Ontario Logs for Ontario Mills.

The International Commissioners at Quebec have before them only one question in which the people of the Province of Ontario are at all seriously interested.
That is the question as to the log policy of the Province, and it is probable that the people of the Dominion at large care more about this than about the half dozen other questions of coasting, alien labor and Alaskan delimitation, which the Commissioners have been called to adjust. The Canadians are not at all keenly alive to the importance of the Quebec Conference. So far as they have studied the majority of the questions at issue, they would be inclined to agree, of course, that it would be better that they should be settled, but that is about as far as popular interest in these questions goes in Canada. It is different with the lumber question. That question is of vital importance to the welfare of the people of Ontario; it is of vital importance to the welfare of the Dominion at large; and the Canadian Commissioners could not be blamed if they decided to let everything else go by the board rather than yield to the States' demand for the coercion of Ontario on this point. And if Mr.
Hardy cannot persuade the Canadian Commissioners to see it in this light, he should inform them that this is the only light in which he can be brought to see it. The saw-logs of Ontario are worth more to Ontario than a combination of all the other interests which are under consideration at Quebec, and if the worst came to the worst, Mr. Hardy would do well to make this his ultimatum.
He should burst the Liberal Government at Ottawa rather than yield an inch.—Toronto Star.

Not a Party Question.

The Montreal Star has one of its "smart-aleck" editorials to show that the plebiscite developed nothing but what was expected. It talks about Sir Wilfrid Laurier's "quarter-of-a-million-dollar plebiscite," and says that the Government has spent a lot of public money to find out something that everybody else knew. Talk of this sort is nonsensical. The Government took the plebiscite for a specific purpose. That purpose has been served. The Government knows now what it did not know, and could not have known before the vote was taken. It knows the exact strength of the demand for prohibition, and that strength is now measured for the first time. Whoever is to be blamed for the result of the plebiscite, the Dominion Government is to be commended for having given the people a chance to declare their opinions on the question of prohibition. It is plain that the Montreal Star, with other Conservative papers, is attempting to make political capital out of the plebiscite.
The Conservative party should not allow itself to be led in this direction. It is unwise to throw questions of public morals and religious questions into the arena of party politics, and the Conservative party has already suffered severely from this practice. The prohibition question is a question of public morals, and the party which drags it into politics is sure to make trouble for itself.—Toronto Star.

Duty on Chinamen.

One of the hardest questions British Columbia has to wrestle with is what to do about the Chinese. In the east the almond-eyed Celestials are looked upon more or less as curiosities. They run laundries, and are carefully looked after by people with missionary instincts. In the west it is different. The Celestial has crowded himself into various branches of work, till he has become a positive menace to white labor. In mines, on railroads, wherever labor is required, the Chinaman is found ready to take the wages offered, be they high or low. His tractability and submissiveness make him a favourite with big employers. He is a keen competitor in the labor race, his ability to subsist on anything or nothing giving his white opponents a heavy handicap. In the cities of British Columbia are the Chinese quarters, where thousands of the followers of Li Hung Chang, crowded together in filth, breed pestilence, or serve as a roosting place for any disease that may be passing. The proposition to put a $500 duty on every Chinaman entering the country comes from these cities. It comes from the people who know the Chinaman best.—Telegram.

Mr. Harty's Election Confirmed.

The protest against the return of Hon.
William Harty, Minister of Public Works, with its 287 charges of corruption, has been dismissed, and the result of the Kingston election is confirmed.
It is not surprising that Chancellor Boyd gave the prosecution an uncomfortable half hour by his comments on the case. The court was used as an advertising medium to spread abroad charges which no responsible man or newspaper would make. The petition was filed in the name of William Anson Mouck, a man of straw, who uses the court to charge that the Ontario Cabinet made a corruption fund of $10,000 and sent it to Kingston in charge of a relative of Mr. Harty, and that the money was there distributed for corrupt purposes. That charge formed the first count in the long indictment, and as a legitimate piece of court news was published throughout the press of Ontario, special prominence being given to it in Conservative newspapers. In dismissing the charge Chancellor Boyd said: "It should never have been put upon the record. It is disgraceful to do so if there is nothing to justify it." Using the courts for that purpose is one of the worst features disclosed by the trial.—Globe.

An unusual event took place lately in a harvest field near Brace, Perthshire, when a man aged 76 cut down with a scythe an acre of excellent oats, while two women aged respectively 74 and 83, lifted, bound, and stacked the grain, everything being done in workmanlike style. The combined ages of the worthy trio amounted to 233 years.
