

Frozen Milk.

AN INDUSTRY THAT PROMISES TO BE PROFITABLE, AND MIGHT BE ADOPTED IN CANADA.

Canada's representative in Denmark reports that during the past year a new industry has been established there, which promises to prove both profitable and serviceable, and which might be followed with equal success on this side of the water, viz., the shipment of frozen milk to large cities. A year ago a Danish merchant experimented in this direction by taking Danish milk, which is peculiarly delicate and rich in flavor, freezing it by the use of ice and salt, and sending it in barrels by rail and steamer to London. On its arrival the milk proved to be as sweet and as well tasting as if it had been just drawn from a cow in the middle of Sweden. The milk was so much in demand and proved so profitable an article of commerce that the exporter immediately took out a patent on the shipment of frozen milk from Sweden and Denmark to London. He then sold the patent to a stock company with large capital, which on February 1st last bought one of the largest Swedish creameries, converted it into a factory, and, having put in a special freezing apparatus, began on May 1st the export of frozen milk in large quantities.

When the milk is received from the farmers it is pasteurized, that is, heated to 75 degrees C., and then immediately cooled to about 10 degrees C., and now the freezing is commenced. Half of the milk is filled into cans and placed in the freezing apparatus, where it will be thoroughly frozen in the course of three hours. The frozen milk is then filled into barrels of pine, the only kind of wood that can be used. The barrels, however, are only half filled with this frozen milk, the balance being filled with unfrozen milk. This way of packing has proved to be the only practical one, as part of the milk has to be frozen in order to get the whole cold, and part has to be in a flowing state in order to get the barrels exactly full, which is necessary in order to avoid too much shaking up on the road, by which the cream would be turned into butter; the floating masses of ice at the same time prevent the frozen milk in setting the cream. Milk which is treated in this way has proved to keep quite fresh for 26 days. Every barrel holds 1,000 pounds of milk, and twice a week there will be shipped 50 barrels, making in all about 100,000 pounds of milk a week. The milk is shipped to Newcastle, and from there by rail to large manufacturing cities, where it is sold in the streets or in retail stores. It is reported that the patent has been bought for Ireland also at a cost of over $200,000, which proves how much the stock company expect from this new enterprise. The time may not be far away when the dairy farms of the New England and Western States may be sending, not butter and cheese, but frozen milk and cream, to the large cities of both continents.—Buffalo Express.

To Candle Eggs.

Have a room as dark as you can or use a box 12 by 16 inches in size painted black inside. Stand it on its end and open one side 8 inches from the bottom. All above 8 inches closed, set the box with this open side towards you and set the light in it. Nail a piece to the bottom, under front edge with the top of box back, this will enable you to see better. This box can be used in any place, though it is better in a dark place. Take such light as you have; the best candle use common candles. Take two or three eggs in left hand and the egg you candle in right hand and hold sideways between you and the light, as close to the light as you can and let it rub against one of the eggs in left hand; some are quite particular about this as the eggs reflect the light through each other; turn the egg around until you are satisfied you have tested it. Take a strictly fresh egg as a standard to judge by. If a place like the vacuum in a mason's spirit level appears on the upper side as you turn the egg, it is not strictly fresh; though if this vacuum is small and the egg is alright otherwise it may be comparatively fresh. A dark or black spot indicates a poor egg; the white of a stale egg also looks thin and watery. Remember, dark shelled eggs are thicker shelled and do not candle as easy as white ones. You can only learn by breaking suspicious ones and it requires much practice to excel.

The amount of fruit which a single tree can produce year after year is a question of very great interest to biologists. At Hampton Court, in England, there is a grape vine which has been permitted to occupy the whole glass house. This one grape vine has been bearing grapes for nearly a century, and occupies an area of 2,250 square feet. It is estimated that during the vine's existence there have been at least 120,000 pounds of ripe grapes gathered from it.

At a Disadvantage.

HIS SENTIMENTS WERE SATISFACTORY, BUT HIS VOICE WAS AGAINST HIM.

"I have come this evening, Miss Mildred, to begin the youth, fingering his hat nervously and clearing his throat, "to ask you—that is"

He cleared his throat again, swallowed a lump that seemed to go down hard, and resumed:

"I came this evening to tell you, Miss Mildred, that—h'm—that whether I—h'm—ever come again or not will depend on your reply to what I—to what I came to say this evening."

"Why, Mr. Spoonamore," said the young lady, "what can you mean?"

"I mean, Miss Billiwik—Miss Mildred—that the time has come when I can no longer—h'm—can no longer pretend to hide from myself the knowledge that I—h'm—have become too deeply interested in you to endure the thought that some other man may win the prize on which I have set my heart."

His voice was growing more husky, but he went on:

"I feel that I am laboring under a disadvantage, Miss Mildred, and yet—h'm—if you knew the strength of the—h'm—of the feeling that moves me—that compels me, I might say, to run the risk of—h'm—of seeming to be in too big a hurry, you would understand why I have come to say—h'm—to say what I have come to say this evening, H'm."

"Don't you think, Mr. Spoonamore"—

"Miss Mildred, a man in my condition doesn't think! He can't think! He can only—h'm—he can only feel. That is—h'm—what ails me. If you would—would only—help me out."

"Mr. Spoonamore," said the young woman, in whose eyes there shone the light of sweet and tender pity. "if I had your voice I would go and get it saud-papered."—Chicago Tribune.

The Medical Examiner.

This is the usual experience of the man in perfect physical condition who makes application for a life insurance policy:

Medical Examiner—How old are you? Applicant—Twenty-five.

Medical Examiner—Um! Most critical period in life. Habits not formed. May go to the dogs at any time. Now, if you were twenty years older we might—but that can't be helped now. Have to make the best of it. Bad! Bad! Well, do you drink?

Applicant—I have never tasted a drop of any kind of liquor.

Medical examiner—No? Bad stomach, no doubt. Can't stand the irritating influence of alcohol. With such a stomach I suppose the heart is not as strong as it might be. Do you smoke or chew tobacco?

Applicant—I have never used tobacco in any form.

Medical examiner—Of course. It is just as I supposed. Your heart is too weak for tobacco. Bad stomach, weak heart—the usual combination. Bad! Very bad! Have you ever had pneumonia?

Applicant—Never had a cold of any kind since I was a baby.

Medical examiner—Certainly not. It would be remarkable if it were otherwise. A man with your bad stomach and weak heart must stay in the house nearly all the time and take extraordinary care of himself. Sad case, indeed. Bad stomach, weak heart, life spent indoors—well, have you had any of these diseases? (Names forty-three.)

Applicant—Never had a touch of any of them.

Medical examiner—I dare say you did not. With all these complaints to which you have confessed, you could not well have any more and be living. I don't want to discourage you, but I really think—anyhow I will lay your case before our medical board and you will be informed of the result. Poor fellow! Good day.—Judge.

Greek Joined Greek.

"This bill," protested the man at the window, "calls for $2.64 for gas burned in June, and there wasn't anybody in the house during the entire month to my certain knowledge."

"The meter tells a different story, sir," replied the cashier at the gas company's office, "and we have to go by the meter; $2.64 is right."

"Well, I'll pay it," said the other, taking out his pocketbook with great apparent reluctance. "Your name, I think, is Ruggles. Here is your ice bill for last February, amounting to $2.96. We have called your attention to it several times, but you have always refused to pay it on the ground that you did not know any ice was left at your door during that month, and you didn't need it. It wasn't our fault if you didn't know it. The books show that the ice was left there, and we have to go by the books. The difference is 32 cents, and if you will just hand over the amount"—

Here they clinched.
