The Ill-fated "Cynthia."

EFFORTS TO RECOVER HER VALUABLE CARGO PROVING VERY SUCCESSFUL.

Good progress is being made in recovering the cargo of the Donaldson steamship "Cynthia," sunk in the river off the Longue Pointe Asylum, 23rd May, 1880, as the result of a collision with the Allan SS "Polynesian." Captain Henry Brown, of the "Florence," Quebec, purchased all the rights in his sunken vessel for $3,000. He has several expert divers at work. Dynamite is being used with splendid effect. Already a large portion of the cargo has been recovered. It embraces, among other things, the following items: 550 tons pig iron, 504 tons of coal, 126 tons of steel plate cuttings, 3469 barrels of iron, 21 bundles of steel, 40 bundles of iron, 1580 fire clay pipes, 150 old iron plates and 276 bbls. of stone. Captain Brown, in view of his contention that the cargo of the vessel would have been lost but for his exertions, is urging the Dominion Government to exact an ad valorem duty on the goods instead of a specific duty as provided for by the Customs Tariff. The matter is now under consideration. The "Cynthia" lies in 42 feet of water, two hundred feet from the shore. She has settled on the bed of the river.

A New War Vessel.

LONDON, July 22.—A new vessel, which will fill the gap created in the navy by the loss of the Victoria, has just been completed on the Tyne, and has arrived at Portsmouth to go on service. This is the new first class line of battleship Resolution. She was launched on the 28th of May last year, so that the time taken to complete her has been only a little over thirteen months. The builders are the Palmer Shipbuilding and Iron Company (Limited). The Resolution is one of the largest battleships afloat, comprising one of the eight built under the Naval Defence Act of 1889. She is 40 feet longer, 5 feet broader, and 3,680 tons more displacement than the ill-fated Victoria. When used as a flagship the Resolution will have a complement of over 700 officers and men.

The latest boy preacher, 12-year-old Ivey Gregory, comes appropriately from Early county, Ga.

It is said to cost less to send the product of an acre of wheat from Dakota to England than it does to manure an acre of land in England so that it can grow good wheat.

The One Consolation.

Of the loss of the "Victoria" the Daily News says: The disaster admits of only one consolation—pride in the conduct of the men. All the accounts of all the eye-witnesses agree in that. They lost their ship but they kept their pluck and nerve unimpaired in circumstances that might have brought a sense of the agony of peril to the lowest and dullest organism in the scale of being. As suffering is proportioned to the fineness of the organization, so, also, in a degree, is the sense of terror. Yet all these men, the pick of the culture, the intelligence and the smartness of our naval service, each one of them, from the Admiral to the cabin-boy, the best of his rank and class, died as though they had been on parade. The men awaited the Admiral's command before they jumped for life. The Admiral, with that hell of churning waters and ruined armaments crashing in his ears, never left his post on the bridge, but gave order after order; until it was too late for himself to set the example of obedience to the last. While the British Navy is made of that stuff, it would take many accidents like even this one to imperil its supremacy of the seas.

A Huge Hotel on Wheels.

A lucky man is Dr. Seward Webb, of New York. He takes his magnificently appointed hotel about with him wherever he goes, or rather it takes him. His hotel is a railway train, probably the most luxurious ever seen; and in it he purposes shortly making a tour of the United States. First there is in this wonderful train the private car "Ellesmere," the "most sumptuous product of the Wagner Company;" then there is another private car named "Idler," presumably because all business is therein transacted; the observation car "No Ha Sa Ne," specially built for taking snapshots of Indians; the compartment car "Daphne;" a dining car; a combination car to carry the help and the luggage;" and, finally, a sort of farmhouse on wheels, whence new-laid eggs and fresh milk are supplied every morning. The "Daphne," Iron is informed, is to be used almost exclusively by Mrs. Seward Webb and her three young children, and in it there is an apartment which resembles an attractive toy-shop. As to servants for the train, there are fifteen colored ladies and gentlemen in uniform, who, in case of attack by red-skins or other nefarious individuals, are to arm themselves with Winchester rifles, the Mauchers not yet having arrived from Austria.

A Story of Demoniacal Possession.

L'Union des Cantons de l'Est of Montreal tells a curious story of a girl said to be possessed of the devil. The girl is named Angeline Pageot, and resides with her parents near Thetford in the County of Megantic. She is both young and beautiful. One day, about the middle of June, while engaged at needle-work, she screamed, jumped up and ran into the woods near by. She returned in about a quarter of an hour and told her parents that she was possessed of a devil. Nothing more occurred for three days. "But on Sunday morning when they spoke to her of going to church there was a terrible scene. Streams of fire poured from her eyes and her mouth and she uttered blasphemies to make the hair of those who heard her stand on end. She threatened her father, and overwhelmed him with curses, and with a terrifying gesture showed him the door, exclaiming with a strong voice, 'Go and see him if you want your master. As for me, I remain here and I will sing the praises of my own.' There are days when she is perfectly quiet, but from the moment when one speaks of religion she becomes furious, beside herself, and is pacified with difficulty. Sometimes towards evening, when the moon makes its appearance, she sings a romance. What a voice! What singing! One would believe it to be an angel. And what is the strangest thing is that the young girl never sang before this event. The physicians consulted say that there are symptoms of madness, but there is something of the supernatural. The religious authorities have been warned of the case.

An Angler's congress will be held at Niagara-on-the-Lake August 9 to celebrate the ter-centenary of Izaak Walton, the father of angling. The affair promises to be a most enjoyable gathering.
