The Order and Disorder.

(From The Canadian Manufacturer.)

The Massey-Harris Company, implement manufacturers, Toronto, are in communication with the Detroit Manufacturers' Club, with the object of procuring a site for a big factory in the United States, probably in that city. The Company desires to get free iron and other materials for their products, and this they cannot get while a heavy tax on iron, paint, etc., is levied by the Ottawa Government. The Liberal platform provides for free raw material for the manufacturer.—London Advertiser.

Is this constant threatening about the Massey-Harris Company removing their works to the United States never to cease? It has become exceedingly monotonous and tiresome. It might be imagined that if the event should occur the stars in their courses would stop in amazement that such a thing should be allowed—certainly that the whole political and social fabric of Canada's existence would melt and dissolve like frost in a warm sunshine. The Dominion Government, in a moment of weakness, allowed themselves to be bulldozed by this concern into giving them free malleable iron, free paint, free lumber, free everything entering into the construction of their agricultural machinery—that is, allowing them a drawback of ninety-nine per cent. of any duty that might be paid by them on whatever materials they might import. They had represented to the Government that without this favor—without having all their so-called material substantially free of duty—they could not compete with American manufacturers in foreign markets. They had shown to the Government that the handicapping under which they labored in having to pay duty on their raw materials, or what they said was the same thing, for materials of Canadian production to which the duty had been added to the cost thereof, was of such an onerous nature that they would be compelled to move out of the country if their demand were not complied with. They obtained the concession and what is the result? During the last session of the House of Commons, in reply to questions put to him in the matter, Mr. Wallace, Controller of Customs, stated that 3,385 self-binding harvesters were exported from Canada during the year 1894, all of which were manufactured by the Massey-Harris Company; the average amount of drawback on account of duty allowed and paid to them on the raw materials entering into the construction of each harvester being $2 87 9-10, the total amount of drawback paid being $10,083.91.

The Massey-Harris people were good enough protectionists as long as protection benefited them, for protection gave them the virtual control of the whole Canadian market; and that is all that protection could promise to any industry. They make excellent machines, sell them at reasonable prices, and have no foreign competition whatever. But why should they desire to destroy other Canadian industries to the end that they might with greater profit to themselves engage in foreign trade? Shall other manufacturers be driven out of business and hundreds of Canadian workmen thrown out of employment to the end that the Massey-Harris Company may gain an additional $2.87 upon each machine they export? But that is just the effect being produced by the Order in Council allowing them a drawback of duty.

All this talk about the Massey-Harris Company moving their works to the United States is the veriest nonsense. They will never do it, and the sooner the Government and the community recognize this fact the better for all concerned. Canada existed before them, and will no doubt exist even if they should take their departure. But they will not depart. They say that the machines made by them are all covered by patents, which is, no doubt, true. We understand that the concern own or control a very large number of patents covering their products. The protection afforded them by these patents is operative only in Canada; and we are informed that other concerns being owners or controllers of the same patents in the United States, are manufacturing identically the same machines here. And that is why the Massey-Harris Company will not remove their works to the United States, for, not being owners of the American patents, they could not manufacture there.

We again call attention to the fact that the Dominion Government, to enable the Massey-Harris Company to save $2.86 upon each machine they export, are sacrificing some of our most valuable industries, and antagonizing an element that has always been its firm and staunch supporter. The effect of the Order in Council is to force the Canadian manufacturers of iron and iron products, paints, varnishes and all other materials entering into the construction of agricultural implements, to reduce the price of their goods to the American level, and to sacrifice every vestige of benefit supposed to accrue to them by the imposition of duty upon such things when imported. If the Massey-Harris Company imported all these materials, the Government would give them a drawback of ninety-nine per cent. of the duty paid them. If our home manufacturers supply these materials it must be at no higher prices than the imported materials, but they obtain no drawback because their products are not exported by them, and so it is that these various industries are being ruined. If the Massey-Harris Company and other manufacturers must be encouraged in engaging in the export business, it should not be at the expense of other industries. It would be far better for the Government to pay a bounty of $2.87 each upon all exported harvesters than to kill off half a dozen other industries by the pernicious effects of the unfortunate Order in Council.

Locomotives Her Cargo.

The entire cargo of twenty Baldwin oil-burning locomotives was loaded on the British steamship Turret Bay, and she steamed away from the Port Richmond piers the other day on her long voyage to Novorossisk, a Russian port on the Black Sea. The engines are the largest ever built by the Baldwin Locomotive Works, weighing ninety-seven tons each, and have special fire boxes for burning petroleum. The tenders hold the oil instead of wood and coal. Five of the tenders will be carried on deck, and the shippers have so much confidence in the Turret Bay's steadiness and stability, even in the most severe weather, that they consider them as safe stowed outside as down in the vessel's hold. The passage will be straight across the Atlantic to Gibraltar, and thence through the Mediterranean to the Black Sea, over 5,000 miles in a direct course. The steamer will be obliged to make several stops for bunker coal, which will lengthen the passage. The locomotives, which are the first built in the United States in many years for Russia, are for the Trans-Caucasian Railroad, and are peculiarly adapted to mountainous countries. The balance of the order, twenty engines, will be shipped in January. Half of the locomotives are for passenger service and half for freight.

A Labor Preacher's Sentiments.

LYNN, Mass., Jan. 6.—In the labor church here yesterday Rev. Herbert Cassou preached on "War and the Monroe Doctrine." During his sermon he said:

"While the hard times grow harder and the industrial war is slaying its tens of thousands every year, Cleveland dares to threaten two great nations with war. Cleveland, the Judas of free trade, elected President under false pretences; that second Buchanan brought down to date in legal trickery and bluff; that lightweight in everything but fat. He fancies it would be a change to carry a gun instead of a bottle. He thinks blood is as cheap as beer. He wants to make bullets fly instead of corks. Imagine him at the head of an army, in a steel boiler half full of beer kegs to throw at the enemy, dragged along on a six-wheeled wagon by 10 other fat oxen. Cleveland is like a 7-year-old kid in a quishop, and the American people will not allow him to go fooling around the powder barrel. He is fast establishing a dictatorship and proving the need of direction legislation on all important matters. He may have been drunk when he wrote that message; Salisbury may have been drunk when he replied, and two such incapable fat-heads are allowed to stir up strife between two peaceful nations."

Two lads fought to a finish in New York on Saturday night for a bit of $10, and after the battle one of the combatants, Enrique Rodriguez son of a Cuban mother, was carried home and left at his mother's doorstep dead.
