The Majority of One.

With reference to Premier Ross's majority, the Toronto Star says:

"Some humorist has worked out a plan for a coalition Government for this Province, in view of the close result of the elections. It is not known who originated the idea. It first made its appearance in a political letter from Toronto to an independent paper in Peterboro. Each party suspects the other of advancing the proposal. But there will be no coalition Government. It is improbable that anybody prominently connected with either political party had anything to do with putting forward the bright and shining suggestion. It was probably written by some young man gifted with a speculative mind. In order to effect the coalition it was said that Mr. Ross would retire to the Lieutenant-Governorship. Why should he? This office is in the gift of the Ottawa Government, and Mr. Ross would not need to bargain for it with Mr. Whitney if he wants it, on concluding his political career. But why should he bring his political career to an end just now? What advantage would it bring to him or to his party? Nobody wants a coalition Government. The Liberals want a Ross Government and the Conservatives want to see their party in power. With a majority of one, the Government has warrant for holding office until the time comes for calling the Legislature together. When that event occurs it will be learned whether Mr. Ross has sufficient support to hold office. In the meantime he may lose his majority altogether, or it may increase to four or seven. His opponents may not consider it unconstitutional for Mr. Ross to take cognizance a few months hence of such an event, should it happen, as the loss of his present majority of one, nor should they find fault if he takes cognizance of such an event as the increase of his majority. He will not resign or coalesce while he has a majority, though it be but one. The work cut out for Mr. Whitney and his party is to destroy that majority. If that be done, the two leaders will stand on equal terms, except for the fact that Mr. Ross will hold the reins and will have as good a claim to hold them as Mr. Whitney will have to demand them. But that little majority is more likely to grow than to disappear. This is the growing time."

The Glorious Twelfth.

This year the Orangemen had a splendid day for their 12th of July celebration, and Lindsay was so crowded that Kent street, though of the maximum width, could scarcely accommodate the throng of spectators. It is estimated that fully 10,000 persons witnessed the procession, in which four counties were represented, and which is said to have been the most successful ever held in the Midland district. Notwithstanding the enormous crowd in town, only one arrest was made throughout the entire day, and Chief Nevison declared it was the quietest Orange celebration he ever witnessed. The absence of Col. Sam. Hughes was commented upon by many, and various reasons were ascribed in explanation of it by those who didn't know that Sam and ex-reeve McArthur of Fenelon Falls left a few days ago for a prolonged trip through the Peace River district. The Post says:

"Saturday, July 12th, was a great day for Ireland, or, at any rate, for the principles which had their birthplace in the Green Isle and have since spread to many quarters of the globe. It was a great day also in the sense that it disclosed the bitterness and irritating tendencies peculiar to the celebrations of long ago have disappeared, leaving barely a trace by which they might be identified. The diffusion of education has produced a spirit of tolerance which enjoins our people to respect the views of others, and to freely acknowledge that all have equal rights and an equal responsibility in the great and glorious duty of making this Canada of ours one of the great nations of the world. This can be done—it is being done—and the good feeling and orderliness so manifest on Saturday were pleasing guarantees of the increasing unity so essential to solid and lasting success."

A Book with a Local Flavor.

The Post says: "It will no doubt be of interest to our many readers in Victoria County, and to the citizens of Lindsay in particular, to learn that a novel bearing the title of 'Oliver Langdon: a Tale of the New Dominion,' is to be published in Boston during the approaching month of September. The author is Mr. Geo. A. Powles, Instructor in English in West Division High School, Chicago, and son of Mr. William Powles Sr., of Powles' Corner, Fenelon. The scene of the story is laid in Victoria County, mainly in Lindsay, though many of the incidents of the stirring plot occur within the boundaries of Fenelon township and the village of Fenelon Falls. The hero of the tale is a student in the Lindsay grammar school in the early sixties, several other students there, as well as their Principal, being brought upon the stage incidentally, some bruises being inflicted in the process. Many well-known persons and places in the county are mentioned, and the volume will be found very interesting and instructive. No doubt our local booksellers will have copies for sale as soon as the novel is published."

From another source we learn that the attractiveness of the book—the price of which is to be $1.50—will be increased by illustrations based upon photographs taken by Mr. Stanton, and that at least one or two persons well known at the Falls many years ago will be mentioned by name in the text. The many friends of the author in this locality will await the advent of his novel with impatience, and be eager to read it as soon as possible after it leaves the press.

