CAN YOU AFFORD TO SAVE

2c. a day for 7 1/2 years and get $100
10c. a day for 7 1/2 years and get $500
20c. a day for 7 1/2 years and get $1,000

LITTLE AND OFTEN FILLS THE PURSE.

Do you want to buy a home with the money you now pay for rent? So long as the masses of the people do not save anything out of their earnings, just so long will their spendings go into the hands of those who do save, and they are the capitalists. This is why the few own the houses and the many pay the rent.

FOR FULL PARTICULARS call on or address any of the above named officials, at Fenelon Falls. —39-1yr.

New York is "Dry."

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—There is not a doubt that the saloon people have capitulated. A few saloons were open today to the friends of the keeper, and, in some instances, to his enemies, for there were a few arrests; but the saloon keeper who braves the law has found out that it does not pay, not only because of the penalty if he gets caught, but because the people have become educated up to the fact that, if they do not want a long chase and possible punishment at the end of it, they had better provide their liquor in the house on Saturday, and this they are doing more every week. It is doubtful if this city has ever seen a mid-September Sunday like to-day. The heat and the excise enforcement combined served to make the city look like a desert or a town stricken with the plague. There was a large exodus from town, the steamboats which had not discontinued their trips carrying great crowds. The Bowery was deserted, and on Broadway at 3 o'clock there were counted just twenty persons from 34th to 23rd streets, and these looked as if they wished they were somewhere else. Few of them were New Yorkers. The rest of the streets were on a par with this, and New York appeared to be deserted. There is no doubt that the police have won, and New York is "dry."

The police effort to day towards a better enforcement of the law was directed towards the Turkish bath establishments. Until to-day these places were not interfered with. On Saturday afternoon officers in citizen's clothes visited each Turkish bath in the city, and warned the management that they must not sell any drinks on Sunday. It was useless for them to plead that they ran a hotel, and that each man that came in rented a room, and that he was entitled to be served on that account. The police said simply that the managers did not have a hotel license, and that ended the matter.

Tried to Destroy His Sight.

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Ever since Oliver Curtis Perry, the train robber, returned from Matteawan to a closely-guarded cell in Auburn prison he has been in a morose mood, varied by frequent outbursts of violence. The most desperate act he has ever attempted was committed on Tuesday of this week, but, through the reticence of the prison officials, it has been kept a secret until now. He procured a short stick, through which he thrust two saddlers' needles the same distance apart as his eyes, and then, holding this peculiar instrument of torture in his hands, he repeatedly prodded his eyes with the sharp points. A keeper heard the commotion in Perry's cell, and he promptly put a stop to the horrible self-punishment. He took the weapon away from the crazed man, and reported the case to his superior officer. Prison Physician Sawyer attempted to make an examination of the bleeding, lacerated eyes, but Perry was obstinate and would not submit. He begged to go to the hospital, but the prison authorities would not listen to that proposition. They knew of Perry's desire to enjoy the comparative freedom of the hospital, where his chances of escaping would be materially increased. So, instead of being taken there, Perry was removed to one of the isolated cells in the new building. Here he was put under the influence of chloroform, and a careful examination of the injuries was made. It was discovered that the needle had not yet destroyed the sight of either eye, but the unruly patient resists treatment so persistently that inflammation may develop, and the result will probably be blindness of one or both eyes.

A Skeleton Found.

HAMILTON, Sept. 21.—While excavating for a cellar near 52 Magill street, one of Contractor Faulkner's men yesterday morning dug up a human skeleton with a fractured skull. Alfred Green, the workman who unearthed the bones, stuck his pick into the skull about two feet below the surface. Continuing, he found the other bones buried in the sandy loam, and putting them together formed a complete skeleton. The frame was that of a person of large stature. Coroner White's examination showed that the remains belonged to a man. The jaws were big and square. The skull was of ordinary size, the forehead low and receding, and the back of the head well developed. Over the left temple was a fracture of long standing. The bones were dry and devoid of flesh. Interment, it was concluded, must have taken place from six to ten years ago. A few years ago the locality, which is near Vinegar Hill, was a resort for cockfighters and such like, and it is thought that the man was knocked on the head at some sporting bout and quietly laid away. The lot was till a few years ago owned by Mrs. James Jones, DeGrassi street, Toronto. No inquest will be held and the bones will be interred.

The Fury of Vesuvius.

FOUR FIERY STREAMS ARE NOW FLOWING FROM ITS CRATER.

Since the renewed activity of the volcano Vesuvius changes made by the volcanic forces have become very evident. Two new eruptive craters have opened up on the northwestern side of the cone below the former summit. At first only a little lava flowed from the new rents. During the first week of July one of these rents increased in size until it reached to the foot of the cinder cone. From this crevice a lava stream of nearly 200 feet wide flows with great rapidity toward the hills of Crocella, and has by this time crossed the road from the observatory to the station of the cable railway. A heavy rain of ashes accompanied this eruption, and has continued ever since.

A great number of sightseers are coming to Naples to admire the wonderful spectacle of Vesuvius in activity. The last reports announce that four fiery streams are now descending the sides of the volcano, of which the one flowing towards Resina has already destroyed two vineyards. Prof. Palmieri of the meteorological observatory had two immense stone walls built for the protection of the buildings. It is feared, however, that this protection will be too feeble to withstand the enormous pressure brought upon it by the stream of lava which is overflowing the crater at that point with a thickness of at least 20 feet. The heat is now almost unbearable. The largest eruptive crater has formed in the "Atrio del Cavallo," the saddle between Vesuvius and the Somma. The lava flow from this crater has formed by this time a large lake between the Colle del Salvatore and the military rifle range. Next to this new crater two cones are forming and steadily rising. They emit immense sheaves of flames, which cast a red glow over all the surroundings. A peculiar phenomenon, never before observed, is the whistling sound emitted by one of the craters, resembling a locomotive whistle. It seems that the seismic forces are not particularly active this year. A new crater has formed on the eastern side of the Etna and further volcanic eruptions are announced from Stromboli.—Cor. Philadelphia Record.

Cuban Affairs.

Cuban affairs are followed closely in England, where letters from the island are constantly appearing in the press. The situation is regarded as critical for the Spanish Government, since the monarchy cannot survive the loss of Cuba, or even the grant of home rule to the island. Marshal Campos is supposed to be making a tremendous effort to overrun the country with troops and stamp out the rebellion quickly. The financial difficulties in Madrid are great and render the raising of a new Cuban loan almost impracticable; yet that is the only method of paying for the enormous expenses of the war. One phase of the Cuban question is never discussed publicly in England; that is, the relations of the island to the United States, the only market where its chief crops can be sold. In private this branch of the subject is not neglected. One of the best known colonial Governors in the British service is freely quoted as expressing his surprise that the United States does not adopt a policy which will lead to the annexation of Cuba.

The London Globe prints a despatch from Shanghai, saying that the British cruisers Aeolus, Spartan, Rainbow and Caroline assembled unexpectedly at the outer anchorage to-day and subsequently proceeded to Yang Tee Kang river. The movement was made in consequence of threats having been made against foreigners residing in the interior of the Empire. The Chinese officers, the despatch adds, are greatly excited over the action taken by Great Britain for the protection of her subjects.
