Objections to Socialism.

"Human nature is too selfish for Socialism."

This is an old and much dilapidated objection which, put briefly, amounts to the claim that Socialism is impossible while human nature remains unchanged.

The argument is that self-interest is opposed to Socialism.

Is it? Why? If it be to the interest of the vast majority of the people to establish Socialism, as it most undoubtedly is, how can the alleged fact that self-interest is the strongest of human motives be held to constitute an argument against Socialism? They say—the non-Socialists—that human nature is not good enough for Socialism—that all men are selfish and greedy.

But, supposing that were true, is it any reason why America should not belong to the Americans?

Say that we are all as greedy as pigs.
Is that any reason why the great herd of pigs should leave the trough to a few fat pigs who have already over-eaten themselves?

If we are all for self, is that any reason why we should gnaw bones while a few of our number enjoy the feast?

If we are all on the grab, why should we stand empty-handed and let a few grabbers take the land and the best of what the land yields?

The heart of man is wicked. Very well; but what has that to do with the case? Because we are none of us vir-tuous, shall a few sinners take all the cake and cream?

If we are such greedy hogs, it is strange that we allow ourselves to be robbed of our share.

Perhaps the people of Liverpool are all greedy. But why should Lord Salisbury own nearly half the city, while the hundreds of thousands of workers do not own a brick nor a foot of land, and even have to pay rent for a grave?

Mankind, let us say, are all rogues, every one a bigger rascal than the other; but that is no reason why they should pay for bad gas, if they can make good gas themselves at a less cost.

Human nature is vile. Be it so. But that does not prevent the city of Glasgow from managing its tramways better than they were managed by the private company.

There is no such thing as perfection in this world. Just so; the bee has a sting and the rose a thorn; but is that a reason why a laboring man should not have beef with his mustard?

We all want as much as we can get.
Then let us all get as much as we can.
If men really are selfish and greedy, that is a strong reason why they should turn Socialists and insist upon having every penny they earn.

What? We are all selfish and greedy! Then let us act as selfish and greedy men would act. Let us get all we can for ourselves. Let us reject the state of things which gives us the work and others the wealth.

Let us demand Socialism and see that we get it.

ROBERT BLATCHFORD.
London, England.

Homes Under Socialism.

When Socialists are elected to control public affairs they will build cities upon scientific principles, in which the houses, though differing in size and design, will be equally good and beautiful.
Each house will be supplied with every scientific device for sanitation and convenience. It will be the crowning glory of the architects and their corps of assistants to see which city can be made the most beautiful. As the home is the world of the wives and mothers, this will interest them. Each house will be supplied with heat, light, power, hot and cold water and other conveniences from central stations. This will be far cheaper than building many individual plants. Every convenience that will lessen the labor of house work will be provided; for it will be what the people want, and the people will be the government, and will use the government for their benefit. There will be no slums nor second-class houses. There will be no need of such, as it will cost so little more to make everything first-class that it would be a waste of labor to make second class, and there will be none who will not be able to live in first-class homes. This is what the Socialists are desirous of doing. We have the materials in nature and the skill in mind to do all this. Then why not have it and enjoy it?—Appeal to Reason
