Mr. Laurier's Home-Coming.

Mr. Laurier has done a great work since the people of Canada placed the premiership in his hands. He has settled a perplexing question that baffled his predecessors, who had eighteen years of experience in governing. He has placed Canada in actual touch with the mother country, and given her such a prominence in the world that British governments will no longer have any doubt as to where Canadian territory lies any more than British statesmen will have any doubt where the country stands in relation to the development of the interests of the Empire. He has made Canadians prouder than ever of their country, and he has, which is more important, elevated Canadian national sentiment to a plane above the narrow range of mere party aspirations.
He has given, so to speak, a more cosmopolitan character to the spirit of Canadian patriotism; he has robbed party warfare of its rancour, and has made it possible for Canadians to unite as Canadians in the recognition of his valued services, forgetful for the moment that he is the head of one of the two great parties into which the country is divided. Among other evidences of the prevalence of a spirit of Canadianism, as distinguished from partizan-ship, the following remarks by a prominent Conservative journal, the Quebec Chronicle, are worthy of special note.
The Chronicle, in speaking of Mr. Laurier in relation to the Jubilee proceedings in England, says: "He has represented us so honourably and well at the seat of Empire that the Chronicle believes him to be entitled to a generous national reception on his return to Canada. He should be accorded such a demonstration as could be participated in by all classes of our people. Let us for once be thoroughly united, and, casting aside our politics, let us combine hand in hand to do honour to the man who has directed so much attention to Canada and the Canadians, and caused the reflection of so much Imperial honour upon them. Give Sir Wilfrid, on his return to Canada, a reception worthy of him, and worthy of his country and of its people." Mr. Laurier has been one of the most conspicuous features of the great Jubilee demonstration, the greatest imperial event the world has ever seen. He has had "greatness thrust upon him," he has encountered the difficulties of the recent situation with a modest dignity, "he hath borne his faculties so meek, hath been so clear in his great office," made himself so worthy of respect and honour, that no Canadian, be he never so loyal to his own party, can feel any loss of self respect, can subject himself to no charge of party disloyalty, in joining with the members of the party Mr. Laurier leads, in giving a fitting welcome home to the great Canadian, who makes that title his proudest boast.—Peterborough Examiner.

Won a Wife and a Fortune.

The Watertown Standard says:—An old soldier named A. H. Olney, of Gibson, aged 50 years or more, has attained notoriety within a few days, all because he took a certain patent medicine and, having been cured of his ailment, advertised the fact by testimonials and a picture through the patent medicine company. Below the picture he had an ad. saying he was in the race for matrimony now, as, having been entirely cured, he felt "as young as he used to be." He got a letter from a woman in Denver, Col., saying she was worth $40,000, and from the looks of his picture was anxious to marry him. He had no sooner read it than he got a letter from a woman in Wilkesbarre, Pa., enclosing $10 to go there and see her, as she wanted him. He went there and was greatly pleased with her and promised to marry her if the Denver woman's scheme collapsed. He wrote a letter to an alderman in Denver to see if the woman had the $40,000. Not hearing at once he concluded to "splice" himself to the Wilkesbarre woman, and was on the verge of getting ready to go there when he got a letter from the Denver alderman saying that the Denver woman had the $40,000 O. K., and yesterday Olney received a letter from her enclosing $75, advising him to take a through sleeper and come by the first train, as she was anxious to wed him.
Olney hustled and got his belongings packed together to wed his love and her fortune of $40,000. He had some pet birds and trinkets which he took with him to the Erie depot last evening, where he took the train to Chicago, and from there he goes to Denver. Olney draws a fair pension every month and is well known. He is a great checker player and prides himself on having a board which he made from hundreds of different kinds of wood, and says he can beat "most of them" on it. In appearance he would strike one as one of the famous warriors of the late war from his commanding presence. The woman's name is Mrs. Jennie N. Hill, living in Denver, Col.

Hit by a Swordfish.

Richard Wilson, of Elizabethport, N.
J., fought for ten minutes on Saturday evening with a monster swordfish that attacked him while he was swimming in the Raritan river. Wilson had been for some minutes in the water, and was crossing the stream leisurely when something shot past his body, and the next instant the blade of a swordfish pierced his right ankle. The weapon of the angered fish passed through the flesh and protruded from the other side.
With a cry of agony the young man clutched at the writhing creature, but every movement added to the terrible pain and increased the flow of blood, which rapidly discolored the water.
Several times Wilson was drawn under water, but each time returned, fighting bravely to dislodge his assailant. Wilson's cries and struggles attracted some men who were on the shore. They went to his assistance and with oars and boat hooks managed to drive the fish off, but not before it had inflicted several other wounds on Wilson's leg as he struggled to release himself. As soon as he was taken into the boat he fainted from loss of blood, and a physician was called. The principal wound was of such a dangerous character that it was found necessary to cauterize it immediately. Wilson's mother came to his bedside yesterday, but he was still too weak to talk with her. The wounds show considerable inflammation, but it is thought he will recover. Just as soon as he is strong enough to stand the trip he will be taken away from South Amboy to Elizabethport.—New York Herald.

What is described as the largest striped bass ever taken in the Penobscot River, Maine, was caught by a Bucksport man a few days ago. It weighed forty-one pounds and was three feet ten inches long.
