An Old-Style Landlord.

The belief in the "divine right of kings"—that is, the belief that kings had the right to imprison or execute their subjects, and to do generally as they had a mind to—died out long ago; but the cognate belief in the divine right of landlords is still clung to by some of the landlords themselves, if by nobody else; and amongst the number is Earl Derby, who, while Lord Stanley of Preston, was Governor-General of Canada, and who left before his term had expired in consequence of succeeding to the earldom through the death, without issue, of his elder brother. The "noble lord," as it is the fashion to call him, is a sony looking gentleman, and made quite a favorable impression upon the thousands who flocked to see him when he opened the Central exhibition in Lindsay in 1892; but, despite his nearly four years' contact with the Canadian people—the beneficial effect of which appears to have been counteracted by the influence of the snobs and toadies who surrounded him at Ottawa—tourism is strong in him yet, and ill-will has arisen between him and the tenants on his Flintshire estate because he has tried to close a short-cut foot-path over the hill on his castle domain which they have enjoyed for three generations. The account says that he wants to fence in the hill and the ruins and give admission by ticket; that the indignant villagers tore down the fence as fast as it was built and burnt the notice; and that it was probable that a force of police would be brought out to coerce the crowd, who had expressed a determination to resist. As Earl Derby is exceedingly wealthy, it is hardly likely that he intends to charge for admission to the castle hill—though it is on record that not a mere earl but a duke took pence with his own dual hands for milk from his dairy; but his action in the premises shows what an immense idea he must have of his own power, privileges and importance when he coolly attempted to deprive the common people of a right that they and their ancestors had enjoyed for nearly or quite a hundred years. He is the head of one of the favored families who, though they never earned the price of a suit of clothes or even of a meal's victuals, have the best of everything the world can give, and expect the homage of all who work for a living. They are the beneficiaries of the existing system of private ownership of land, which is the result of fraud or force in bygone times, and is doomed to extinction as surely as the traffic in intoxicating liquors is; and the following true story, which was told a few months ago by Land and Labor, proves that this very Earl Derby, who is now raising the banner of oppression in Flintshire, has to admit that his ancestors acquired the land he now claims by the means by which the collier proposed—quite logically, we think—to take it from his lordship and make it his own:

"Arising out of the recent stoppage in the coal trade, a capital story is worth repeating concerning Lord Derby and a collier. Wandering on some land belonging to Earl Derby, the collier there chanced to meet the owner of Knowsley face to face. His Lordship inquired if the collier knew he was walking on his land. 'Thy land? Well, I've got no land myself,' was the reply, 'and I'm like to walk on somebody's. Where did tha get it fro?' 'Oh,' exclaimed his lordship, 'I got it from my ancestors.' 'An' wheer did they get it fro?' queried the collier. 'They got it from their ancestors,' was the reply. 'An' wheer did their ancestors get it fro?' 'They fought for it.' 'Well, begad,' said the collier, squaring up to the noble earl, 'I'll feight thee for it.'"

The S. A. Harvest Festival.

The annual "Harvest Thanksgiving Festival," inaugurated in 1892 by Commandant H. H. Booth, is to be held this year over the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland on Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, August 31st and September 1st, 2nd and 3rd, and the officers of the various corps are instructed to visit friends and collect from them anything they are able to give, whether in cash or anything else. Everything is fish that comes to the Salvation Army's net, and those who wish to help the cause and have no money to spare may give live stock, farm or dairy produce, domestic manufactures, works of art, dry goods, groceries or hardware, all of which will be disposed of at a sale to be held on the night of Tuesday, September 3rd. The proceeds is to be devoted to clearing poor corps and officers of debt and replenishing the storehouses, "homes" and "shelters" instituted by the Army. The festival is certainly an omnivorous scheme for raising funds, the Commandant's contention being that, though money is scarce, the land is full of good things, and he calls upon those who have enough and to spare to remember those who are not so favorably circumstanced. On first thought it would appear that people so poor in money as not to be able to afford a trifle would not be likely to have any superfluous "good things" to give away; but this is not by any means invariably the case, and very many persons have such an instinctive aversion to parting with hard cash that they will rather give a dollar's worth of something of which they have plenty than half that value in coin of the realm. From one cause or another the "Harvest Festival Scheme" has been a great success so far, and probably will be again. The local officers will commence playing the role of amateur beggars on Tuesday next, and the smallest contribution to the fund, whether in cash or in kind, will be thankfully received.

Canada's Great Exposition, 1895.

