Fenelon Falls, March 8th, 1893.

if he thinks fit, a collector—not of bugs or butterflies, or postage stamps or door-knobs, but—of towns and villages, and can well afford to make an annual purchase of some place as big as Fenelon Falls. When Lady Stanley was taking a trip down the mighty Seagow two or three years ago; and chatting affably with a few of the most aristocratic citizenesses of Lindsay, she said she didn't know what in the world to do with all her boys; but maternal anxiety on that point need no longer trouble her; for all their dad has to do is to buy each of them a town, and let him make an easy living by drawing the rents. Earl Derby's enormous wealth, like that of hundreds of other men, is the result of landlordism, which in the course of time will be greatly modified and shorn of its evils by Henry George's system of taxation. To an unfortunate fellow who is "lord of his presence and naught else besides," it appears glaringly unfair that any one man should be allowed to lay claim to an immense tract of land and tax his fellow-creatures for the privilege of drawing subsistence from it. Suppose for a moment that Adam had not forfeited immortality, and landlordism as it now prevails had occurred to him—what would have been the result? Why, he would have said to his descendants: "I was here first, the whole earth is mine, and no one of you shall till my ground, or fish in my waters, or kill and eat any of my living creatures, or pluck the fruits of any of my trees or bushes, or gather any of my sticks for fuel, without paying me tribute, and that is what the landlords of to-day are empowered by law to say to their tenants, the great majority of whom fairly shiver and stutter with humility whenever the owner of the land they live on speaks to them. We are glad to hear that the late earl of Derby was exceedingly benevolent and charitable, and it is to be hoped that the new earl will be the same, and will make the system that lavishes upon him all that money can buy as little oppressive as possible to those who are the victims of it."

Home Rule.

On Friday last, after an exceptionally powerful speech from Mr. Gladstone, the home rule bill passed its second reading by a majority of 43. Its opponents are now trying to extract comfort from the hope that it will be rejected by the Lords, and that, upon an appeal to the country, the electorate will pronounce against it. The Ulster Orangemen and their sympathisers have of course raised a fresh howl of indignation, but that no importance is attached to their threats may be inferred from the following, which appeared in a recent issue of Truth:

"Do what we may, say what we will, England seems loath to believe that Ulster is in earnest."—Vide the Orange newspapers passim.
It is true that the Orangemen swear
The law of the land they'll defy;
True they threaten and bluster,
And noisily muster,
And vow that in ditches they'll die;
It is true that they vapor a lot,
Of the rifles they've gathered in store;
But their ranting and riot
Excite no disquiet—
We have heard them so often before,
Yes, we fancy we've heard them before,
We know that we've heard them before;
All their fluster and fuss
Seem familiar to us,
For we've seen them and heard them before.

was the same four-and-twenty years since,
When Gladstone the Church took in hand,
There was marching and drilling,
And meetings most thrilling,
With rhetoric recklessly grand,
As, now, ardent Orangemen vowed
Ulster's rivers should flow with their gore
If the Bill became law;
But we presently saw
Ulster's rivers flowed just as before;
Flowed with water the same as before,
Without a suspicion of gore;
So now Orange ranting,
Sets not a heart panting,
For we've heard it, verbatim, before!

On the very same day that the bill had its second reading, Major Sam Hughes notified every member of the Victoria County Rifle Association to meet in the Warder office on the following Monday evening to transact some mentioned business of much importance. The meeting may have been strictly innocent and legitimate; but the gallant major's late traitorous utterances give grounds for suspicion that he might have had some ulterior and sinister object in calling the riflemen together.

In Luck.

The Governor-General of Canada is going home to the old country on a heir-ship. A few days ago his title was Lord Stanley of Preston, but by the recent death, without issue, of his elder brother, he has become Earl of Derby, with an estate in Lancashire (where witches are still numerous) which, it is said, brings in a yearly rental of not much less than a million dollars. It is a good thing to be a British nobleman—even a "miserable grovelling earl"—if you have plenty of money to back up the title; and the Governor-General, hitherto a comparatively poor man, is now wealthy enough to indulge in any whim that strikes him, and may become,

The Union Meeting of the Endeavor Societies.

