

the set day. The Messrs. Brandon did a great job in removing some very large boulders, which were sailed out by means of two span of horses hitched to the one stone, reminding one at the same time of the removal of the historic Plymouth Rock, the chief difference being that there was no blowing about it, save only by the teams. Messrs. Wilson and Herron also assisted very generously in work of a similar nature. The pupils also deserve great praise for the active part they played, not only on this day, but for their wisdom and forethought in outlining the work to be accomplished previous to its return. But as the poet has said—

"Labor with what zeal we will,
Something still remains undone,
Something uncompleted still Waits the rising of the sun."

It is to be hoped that others in the section, seeing the good work which is begun, will take courage, and labor to complete and improve on it. A noted divine once took into the pulpit a sermon without observing that the first leaf or two were so worn and eaten away that he could not decipher or announce the text. "My brethren," said he, "I find that the mice have made free with the beginning of my sermon, so that I cannot tell you where the text is; but we'll just begin where the mice left off, and we'll find out the text as we go along." Now if the trustees or some of the ratepayers will just commence where the others left off, you'll find out the work remaining to be done as you go along. I must also say, in reference to the forenoon's work, that if the school grounds displayed a touch of masculine work, so also did the school-room display a touch of feminine work and feminine worth, and the pupils, mingling in beautiful confusion, showed that the place belonged to them, while the teacher vied with all in showing that he too had an interest there. There is something in this day that makes you feel buoyant, lively and altogether contented with everything and everybody, after all. You can climb the hill in your neighborhood and look around, and it tells you it's a splendid world. You can get on the grass and look at the trees, listen to the birds and pick the flowers, and you'll find your heart going right up from nature to nature's God. You need not titter and giggle, but laugh out loud. You can also hear a child's soft, rippling laugh, a boy's don't-care merriment or a man's hearty laugh, all contributing towards making us happier for the hearing.

Rosedale.

(Correspondence of the Gazette.)

Mr. H. Austin has bought a fine lot of fat cattle on this point. Good luck to Harry.

Mr. Wm. Irvine has all the material on the ground to build a fine hog pen this summer; also Smith & Son to build a stone foundation under their stable.

Fall wheat looks well. Seeding near Rosedale done.

Mr. Daniel Esson received a kick from one of his horses, and is now improving slowly under the care of Dr. Laurie of Cobocok....Mrs. Green is getting better....Miss Emily Perrin, we are sorry to say, is not improving very fast.

DAINTY SPRING HATS in the latest styles and patterns, at Mrs. R. McDougall's.

THE COSGROVES.—The new Cosgrove Company, which has been entirely remodeled, will give an entertainment in Dickson's hall, Fenelon Falls, this (Friday) evening, and will present a number of new and striking features. The company is better this season than ever, and is highly spoken of by the press. Admission 25c. and 15c. See posters.

My stock is well chosen and the best to be had in Fenelon Falls. Mrs. R. McDougall.

THE EVA BURNED.—The well-known steamer Eva was burned to the water's edge at Lindsay about 3 o'clock on Sunday morning. The watchman at the Rathbun Co's mill, on the opposite side of the river, says that he saw two men kindle a fire at each end of the boat, and several persons are suspected. The Eva was owned by Mrs. R. D. Thexton, and was insured for $1,200.

WHY WEAR YOUR OLD HAT when you can get a new one so cheap and pretty at Mrs. R. McDougall's?

THE GOLD CURE.—Mr. A. H. Melville, travelling agent for the Oakville Gold Cure Sanitarium, visited Fenelon Falls last week in the interests of that institution. Judging from Mr. Melville's greatly changed and improved appearance, we can cheerfully recommend any one suffering from the effects of intemperance to take a course of treatment at Oakville. This is the most successful institution of its kind in the Dominion, and it is doing a good work.

A special line of Hats to be sold cheap on Saturday, at Mrs. R. McDougall's.

OPTICAL.—Mr. I. Whitesmith, optician, of Manilla, will be at Mrs. Hamilton's store, Fenelon Falls, on Friday, May 15th, from 1 until 3 p. m. A call solicited. Sight tested free of charge.

