Riot in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 7.—A desperate attempt was made early this morning by a howling mob of Bohemians, Poles and Italians to burn the big packing-houses of the stock-yards. About 4 o'clock the mob massed on the Pan Handle tracks, in the rear of the packing-houses, and fires began to appear in all directions. The fire department responded promptly, and were greeted with a volley of stones from the mob. They cut the hose almost as fast as it was laid, and surrounded the firemen, but the fire was finally got under control. In the affray late this afternoon between a frenzied mob and a number of militia men and police officers in the thickly populated 49th and Loomis streets, on the Grand Trunk road, 25 individuals were wounded, several of them fatally. The affray was solely precipitated by the mob, which was made up in the main of foreigners, the neighborhood being inhabited almost exclusively by Bohemians and Poles.

A few minutes after 4, a wrecking train which had been clearing the debris at 49th and Loomis streets was surrounded by a mob of 6,000 men, women and children. Almost a score of police officers from the 19th Precinct were in the neighborhood, while the wrecking trains were specially guarded by companies of the 2nd Regiment. For a while the mob contented itself with hurling imprecations at the soldiers, to which the latter, having received orders to act with strict forbearance, paid no attention. Finally, becoming emboldened by the pacific attitude of the troops, some of the men commenced to throw stones, coupling pins and other missiles, as well as to fire revolvers over the heads of the soldiers. It became apparent that heroic measures would be necessary, and, finally, when another fusillade of stones had been directed toward the company, the order to fire was given, and a volley of Government cartridges went into the mob. At the same moment the order was given to advance, and the men dashed forward with their bayonets at charge. Alongside of them dashed the police, discharging their revolvers over the heads of the mob. The rioters scattered to the right and left, many of them taking refuge in the frame residences east of 49th and Loomis streets, and dragging the wounded after them. The military and police followed, the latter continuing to discharge their revolvers, and riddling the fronts of the houses with bullets. Burke, Jackson and the unknown were picked up by the police and carried to the office of a neighboring coal yard, from which they were taken to the hospital in an ambulance. The rest of the injured were attended to by doctors living in the neighborhood.

Just before the attack by the mob one of the officers, realizing the critical condition of affairs, had telephoned for reinforcement, and, while the mob was scattering, Company F. of the 2nd regiment, which had been stationed at the crossing of the Panhandle tracks at 55th and Garfield boulevard, came down the tracks at a brisk trot. At 49th and Ashland avenue they encountered a portion of the fleeing rioters. Several stones were thrown toward the military, and Captain O'Neill ordered a charge. Again the rioters scattered. Three of the most demonstrative took refuge in a saloon. The soldiers followed, and arrested them at the point of the bayonet. They gave the names of Andrew McCarthy, Otto Grobe and Joseph Smith. Grobe was inclined to resist arrest, and was jabbed with a bayonet until he threw up his hands. In his pocket was found a bull-dog revolver, while McCarthy had his pockets stuffed with cartridges. Between two ranks of militiamen the prisoners were marched down the tracks of Loomis street, and turned over to the police detail, the soldiers standing guard until the arrival of the patrol. They were booked at the 19th station on the charge of riot and carrying concealed weapons and locked up for hearing on Monday morning.
