Concerning the Manly Art.

(From the Whitby Chronicle.)

Very contradictory reports came to hand from Lindsay as to a street fight which took place there last week over the municipal elections between our redoubtable confere, Bro. Sam Hughes, of the Warder, and Mr. Kylie, reeve-elect of that town. It seems that Mr. Kylie is a Roman Catholic, and that during the campaign his co-religionists had been very active in canvassing for a united Catholic vote in his favor. This had been severely commented upon the previous week by the Warder, and on the day after the polling Mr. Kylie reminded Mr. Hughes that he wou in spite of the Protestant cry raised. One word brought on another, as the saying is, and finally they fell to scrapping. In the Warder Major Hughes acknowledged a jammed nose and considerable of a mauling, but claims the victory on the score of general results, and declares that its editor would have performed in better style only for a heavy overcoat which interfered with the scientific working of his "jukes." The Post and Watchman give Kylie the victory by a large majority; and we fear he had the best of it, although we are loath to admit that an editor could be worsted by a member of any town council. We may be mistaken, but it seems to our noble mind that we could, if we so desired, walk up and down the Whitby town council board, stepping at will upon the necks of the members. We shall have to see this man Kylie when we go out to Lindsay to curl for the Dryden tankard. If he produces illusory stars before the mangled vision of Lindsay newspaper editors, he shall only be able to accomplish it over our prostrate corpse. The honor of the quill is at stake, and must be vindicated. When we take the trouble to hold an after-election conference with our enemies we always secrete in our trowser leg a butcher's carver with a blade about two feet long, a present from Mr. Joseph Stone when he left his stall to go farming. Should the conference culminate in strife, we merely draw the long blade and push it through our adversary. Then running around behind him we seize the point of the knife and pull the handle through. We then leave the injured man to his meditations. That weapon we shall carry to Lindsay, and after Mr. Kylie has indulged in two or three rounds with us and the claymore, the papers will not tell the story of our defeat.

The Price of Wheat.

An article which we publish to-day deals with the subject of the present low price of wheat, and the question whether that cheapness is warranted by the stocks of the cereal now held in Ontario, and other circumstances. It appears that during the past season a larger proportion of wheat has been fed to cattle than in the previous season, the reason being that a much greater profit could be got from the grain in that way than by selling it directly. One Ontario farmer says he has obtained a return of 90 cents a bushel for his wheat by virtually converting it into live stock. In one section of Ontario it appears that more wheat has been used for this purpose than for human food.

The general result of the inquiries is that the consumption of the grain for cattle-feeding has greatly increased, and that the stocks in the hands of farmers are much smaller this year than last. In some parts of Manitoba, according to recent reports, farmers' deliveries have now ceased, and it is said that before the next crop begins to move it will be necessary to import wheat for consumption. The falling off in deliveries is put down as the main cause of the recent advance in the price of wheat in that province. It is beginning to look as if affairs would take a similar turn here, and, while an undue inflation of prices is not to be desired, it is neither desirable nor fair to the farmers that prices should be kept low by the prevalence of erroneous ideas as to the supply available, especially when those prices are such as to return little or no profit to the producer.—Globe.

British War Ships.

The Daily News says:—The Admiralty have made ample provisions to fully maintain the strength of the navy and keep the dockyards employed, including four first-class warships, similar to the Majestic and the Magnificent, each costing about a million, and with 15,000 tons coal capacity. These warships will be arranged to enable them to keep the sea longer than any warship now afloat. It is estimated they will be completed in three years. Four gunboats of the new type, to be known as the Linnet class, and similar to the Torch and the Alert, are building at Sheerness. Instead of composite hulls they will have steel-sheathed wood and copper. They will be of 960 tons, and will be called station gunboats. Their speed will be thirteen knots, and each will cost £60,000. In addition to the twenty torpedo-destroyers already projected, twelve others of the same type, with a guaranteed speed of 27 knots, and an average cost of £32,000, have been arranged for.

Dogs as Railroad Passengers.

Dogs in Belgium, it appears, from a rather singular case that has just been heard before the law courts of that country, are raised to the dignity of passengers, if their owners choose to take them into a railway carriage with themselves. The point on which opinions differed has just been settled, the question brought under the notice of the law courts being whether a dog whose master has duly taken a ticket for him is entitled to a seat, or whether his rights be limited to a place on the floor of the compartment, at the feet of the human occupants. A sportsman, we read, was not long ago travelling in Belgium with his dog, a fine retriever, whose place had been paid for. However, in spite of this, there being at a station on the line no room for a traveller, a railway employee turned the dog off his seat. Probably the dog's feelings were not hurt, but his master protested indignantly, and subsequently appealed to the administration of the state railway for a decision on the subject. It has been given, and is in favor of the dog, it being decreed that he is as much entitled to a seat as his master, and that where a compartment has room for ten passengers, and there happen to be five men and five dogs therein, it must be considered as full, tickets of course being taken for the dog.—London Standard.

Arrangements are being made by the prohibitionists of West Simcoe for a convention to nominate a candidate to contest the riding in their interests at the approaching Provincial elections.