ACCIDENTS.—On Tuesday morning a young man named William Kerr had a gash over two inches long but not very deep cut in the back of his right hand by a hand-saw in the box-factory. Dr. Wilson, to whom he went, put in a couple of stitches and bound up the wound, which will not amount to much. The next morning F. W. Phillip, an employee in the planing mill below the box-factory, had the tip of the second finger of his left hand taken off by the "cut-off" saw, but the bone was not injured.

WATCH for the bargains in Mrs. McDougall's windows on Saturday.

PUBLIC SCHOOL ITEMS.—A departmental examination in drawing was held last week in the senior department of our public schools. It was the first examination of the kind ever held in Fenelon Falls and embraced freehand, perspective, geometric, memory and model drawing. Mr. Thomas Robinson presided, and the candidates who wrote speak in the highest terms of him.... Mr. H. Reasin, Public School Inspector, has again paid his semi-annual visit to Fenelon Falls, and reports the schools to be in the best working condition in which he has ever found them. He seemed highly pleased with the progress they are making and predicts good results in the future.

PRODUCE taken in exchange at Mrs. R. McDougall's.—7

A BAD FALL.—Last Saturday afternoon Mr. James Knox's eldest son, Percy, aged about 13, got a bad fall while descending an almost perpendicular wall of rock to a spot where the slide stream strikes the opposite shore of the Fenelon river, and where, consequently, suckers are generally to be found in large numbers during the running season, which is now at its height. On the face of the bank, which is about fifteen feet high, there are so many crevices and projecting stones that the village boys go up and down without much difficulty or danger, but by some means Percy missed his footing when he had descended about one third of the distance, and fell nearly or quite ten feet on to a flat rock close to the edge of the water. He alighted on his shoulders and head and was badly shaken and somewhat bruised, but fortunately was not seriously injured. As he was alone and nobody responded to his shouts, he at length determined to try and climb the bank, which he did with less trouble than he expected, and at the top was met by his father and two or three others who had heard of his fall and were hurrying to the rescue. He was helped home and the doctor was sent for, but there wasn't much for him to do, and on Tuesday Master Percy was at school again.

A mastodon's skull, in a fine state of preservation, was dug up at Buchanan, Mich., near the Indian boundary, a few days ago. It measures two and one-half feet in width and has four perfect teeth. The teeth measure about four inches by six and one-half inches.

Nasr-ed-Din, Shah of Persia, was shot dead by a fanatic last Friday while walking to the door of a mosque in which he was about to worship. He is said to have been the best ruler Persia ever had, but he thought nothing of having a few of his subjects strangled or deprived of their ears.

The Duke of York has a double, William Reginald Roberts by name, who travelled all over England in first-class carriages, and the guards never thought of asking him for a ticket. One day William was travelling down to Windsor in his customary princely style. Joseph Chamberlain happened to be aboard the same train, and, hearing that the Duke of York was in the next compartment, decided to go in at the next station and pay his respects. "His Grace" is now doing a term in the House of Correction.

CARTER

Has now in full swing a 366 days' Sale. This is no thirty days' sale, but a genuine sale to last one year, and leap year at that. We have now a $37,000 stock, marked and ready for you, and our buyers are still on the search for bargains to keep this sale booming for 366 days. We are thankful that we have plenty of ready cash at our disposal to overcome any obstacle, for it's the ready cash that makes the price right. Remember, there is only one Carter in the dry goods and clothing business in Lindsay, and he is called the poor people's friend. This is no forced sale, but a genuine organized sale, to last one year, to help the buying public to tide over the hard times. Now, think of the loss to us at the end of the year. Now show your appreciation of our undertaking by helping to boom this 366 days' sale. Shout the good news to your neighbors, talk the matter over, get up a special excursion. Carter will do all he can to help you. As newspaper space is expensive, we cannot enumerate our whole stock, so come with the crowds and you will be paid tenfold.
