.

To the Editor of The Globe:

Sir:—Our town, so far, at least, as I know, has been free from diphtheria for some months. This evening I was called to attend the son of a farmer. I found the case to be one of diphtheria of a little over a day's duration; fever, delirium, offensive breath, both tonsils covered with characteristic exudation, swelling behind the angle of the lower jaw, etc., etc. The boy had not been at school for a week, nor more than a quarter of a mile away from his home for that length of time. On questioning his parents as to how the boy could have caught the disease, I learned that within a short time three or four turkeys had died on the farm after being sick a few days. The mother told me they would not eat anything, would scratch at their necks, droop and in few days die. Their bodies were allowed to remain just where they lay down and died. This, of course, proves nothing, but the facts are at least suggestive and worth putting on record, more especially since it was reported a few years ago that an island off the main land of Greece suffered a severe epidemic of diphtheria, though it had always before enjoyed an immunity from the disease, after the importation of a diseased flock of turkeys, which were supposed to have been infected with the disease.

COUNTRY DOCTOR.

A clock owned by a resident of Trappe, Pa., has ticked since 1766.

Miss Sarah Sheppard, aged 104, was burned to death at Brazil, Ind., on Wednesday. It is supposed a spark from a pipe she was smoking set fire to her clothing.

A steamer from Alaska brings the news that four men were found in a camp at Point Barry, Cuprenoff with their heads cut off. Indians are supposed to have committed the murder.

At Walsham, in Norfolk, Eng., a nurse girl was arrested on Saturday charged with administering pins to a 7-months old child of Robert Barchan. The girl confessed. The child is in a critical condition.
