ALL CASES OF DEAFNESS OR HARD HEARING ARE NOW CURABLE

by our new invention. Only those born deaf are incurable. HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:
BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1902.
Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.
About five years ago my right ear began to ring, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.
I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.
I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain
Very truly yours,
F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

Our treatment does not interfere with your usual occupation. Examination and advice free. YOU CAN CURE YOURSELF AT HOME at a nominal cost. INTERNATIONAL AURAL CLINIC, 596 LA SALLE AVE., CHICAGO, ILL.

Our Future M. P. P.

To set at rest the stories circulated throughout the riding regarding Mr. Heyd, the Liberal candidate for East Victoria (who is going to be elected, mind you) we publish the following sketch of his career, which appeared in the Globe a few days after his nomination:

"Mr. L. F. Heyd, K. C., Toronto, who has accepted the Liberal nomination for East Victoria, is a well-known barrister, who has done good service to his party's cause in many campaigns in Ontario. He was born in Brantford in 1856, and, at the age of 21, after several years spent behind the counter of a grocery store, began to study for the legal profession. He matriculated at Osgoode Hall one year later, capturing a scholarship, and was called to the bar in 1884. He practised in Brantford until 1896, when he removed to Toronto. He was made Queen's Council in 1899. He achieved prominence as a council for Jack Bertram and Alex. Lottridge in the trial of the Ancaster murder case at Hamilton a few years ago. The hearing lasted ten days, and, after a very stubborn fight, the prisoners were acquitted. Mr. Heyd has conducted the Crown business at various Assizes throughout the Province. It is from his platform and campaign work, however, that he is best known, particularly in western Ontario. In nearly every constituency there he has appeared to support Liberal candidates, and he has gained a high reputation as a speaker. Mr. Heyd is a member of the Young Men's Liberal Club and of the Mulock Club. He is very fond of music, and officiated as choir master and organist in Zion Presbyterian Church, Brantford. He is solicitor for the Ancient Order of Foresters and a member of the Masonic Order and of the Canadian Order of Foresters."

Death of a Miser.

For over thirty years a man named Alexander Murray has lived alone in a small house at Ball Point, in the township of Fenelon, and on Sunday afternoon he was found dead by some of the neighbors' boys, who were in the habit of going to visit him on that day. Not seeing him around, and finding the doors of the house fastened, they looked through a window, and saw him lying upon his back on the floor. A messenger was sent to the Falls for Dr. Wilson, who at once drove to the Point, and, upon examining the deceased, expressed the opinion that he had died of heart failure and had been dead for some considerable time. He was at the Falls on the previous Monday, and was last seen alive on Thursday evening. It is probable that he died that night, as he was partly undressed, and some of the rags that served him for bed-clothes were between his head and the floor. On Monday Mr. Lewis Deyman, acting under instructions, went to the point with a coffin and brought the body to his undertaking establishment, where he prepared it for burial, and next morning some relatives named Cameron took it away with them to Beaverton. We have frequently heard that Murray was worth a great deal of money, which he intended to leave to the Presbyterian church at Lindsay; but since his death we have been told that he did not make a will, and that his $15,000, or whatever it is, and his few acres of land at Ball point, will go to his relatives. Though so well off, and having neither wife nor child to support, he dressed like a beggar, and so denied himself the necessities of life that there can be but little doubt that he died, practically, of starvation. Though his face was not very thin, his body was fearfully emaciated, and on a table in the room in which he died was an old envelope, which he had nearly covered with figures and then written, "I have spent $4.36 in three months." The age on his coffin plate was 75 years, but, notwithstanding his miserable appearance, he did not look as old as that.

Two Fires on Tuesday.

A large two-story frame house on Mr. William Isaac's farm in Fenelon was burned to the ground on Tuesday last, together with nearly all its contents. The fire burst through the roof about 12.30 p. m., while the family were at dinner, and was first seen by Mr. Peter Perdue, a neighbor, who promptly gave the alarm; but all that could be done was to get out some of the most valuable articles on the ground floor. The house burned with great rapidity, as there was a high wind at the time; but fortunately its direction was not toward the out-buildings, all of which escaped, with the exception of the wood-shed, which was close to the house, and contained about ten cords of wood. There is no doubt that the fire originated from a stove-pipe that passed through a room occupied by Miss Annie Nic, of the Falls, who teaches the Cameron Point school and boards at Mr. Isaac's. The pipe—or, rather, the soot within it—had been on fire earlier in the day; but the fire had been carefully extinguished, and the pipe watched until all danger from it was believed to be over. Miss Nic lost books, clothing and money to the value of about $30; but Mr. Alfred Sewell, also of the Falls, who is in Mr. Isaac's employ, and whose bedroom was over the back kitchen, and he managed to save all his clothes. Everything else in the upper story was burned, as well as a great deal of the furniture on the ground floor, and all the contents of a large and well stored cellar. Mr. Isaac's loss will be heavy if, as we hear, he had but little insurance.

The second fire was on Redner's Point, and the house destroyed was owned and occupied by Mr. Mart Whaley. At 8.30 p. m., or a little later, while Mr. Whaley was up town, and his wife, accompanied by their only child, was visiting her sister in the neighborhood, the roof of the house was observed to be on fire by some one who at once gave the alarm, and a small crowd soon gathered; but nothing towards extinguishing the flames could be done, and the building soon "went up in smoke," with all its contents except a few articles of furniture. There was an insurance of $300 on the house and a trifle on the furniture; but as the $300 go to a loan company, and Mr. Whaley is a poor man, a project to take up a subscription on his behalf is on foot.