Never before in the history of the Toronto Industrial Exhibition, successful as it has been in the past, have entries been anything like so numerous as this season. The fair which opens on the 2nd of September, only a few days hence, continuing until the 14th of the month, will in all departments be the fullest, choicest and most representative of all branches of Canadian industry, skill and art of any ever held. Every building is literally packed with exhibits, and the management have been reluctantly compelled by lack of space to turn away many applicants. The programme of special attractions and entertainments is of a superior order and embraces many novel high-class features. In addition to trotting, running, pacing and hurdle races, bicycle contests, equestrian specialties, balloon ascensions, and other always popular items, the daily programme includes a great Water Fete and Aquatic Exhibition, an entirely novel and unique entertainment presented on an artificial lake in front of the grand stand. It presents a number of beautiful tableaux and a continuous succession of wonderful, exciting and diverting aquatic and acrobatic performances, such as high tower diving, fancy swimming, etc., accompanied with a great variety of vocal and instrumental music and specialty entertainments by artists and companies of world-wide renown. Every evening the proceedings will conclude with the rendition of the grand spectacular military and pyrotechnic pageant, "The Relief of Lucknow," in which over 400 performers will take part, characterized by military marches, nautch dances, battle scenes, and a splendid display of fireworks. Reduced rates on all railways and steamboats, and special excursions from a number of important points in Canada and the United States, will bring an unusually large number of visitors to the Fair. Every one should avail themselves of the opportunity. If you cannot all go to the Fair at once let part of your family go the first week and part the second. It will be equally as good from the opening to the close.

A Good Arrangement.

We have received a circular issued from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, stating that Mr. F. W. Hodson, Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes and Secretary of Associations, has made arrangements with Mr. H. J. Hill, Director of the Toronto Industrial Exhibition, to temporarily remove his (Mr. Hodson's) office from the College building to the Fair grounds at Toronto during the continuance of the show. In accordance with this arrangement, which will be exceedingly convenient for those for whose benefit it has been made, Mr. Hodson will occupy, from September 2nd to the 14th, both days inclusive, a large tent situated east of the pattering, and just between and in front of the horse and cattle sheds. Mr. J. W. Wheaton, B. A., Secretary of the Western Dairymen's Association, will occupy an office in the tent during the second week of the show, and one or more of the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College will be present during the greater part of the time. Officers and members of all Farmers' Institutes, of Live Stock, Dairy, Poultry, Fruit Growers' and kindred Associations are cordially invited to make the tent their headquarters during the time of the Exhibition, and Mr. Borden will be in attendance each day from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m., to discuss with them the best means of advancing the work of the Institutes in their respective districts. There will be a meeting of the Dominion Sheep Breeders' Association at 1 p. m. on Tuesday, September 10th; of the Swine Breeders' Association at 7 p. m. the same day; and of the Cattle Breeders' Association at 7 p. m. on Wednesday, September 11th.

Personals.

Mr. W. R. Madill of Toronto was at the Falls on Tuesday.
Mr. A. Clark, Jr., left last Friday on his usual fall business trip to Winnipeg.
Rev. Moses Metherell, now stationed at Dunsford, was at the Falls on Monday last.
Mr. James Marshall of Uxbridge, for many years a resident of Fenelon Falls, has been here since Friday last.
Miss Polly Douzhy, of Cobocok, and Miss Ella Puley of Little Britain, are visiting at Mr. Henry Puley's at the Falls.
Mrs. J. R. Cogan, of Lindsay, and her daughter Mary, sister and niece of Mrs. Hand, have been at the Falls since Monday.
The Misses Nio returned home on Saturday last from a long visit to relatives at Belleville, Brighton, Trenton and other points.
Mr. Magachen, manager of the Lindsay branch of the Montreal bank, paddled up from Sturgeon Point to the Falls on Tuesday, accompanied by one of his sons and a young lady.
Mrs. Robert Cameron, of Orillia, Washington State, who has been at the Falls since the 22nd of May, left on Tuesday for a short visit to relatives in Kingston and Toronto before returning home. Her sister-in-law, Miss Mary Cameron, will join her in Toronto and accompany her to Orillia.
Mr. R. M. Butler of Barrie, formerly in business at the Falls, was here on Wednesday. He tells us that the report that his elder brother, Joshua John, was heir to a title and estate rested upon a good foundation, and that J. J.'s agent is now at work gathering evidence to prove his claim, of the validity of which there is but little doubt.

Powles's Corners.

(Correspondence of the Gazette.)

Last Saturday morning about one o'clock two young men were returning home from the circus, and stopped at a house and applied for stable room for a sick horse and feed for the two of them till morning. We are always ready and willing any hour of the day or night to help any person in distress, but there doesn't seem to be much charity in helping anyone that leaves his money and brains in a hotel. Hotel-keepers make it their business to extract the last cent from drunkards and give them in exchange soul ruining stuff. It is too bad that dumb animals are at the mercy of heartless, drunken wretches. If we had prohibition there would be no such work. There are lots of church members who pray that the time may soon come when intoxication shall be driven from our land, and the next day they go straightway and vote for political suckers.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Palmer have the heartfelt sympathy of this community in their sad bereavement, but there is a consolation held out to them by our Heavenly Father, which is able to bear them up.

The McGee Bros. have a good-sized patch of ensilage corn that has attained the height of 12 feet and is not done growing yet. This is a sample of the crops that these gentlemen grow. They have not sold a bushel of grain for the last two years. It is all fed at home, and they always have lots of good manure to put back on the land.

Last spring W. H. Powles planted out two dozen raspberry bushes of the Shaffer's Colossal variety, from Chase Bros.' nursery, and some of the bushes have made a growth of new wood of 6 feet 5 inches, and the berries cannot be beaten for size and flavor.

Mrs. Ward and family have returned to their home in Cobourg, after spending a few weeks at the parental home, Mr. John Cullis's.

Butter, eggs, etc., taken in exchange at Mrs. R. McDougall's.
