Methodist Young People Declare Their Principles.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE BELLEVILLE CONVENTION.

1. We emphatically express our sympathy and co-operation with all who labor in the Temperance Reform, and we urge our Leagues to hold temperance meetings, and suggest that all our members become pledged temperance workers.

2. In view of the efforts being made to secure changes in the law permitting the desecration of the Sabbath Day, and also in view of the desecration caused by excursions, the violation of the liquor law, bicycle riding, visiting, etc., we earnestly exhort our young people to resist every encroachment upon the privileges secured to society by its proper observance.

3. Realizing the importance of Junior Societies, we would suggest that more Junior League literature be given out, and that each Senior League shall organize as soon as possible a junior department. We would also recommend correspondence with our Superintendent of junior work regarding organization.

4. We recognize with thankfulness the fact that within this Conference alone we have an army of 10,500 pledged members in our societies. We would remind ourselves of the strength that develops wherever there is fidelity to the pledges taken. The pledge is a continued blessing to a faithful member, and marked fidelity to it will make our societies everywhere helpful factors in church work and for the betterment of society.

5. To awaken and foster a missionary spirit, we recommend that regular missionary meetings be held, suitable literature be circulated and that a regular or systematic plan be adopted for the raising of money for the extension of the Redeemer's Kingdom. It is important that the missionary department be organized in all our societies, and that correspondence be had with our Missionary Vice-President, or with the Mission Rooms, or the Women's Missionary Society regarding missionary objects and funds. We are hopeful of having deputations appointed from our District Meetings to visit the Leagues in the interest of missions.

6. We believe that the scriptural method of raising money is by systematic and proportionate giving, and we suggest that in all our societies time be allowed for the discussion of the principle of systematic beneficence, that we discourage giving by proxy, such as parents paying for children, and that the giving of at least one tenth of our income be urged upon all.

7. A resolution of sympathy with Armenia was passed, and it was determined that after paying the expenses of the convention, the balance of the collections should be given to the Armenian fund. The amount forwarded was $8.

A Dodge to Fool Ontario.

All this talk about the probability of a friendly settlement of the school difficulty between the Dominion Government and the Manitoba Government is part of a game to divert public attention from the Remedial bill. Ontario is to be amused with suggestions of a probable compromise in order that the province may not bring pressure upon the Conservative members to oppose the Remedial bill in its second reading.

The Government, as well as the Remedial bill, was endangered by the growing indignation of Ontario. The province's anger against the Remedial bill would have been expressed in letters and telegrams to Conservative members. All this talk of compromise is an attempt to head off these demonstrations of hostility. Sir Donald A. Smith's visit may have temporarily quieted Ontario's hostility to the Remedial bill. That hostility has died out, and if a brief lull in the tempest induces Ontario Conservatives to sail out to the rescue of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, they will be lost in the storm which will break in all its fury at the polls.—Telegram.

A "smart" Chicago reporter mailed an imitation bomb to Mr. Philip D. Armour, and then wrote a sensational story on the subject, which he was able to dispose of as news.

Mrs. Bowman Ames, of Blanchard, Me., has shot a large deer and trapped five foxes near her home this winter without aid from any one.

Watch for the Balloon.

NORTHWEST INDIANS WARNED BY THE SWEDISH GOVERNMENT.

WINNIPEG, March 7.—The proposed scheme of three Swedish scientific gentlemen to undertake the venturesome task of trying to reach the north pole by means of a balloon is attracting attention here. The King of Sweden and Norway is taking much interest in the matter, and through the Swedish Minister in England has asked the co-operation of the Hudson Bay Co. to advise the Indians and Esquimaux of the far north of what a balloon looks like, and to lend aid if necessary. Accordingly a sketch of a balloon has been made and explanations attached. These are being sent to the numerous posts of the company throughout Canada. The instructions state that "in the summer of 1896 a balloon may be seen floating in the air. This balloon will convey a party of three Swedish scientists, who have been making explorations towards the north pole by these means. The Government of Sweden and Norway has requested that the explorers may receive all possible assistance. Natives should therefore be told that the balloon is not a dangerous thing, but merely a mode of conveyance in the air just as a ship is in water. If the people arrive, having lost the balloon, the natives to be told to give them all possible assistance. It is requested that the travellers be supplied with passports and all necessary official documents, the names being Solomon August Andree, aged 42; Dr. Nils Gustaf Ekholm, aged 48, and Mr. Nils Strundberg, aged 24."

Our Humorists.

The death of Nye, the humorist, is a severe blow to the Journal, which had but recently captured him from the World, and considered him a first-class "card." Nye's humor was peculiar and always had some keen points. I well remember that when Jay Gould went to Europe, "Bill Nye," (as he termed himself), supplied the World with Gould's "foreign letters," which were very neat hits. The humorist is generally one of the best-paid men in literature, but he must have a bona gift, for there is no greater botch than an artificial joke. Our humorists have all made money, though it has generally been very transitory. Artemus Ward had a large income, and was rich enough to contribute $5,000 to the Union cause during the civil war, but after his death little was found. Mark Twain made a fortune by his witty publications, but lost all and is now making another struggle for success. Nye has received liberal pay, and ought to leave a handsome estate, but this is doubtful, and, indeed, some may think it strange that "funny money" should be so evanescent. This, however, is nothing new, for the most humorous thing of its day was the Beggars' opera (played in London), which brought its author a small fortune, but it quickly vanished. This was more than a century and a half ago, but the rule seems to have held good ever since. Tom Hood was the best humorist of his day, but he died poor, and how many other instances might be mentioned.—American paper.

Druggists to Raise Prices.

Canadian manufacturers of patent medicines have decided to advance prices to wholesalers on April 1st. This action is at the request of the Retail Druggists' Association and is the beginning of war with the departmental stores, which have been cutting prices in these lines. The retail druggists informed the manufacturers that unless they quit dealing with firms selling goods at less than registered prices they would quit handling patent medicines. Consequently this attempt is being made to keep the prices up to the former figures and drive departmental stores out of the patent medicine business.

If the bill of Mr. J. I. Green (Dem., N. Y.) repealing certain sections of the penal code, is passed, suicide will no longer be a crime. The penalty for attempted and unsuccessful suicide is two years' imprisonment, or $1,000 fine, or both, under the penal code at present. The amendment strikes out the provision for penalty against the person attempting suicide, but leaves in the section that makes it a crime to aid and abet a suicide, terming it a manslaughter in the first degree.