Spring Millinery.

One glance at the windows of the millinery establishments is enough to convince us that spring is here once more. Before her army of flowers and foliage, gauzes, laces and chiffons, winter has taken flight. His headwear of cloth, fur and felt has given place to the airy, fairy constructions which Spring calls her own. The millinery department at Mr. Wm. Campbell's is now in the hands of Miss Shannon, a former Lindsay lady, whose skill in millinery art is shown to advantage in many ways in the present season's work. At the opening last week was shown one particularly beautiful hat in Princess shape. It was a deep cream braid with a large plaque crown. A scarf of pale salmon-colored silk was caught at the front, draped across the crown and caught at the back with a gilt and Rhinestone buckle. The draping continued under the brim at the left side back, where it was artistically formed into massive loops of the silk. The facing was of lace, with a wreath of exquisite June roses completely encircling the brim underneath. Another attractive Eldorado shape was trimmed around the crown with black velvet ribbon continued to the back and finished in loops and ends fastened by a pretty gilt buckle. A handsome wreath of red poppies adorned the front and sides. A facing of black velvet and a small lift of black net held with two red and gilt cabochons gave the under brim a pretty effect. A magnificent picture hat in black braid is shown. A draping of black chiffon is laid in folds around the crown. A long black ostrich feather held in front by a beautiful pearl buckle adorns the left side, and a couple of pale pink roses rest underneath the brim. An artistically made hat of black chiffon with rows of braid applied, a girl's "Elorene" hat distinguished by the newest combination of silk, with an intermingling of green velvet, and a child's hat of dainty white Lohorn, trimmed simply with marguerites, white chiffon and velvet ribbon, were among the most noticeable samples. An exquisite cream lace turban trimmed with a graceful cluster of cherries and foliage, a large pearl buckle and loops of heavy cream satin ribbon under the brim was very much admired. Another all white hat in Mayonette shape had a draping of white lace completely around the brim, falling gracefully over the back. An artistic arrangement of chiffon gave the side effect. Marguerites adorned the right of the crown. Many ready-to-wear hats and numberless untrimmed shapes, with newest styles in trimmings and flowers, await the choice of the purchaser.

Miss Washburn's display was as artistic and beautiful as ever. Her parlors last week were a veritable summer garden of flowers and graceful plants. Foremost in the array of millinery was an exquisite blue chiffon hat, with one beautiful white ostrich feather resting on the brim. Another was in Gainsborough style in linen shade with Maline roses forming the brim and a draping of cherry velvet, with a Postillion bow falling on the hair. A large black Mohair picture hat was faced with tucked tulle. A long black plume fastened at the left front with a bow of black-velvet ribbon, which was carried to the back, fastened by a sequin cabochon in the centre of a wheel-rosette from which fell long ends and loops of the velvet ribbon. A group of cherries caught up the brim under the left side, and a handsome jet rope with cabochons ornamented the left brim. Another beautiful black Empress was formed of alternate rows of pleated tulle and Mohair braid. Two long tips fastened at each side of the top of the crown with black cabochons and falling over the back of the brim, was of unique style. A lovely white and green hat in Colonial shape had a brim of accordion pleated ruffles in white tulle, strikingly ornamented with four jet cabochons. A draping of delicate green tulle was about the crown, which was formed of pale tinted Pompadour roses, and a beautiful group of green roses and foliage fell over the hair at the back. A beautiful fawn straw, showing the skill of the maker, was draped with grass cloth, looped at the back with pearls and finished at the ends with Parisian lace. The brim was made of straw rosettes, to each of which is applied a Parisian lace-medallion. A particularly noticeable sample was in Colonial shape, the brim covered with a peculiarly pretty arrangement of white rope tulle. The crown was of dew-drop chiffon, finished at the back with lace ends. A very handsome osprey completed the trimming. Several hats for children and misses were shown. One pretty hat for a child was in beige straw, with a bell crown, the brim laced with pale blue ribbon finished with long loops and ends at the back. A great variety of infants' headwear, and many untrimmed shapes, with the latest styles in flowers and ornaments, are, as usual, a noticeable feature of Miss Washburn's display.

Personals.

Mr. F. H. Magee went to Peterboro on business last Friday and returned next day.

Miss Ella Austin came home from Kinmount on Saturday and returned on Monday.

Mr. Thomas Wilson, of Buffalo, N. Y., is at the Falls visiting his uncle, Dr. Wilson.

Rev. E. MacNamara left on Tuesday for Toronto, and will be home by the end of the week.

Dr. C. M. McArthur, of Detroit, Mich., was at the Falls from Tuesday until Thursday.

Mr. J. J. Townley left on Monday for Toronto and Rochester, and is expected home to-day.

Mrs. Podger, of Lindsay, was driven to the Falls on Sunday by her grandson, Mr. Thomas Spratt, and was the guest of Mrs. George J. Nic until Monday morning.

Mr. Richard McCallum, of Stirling, Ont., while on his way to Michigan, paid a flying visit to his brother Robert at the Falls this week, remaining from Tuesday until Wednesday.

Mr. Joseph Brandon came home from Duluth on Wednesday. He had small-pox at Grand Forks last December, but was well taken care of, and the marks left by the disease are so slight that they will probably entirely disappear in the course of a few years.

Village Council.

Fenelon Falls, April 2nd, 1902: Council met at regular meeting, all the members present. Minutes of last meeting read and approved.
