How Trade is Guided.

The final act in the marine law comedy, which opened with the useless shipment of wheat across the lakes, has just been completed. Space has been engaged in a vessel sailing from New York for 113,000 quarters of Manitoba wheat destined for the British market. This is the wheat which was bought in Manitoba for shipment to Toronto. At Port Arthur no vessels of Canadian register could be found, and the dealers loaded it in American vessels waiting for cargoes. To save Canadian shipping from complete extinction by the protection policy a marine law prevents American vessels from carrying our goods for us from one Canadian port to another. This law often puts shippers to the expense of a useless return trip across the lakes. It imparts to shipping and carrying the nature of an obstacle race, and, in accordance with its mandates, the wheat destined for Toronto was shipped to Buffalo. After complying with American customs regulations the dealers proceeded to bring it back to its final destination, but were confronted with another and more formidable obstacle. The tariff imposed to make farmers believe they receive compensation for protection would have to be paid.

The wheat was now regarded as a foreign product. Even a voyage back to Port Arthur or Port William could not purge it of the sin of riding in an American vessel and bonding in an American custom house. Protectionists may have feared that the dough would be sour and the cakes would not rise if the wheat returned to the Dominion without additional customs difficulties. The wheat could make a successful escape through the republic to the British market, but it would pay the dealers better to bring it to Toronto. For some time there were negotiations with the Canadian customs authorities, but no saving clause could be found for the grain dealers. They have now given up the attempt to get the wheat to its original destination, and have decided to ship it to Britain. The Canadian farmers sold at low prices early in the season. The Canadian dealers lost the advantages of the Canadian market, which would have been more profitable than the British. And the Canadian consumers lost the advantage of an additional supply of good wheat. Of course if Messrs. Foster and Wallace undertook to once more patch up their laws in that regard they would be more than likely to make matters worse.—Globe.

Murder Will Out.

Philadelphia, April 26.—Alfonso F. Cutaier, jr., a grocer at 4929 Lancaster avenue, has been arrested for the murder of his aunt, Johanna Logue, sixteen years ago. The woman was the wife of James Logue, one of the most notorious burglars in the United States. About two years ago the skeleton of a woman was discovered beneath the floor of the kitchen of the house at 1,250 North 11th-street. By a hand satchel and a knowledge that Logue once lived in the house, the skeleton was identified as that of his wife Johanna. Suspicion was immediately directed towards her husband, but the most untiring efforts of the police utterly failed to discover his whereabouts. About two months ago Logue walked into Coroner Ashbridge's house one evening, stating that he had heard that he was accused of the murder of his wife, and that he had come to answer the charge. The old burglar protested his innocence of the crime, and told the coroner a story that helped to unravel the mystery, and led to the arrest of Cutaier. When arrested Cutaier at first protested his innocence, but finally, under close questioning, acknowledged having caused the death of his aunt.

The Newfoundland seal fishing season just ended has been one of the most successful on record. The value of the catch is estimated at about $500,000.

The reservoir on the dyke of the canal at Bousey, near Epinal, France, gave way on Saturday, sweeping away a number of villages, drowning 130 people and doing damage to the amount of $10,000,000.

A leading church member of Winnipeg happened to be out late the other night, and when passing his church going home was astonished to find the organist in her place, playing lively music, to which the members of the choir were holding a dance.
