

A TIGER HUNT IN INDIA.

Fate of a Guide Who Did a Foolhardy Thing in the Jungle.

Dr. J. H. Porter describes his Indian guide, who showed him a tiger's lair, as a lean, black, wolf-like man whose name was Sikunder Singh, who was a monomaniac about tigers.

There are said to be stylish tigers and others not stylish. The lordly tiger is the man eater. He is at once the hero and the aristocrat of the race, and where he roams the cattle killer must be silent, for the man eater, though sprung from the lowly ranks of wild beast hunters and risen through the middle class of cattle killers, brooks not the boasting in the roar of an inferior. It is in the absence of cattle during droughts that the cattle killers turn to man flesh. He fears men but will not become animal hunter again, the pride of the race is against it.

When the tiger has killed a steer and fed thereon, he goes to where the karinda grows thick and lies in the nalah, lazy with the meat in him, and sleeping lightly. It is here, as he takes his nap, that the hunters find him. It is the hunter's desire to live his tiger fight, to turn and charge the one who seeks his handsome pelt, but Dr. Porter's tiger knew better. "Stripes" boited and with cool judgment sneaked from place to place, like a still hunter, aided by a coat, which in the jungles is protectively colored, and away he went up the gully, galloping like a horse, his soft paws making no sound. A stifling cloud of dust arose from the brittle grass, raised by the trampling elephants. The deadly Indian snout beat down and turned the landscape black in the eyes of some of the less hardy ones. In the shade, which was soon reached, a troop of monkeys showed the way. A tiger can hide anywhere, and in heavy cover one must look as for a needle in a haystack, far and near. The tiger was found at last in the jungle's edge. A shot aimed at the beast hit it in the side, far back, a wound that made the beast a dangerous one. There was a pretty how-we-do. The tiger would kill if it got a chance, and the beaters went into trees. Sikunder Singh got off the elephant and started after the tiger afoot, angry at what he called the depravity of the men. Of all things a hunter can do, hunting a wounded tiger on foot is the most reckless. In cover the man afoot is utterly at the mercy of the beast's mercy. Sikunder Singh was out of sight. Suddenly there was a long, fierce snarl in the bush and a rustle of a heavy body; then arose a long quavering cry of mortal agony. All knew what it meant. The elephants were goaded forward, and wild yells and frantic screams arose from all sides, the elephants joining in the pandemonium.

In a little opening the Sikunder Singh in the mouth of the tiger, his thin arms and legs tossing as the tiger drew back. No one would shoot through the human shield into the tiger. But on the left a man got a flank shot. Dropping the man the tiger sprang at an elephant's face, tearing it down by the head. The hunters came together about the two and a bullet broke the tiger's neck. The tiger weighed 600 pounds. The huntsman who would have been the first to denounce so foolhardy an act as his own, never spoke coherently again. His spine was crushed.

TURKISH BATH.

Any small room will do, provided it has a "hard finish" upon the walls, so they will not peel or crack in the dampness. The room is stripped of all furniture, except a steamer chair. The window is then opened the veriest trifle, and a small frame covered with stout canvas is placed at the opening. This insures ventilation, for without fresh air your Turkish bath isn't going to be a success.

A large tub of water is next mounted in a framework and a kerosene lamp placed underneath it. Your steamer chair must be high enough for the pan of water and lamp to sit underneath. So much for keeping you warm in the chair. When you seat yourself in the steamer chair you will have on only the regulation white sheet of the Turkish bath. Over it you fling a large warm robe. The room becomes so warm, and the bath is so thorough, that you are glad to throw it off ere long. In the bathtub you draw a quantity of boiling water, hot enough to steam, and should it cool you pull out the stopper and refill the tub. Two fillings will be enough to keep the air moist through a bath an hour long. There is another thing needed. This is an alcohol lamp and a kettle of water. Such a simple thing as an afternoon tea kettle, allowed to boil hard with the water off, will give enough steam to fill the little room full.

Fifteen minutes before you take the bath light the lamp under the pan of water which is safely tucked away under your chair, and light also the other lamps and set the tub running full of boiling water. Close the door of your bathroom. At the end of 15 minutes the steam will pour out when you open the door and you can take your seat in the chair ready for a gentle steaming.