The newly organized local union of the C. E. Societies of Fenelon Falls will hold their first public meeting in the Presbyterian Church, on Tuesday next, May 2nd, at 7:35 p. m. prompt. It is earnestly requested that all the members of the various societies be present at the commencement of the meeting for the election of the various office-bearers of the union for the present year. The following is the programme of the evening:

Address by the Rev. Mr. McAuley, president of County Union.

Address by the Rev. Mr. McCamus.

Short Paper on C. E. Topics—My choice, What is it?—by Miss A. Rutherford, Mrs. W. T. Junkin, and Miss Ellis. These papers will occupy five minutes each, after which discussion is invited.

Consecration Meeting led by Rev. Mr. McAuley.

Music, in the form of solos, duets, quartettes, anthems, will be rendered by the members of the various endeavor choirs of the village. A very cordial invitation is extended to all to be present. The meeting will be a success in every respect. The members of the various societies are requested to bring each a friend, that fresh interest may be awakened in all the young people of the village. Let all the members become a lookout committee for the week.

Powles's Corners.

Correspondence of the Gazette.

The McGee Brothers sustained a loss of about $150 by the recent high east wind. Their new implement house that they erected lately, and had finished with the exception of a stone foundation that was to be built this summer, was blown down. The building was standing on posts and the preparations, such as bracing, were not made in time. They are going at it again with undaunted courage.

As Mr. John Minthorne was closing his barn door a very strong gust of wind blew the door against the old gentleman, and we understand his shoulder was put out of joint. Mr. Minthorne is a little over eighty years of age and this will go quite hard with him. Our wishes are for his speedy recovery.

Miss Martha Cullis is at present directing the minds of the junior department of the school here. Miss Cullis is an excellent teacher and we may look forward to see good results.

Mr. Wm. H. Cullis intends to make some improvements by way of raising his barn and having a stone foundation put under it. Mr. Cullis intends to go more into stock raising, and many of the farmers in this locality have come to conclusion that the time to make money by raising grain and selling it is past.

Personals.

Mr. Robert Osby of Cambray spent Wednesday afternoon at the Falls.

Capt. J. W. Wallace of Cambray was at the Falls last Monday, looking up a suitable man for the post of first lieutenant of his company at the annual drill of the 45th battalion to be held in June.

Mr. James Cameron returned from Toronto last Saturday, but we are sorry to hear that he is not much better than when he left home, though for a time he appeared to be doing well under the city doctor's care.

Mr. & Mrs. George McGee left last Monday for the north-west. We could not learn their exact destination, but heard that it was somewhere in the neighborhood of Mr. David Wilcock, Mrs. McGee's father, who is near a place called Carlyle in Assiniboia.

Mr. Peter Moffit has returned from his brief visit to his relatives at Turtle Mountain, south-west of Souris, Manitoba. We have not seen him, except at a distance, since he got home; but we hear that what he saw of the country impressed him very unfavorably.

ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday last, while chopping wood in Mr. Greene's bush, Mr. David Varcoe received a very severe cut with his axe, the whole width of the blade entering the flesh of his foot to a considerable depth. Dr. Wilson dressed the wound, from which we hope there will be no serious result.

ROUTE BILLS.—Horsemen! get your route bills printed at the Gazette office. Several handsome cuts to choose from. Work first-class. Prices right.—9-3w.

OPENING OF NAVIGATION.—The Napanee Paper Co.'s steamer Myrtle, Capt. John Shane, will make her first trip this season on Monday next, but whether she will get as far as Cobocook or only to Rosedale remains to be seen. To-day (Thursday) there is still some ice in Cameron lake, which will probably be clear of it by the end of the week; but, as far as we can learn, there is still a good deal in Balsam lake. The Myrtle has had a new boiler put in her and is "rigged up in fine shape" for the season.
