

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the Fenelon Falls Gazette.

Sir,— There are two old proverbs which read: "Answer not a fool according to his folly, lest thou also be like him," and "Answer a fool according to his folly, lest he be wise in his own conceit." It is in the spirit of the latter that I would encroach upon your space to say a word in reply to your correspondent "Listener."

First, he would do well in remembering that the Presbyterians can attend to their own business without any gratuitous advice from him. If he have any business of his own to attend to, he had better direct his attention towards it, for he is certainly wasting his energies in concerning himself about Presbyterian affairs. He seems also to be quite solicitous about the affairs of the village. Now, he may possess his soul in peace, as the village is in safe hands. With Mr. Dickson as reeve, and with such excellent men around him, the village is secure. Should they buy the old Presbyterian church, they will do so because they consider it a good investment. I am quite satisfied that they know a good bargain as well as "Listener," and that their reputation for honor is equal to his, if not better. Perhaps it would be a good move to place the affairs of the village entirely in his hands, as he knows so thoroughly what ought to be done! The villagers would like to know a little about his own affairs before doing this, especially when there are so many better men. He is, however, big in his own estimation, and that counts for a good deal. "If the present council dare to purchase," etc. Fear and tremble, ye councillors! This man speaks with authority! Oh, where can you find him, that you may confer with him? And the result of it all is that his threats fall like water on a duck's back as far as Presbyterians are concerned, and the council too. The Presbyterians have sold their church, and there is a bona fide agreement to that effect. "Listener" to the contrary notwithstanding. It is a pity that he hears so much. You know people stuff creatures like him.

He has, moreover, the audacity to accuse a very respectable citizen of being long-necked, simply because this gentleman can rise above the grovelling jealousy burning in his own bosom. Now, this quasi gentleman, "Listener," has doubtless two very long members. His tongue is altogether too long, as, apparently with the greatest ease, he can reach out to the affairs of his neighbors and defile them. To speak in a metaphor akin to his own, he could lap water from the bottom of a well. His ears are also far too long, else he could not hear so much. It appears that he could fill the whole paper with what he hears. He must have some connection with the long-eared quadruped not renowned for brilliancy. He can kick though—and bray. Look out, Masons and Presbyterians!

He has also a very high opinion of the villagers, when he thinks that a petition could be secured for the ignominious purposes named. He forgot that there were a few Masons and Presbyterians in the village. He is certainly neither, judging from his capacity of mind and soul.

It is remarkable the petty opposition manifested towards the Presbyterians in their efforts to provide themselves with a comfortable place of worship. Surely this is not returning evil for evil. When the Methodist church was built some 18 years ago, did the Presbyterians show a mean, contemptible, jealous spirit? They did not, but cordially extended their financial and moral support. They may well be proud of it. May they always continue to show a magnanimous spirit towards a sister church. It is degrading to the cause of religion to see such a spirit as is manifested in this village just now, and finds expression through "Listener."