Fatti was the first woman to have a private steam and vapor bath, and her complexion is said to depend largely upon it.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease and requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Snuffs and inhalants can give only temporary relief, but Hood's Sarsaparilla perfectly and permanently cures. "My little boy was a great sufferer with catarrh. Medicines he took from physicians did not help him, and he began using Hood's Sarsaparilla. We have given him three bottles of this medicine and it has effected a complete cure." Mrs. R. L. A Ripple of Dimples comes when healthy babies wake in the morning and laugh. A good share of those dimples are made by Scott's Emulsion. Half the cod-liver oil, i. e. Scott's Emulsion, is taken by babies. It makes them happy by cushioning out their little bodies and making them comfortable. Dimples are health. Did you ever see a sickly baby with dimples?

A MOTHER'S THANKS.

She Tells What Pink Pills Did for Her Child.

Suffered From St. Vitus' Dance—Lost the Use of Her Right Side and Almost Lost the Power of Speech—Cured in a Few Weeks.

Aylmer, Que., Gazette. Of all the discoveries made in medicine in this great age of progress none have done more to alleviate human suffering than have Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. We suppose there is not a hamlet in this broad land in which the remarkable healing power of this favorite medicine has not been put to the test and proved triumphant. It is a great medicine and the good it has accomplished can only be faintly estimated. There are many in Aylmer who speak of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in terms of praise, and among them is the family of Mr. John Smith, the well-known blacksmith and wheelwright. Having heard that his daughter, Miss Minnie, had been cured of St. Vitus' dance by the use of Pink Pills, the Gazette called upon Mr. Smith to learn the particulars. Upon mentioning the matter to him he expressed pleasure in making the facts public, if it was thought that they would benefit anyone else, and remarked that he thought Mrs. Smith could probably give the particulars better than himself. Mrs. Smith said that about a year ago Minnie was attacked with St. Vitus' dance, of a rather severe nature, and a number of medicines were tried, but without any effect upon the trouble. An electric battery was also used but had no beneficial effect. The trouble appeared to be getting more severe, and finally Minnie was obliged to discontinue going to school, having lost the power of her right side. Her speech was also so much affected it was with difficulty she could be understood. She was out of school for about six months and all this time she was undergoing treatment, which however, proved ineffective. One day Mrs. Smith saw in the Gazette the particulars of a case of St. Vitus' dance cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and determined to try them with Minnie. By the time two boxes were used Mrs. Smith was sensible of a great improvement in her daughter's condition, and after the use of four more boxes was satisfied that Minnie was completely cured, as no symptoms of the trouble remained. This was about the end of June last, and since that time there has not been the slightest recurrence of the dread disease. While Minnie was taking the pills her weight increased, and her general health was much improved. Mrs. Smith also said that her younger daughter showed symptoms of the same trouble, but the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills speedily dissipated it.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are offered with a confidence that they are the only perfect and unfailing blood builder and nerve restorer and when given a fair trial disease and suffering must vanish. They make rich, red blood and cure when other medicines fail. Sold by all dealers or sent by mail on receipt of 50 cents a box or $2.50 for six boxes, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y. Beware of imitations and refuse trashy substitutes alleged to be "just as good."

WEST SHORE THROUGH SLEEPING CAR TO NEW YORK. One of the handsomest sleeping cars that had ever been turned out of the factory is now running from Toronto to New York without change via the popular West shore route. It is a buffet car, and refreshments can be obtained en route, if desired. This car leaves Union Station, Toronto, every day except Sunday, at 4.55 p. m., reaching New York next morning at 10.10 a. m. On Sundays the sleeper runs from Hamilton only, connecting with the through train from Toronto. Call at any Grand Trunk office in Toronto for information or space in sleeping car. Reservations can be made in advance if desired.

FOR YOUR PALMS.

The proper care of palms in the house is mainly a series of don'ts. Don't give them too much water, and never any until the surface of the pot is slightly dried. This is the first commandment. The second is like unto it: Don't let them have the full sun rays at midday, though you can't give them too much of morning or afternoon shining. Don't try, either, to keep them in rooms where there is a smell of gas. They have fine noses, those green things, and will yellow and shrivel over a leak that neither the plumber nor your own olfactory may have detected. Thus they may save your health—and what is of more importance, of course, your complexion—since escaping gas is among the worst of skin tarnishers. Don't let the fronds get dusty, either; don't expect them not to curl up in a room with dry furnace heat and whiffs of coal gas from the register. Lastly, don't fail to give them all the cigar ashes they will devour—a teaspoonful a week is not too much for a small pot. Dig them into the earth, taking care not to break the roots; then water, and be sure no water stands in the saucer at the foot of the pot.