Powles' Corner.

(Correspondence of the Gazette)

It is generally believed that last Monday's storm was the most severe that has struck this section for fifty years. There was never a light of glass broken by hail in this neighborhood that we ever heard tell of until Monday's storm came, when nearly every house around here had one or more lights of glass broken, and all kinds of garden truck was badly cut down by the hail. At present the damage cannot be estimated. There was also a lot of hay out, which will be damaged. The farmer has a hard row to hoe in this world, but there is no use complaining. It will give us an idea of what a cyclone is like in the western States, and it is to be hoped that we will not have another such storm.

It is rumored that Mr. H. W. Johnston has purchased Mr. James Pollard's farm.

EYE SPECIALIST.—Prof. J. H. DeSilberg, the celebrated eye specialist, will be at the Mansion House parlors, Fenelon Falls, from Monday afternoon, Aug. 4th, until Wednesday noon, Aug. 6th. Consultation free. See advertisement in another column.

A SMALL FIRE.—A small stable belonging to the R. C. Smith estate, and situated on the corner lot east of the stone school-house, was destroyed by fire about midnight on Wednesday, together with about ten dollars' worth of wood stored therein, and owned by Mr. William Deyman, Sr. No one can conjecture how the fire occurred.

TO-NIGHT.—Don't forget the Epworth League excursion to Bobcaygeon to-night. The boat will leave the wharf at 7.30, and you can go all the way to Cayceon and back for 25 cents if you are grown up, and for 15 cents if you are a "kid." There is to be a garden party somewhere in the village, so put a few extra dimes into your pockets.

THE NEW CHURCH.—Work on the foundation of the new English church on Bond street was commenced yesterday, and will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible. The bricks were ordered long ago, and will be here by the time they will be needed. Mr. Alexander McLeod has the contract, and everybody knows the kind of work he turns out.

ALMOST A FIRE.—About 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon a spark from the chimney in Mr. Fred Chambers' carriage factory on Francis street set fire to the roof, in which a big hole was burnt before the flames were extinguished. The alarm bell was rung, and for a time there was quite a commotion, but the fire, from start to finish, only lasted a few minutes.

NEXT WEDNESDAY.—On the evening of Wednesday next, the 23rd inst., a garden party in aid of St. Peter's church, North Verulam, will be held at the residence of Mr. Yeoman Smith, Bury's Green. There will be plenty of music, lots of good things to eat and drink, and an enjoyable time is expected. All are invited, and a numerous attendance is looked for.

If so, it is well to know the great value of Polson's Nervine, a household remedy for stomach-pains, cramps, toothache, sick headache and the manifold ills peculiar to children. A few drops of Nervine in sweetened water makes a pleasant drink and never fails to quickly relieve. Nervine is as good as the doctor in emergencies and costs only 25c. a bottle. Get Nervine from your druggist to-day. Sold by W. H. Robson.

NEW BUS.—Mr. Robert Magee's new omnibus, built by Mr. S. S. Gainer, made its first appearance in public on Tuesday afternoon, and was much admired by all who saw it. The different kinds of wood used in its construction are oiled instead of being painted, the sides are panelled and the windows of the door at the rear end are of ornamental glass. It is nicely upholstered in plum-colored plush, the wheels etc. are red, and the maker and owner are both proud of it as an up-to-date turnout.

ESCAPE FROM DROWNING.—Mr. F. A. McDiarmid's youngest son, Harry, about five years old, had a narrow escape from drowning at Sturgeon Point on Thursday of last week. He fell from Mr. G. H. Hopkins' wharf into the lake, but Mr. Hopkins, who was in his boat-house at the time, heard the alarm given by some ladies, jumped into the water and saved the little fellow's life. Mr. Hopkins had advised him not to go near the edge of the wharf, but he went, and so got a prolonged and not very far from fatal ducking.

DISAPPOINTED.—The early closing by-law came into force last Monday, and notwithstanding the fact that it was advertised in both the village papers, as well as by notices in all the shop windows, two or three farmers came to the Falls to make purchases after the prescribed hour, but, of course, were disappointed. They will all soon know that they cannot get into any of the stores after 7 o'clock p. m. on any even-
