Railways and Public Safety.

The terrible frequency of railway accidents during the past few weeks shows that something must be wrong somewhere. The principle cause seems to be that the employees of the different companies are overworked—have more duties to perform than they should have; with the inevitable result that some of them are forgotten or neglected. The Globe says:

"No precaution can prevent a lapse of memory on the part of an official, but it is easily possible to prevent the strain of overwork, which makes such lapses an ever-present danger. The bearing strain of construction material has been more carefully considered than the bearing strain of men. The railways have had a great increase in business during the past year, and that has rendered the work of station agents and despatchers far more arduous. While there may have been few increases in hours of service, the duty has become far more severe, and there has been a proportionate number of errors with their deplorable results. The demands of safety are not fulfilled while men in responsible positions are required to serve more than eight or nine hours a day. If railways are labor-saving inventions it is time they began to save labor. It is reasonable to ask where the labor-saving function comes in if men are required to serve from ten to twelve and more hours a day at duties that involve a severe mental strain. While such duties are required, the economic function of the railways will be, not to save labor, but to save wages. The loss involved in a single accident would pay the salaries of a sufficient force of men to relieve the pressure on many overworked employees. If the railways do not make some material change in this respect they may expect drastic legislation. The public are aroused and alarmed at the experience of the past few months, and will not be satisfied until important changes are made in the direction of greater safety. The situation emphasizes the need of a railway commission to intervene if necessary where public safety is menaced by too severe economy in any department of railway service."

Women and Farmers' Institutes.

The importance of women's work in connection with the system of farmers' institutes is being more and more recognized, and that it deserves to be encouraged is the conclusion one must arrive at after reading the excellent Report of Women's Institutes of the Province of Ontario for 1901, recently issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. According to this report, the membership of Women's institutes in 1900 was 1,602 with a total attendance of 3,500 women; while in 1901 the attendance increased to 3,081, and the attendance of women to 16,410. Judging by brief extracts given from reports of local institutes, the meetings have aroused much interest and have done much good in many ways. The main part of the report, however, is given to pointed papers, chiefly by women who speak from a practical acquaintance with the subject in hand. Most of these papers are on some phase of household science, and they range from hints on good manners to directions regarding ventilation, cooking and other items of domestic economy. Considerable space is also given up to the woman's flower and vegetable garden, every article on these themes being contributed by women. Health and comfort are not neglected, papers being given on such topics as "Home Nursing," "Hereditarity," "Ill Effects of Mouth Breathing," "How and When to Rest," etc. In fact, the report is one that every woman, whether residing in town or country, will read with pleasure and profit. It is sent free to every member of a Women's Institute. It is desirable that such institutes should be established in every section of the Province. Those interested in forming an institute should communicate with the Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes, Toronto.

Fairs and Exhibitions.

Civilized mankind is divided into two classes: those who help to manage or who exhibit at fairs, and those who are visitors. The annual report on Ontario Fairs and Exhibitions for 1902, just issued by the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, contains many hints of interest to all concerned in exhibitions. The first part of the report consists of an account of the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Fairs and Exhibitions, papers and discussions on present day fair topics being given in full. Mr. C. O. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, in reply to many questions, throws much light on the provisions of the Agriculture and Arts Act, so far as it touches agricultural societies and exhibitions. He also contributes an appendix to the report of a most interesting historical character, describing the first Agricultural Societies formed in this Province, the first Provincial Exhibitions, and the modes of conducting the early markets and fairs. The report also gives a large amount of space to an account of the Model Fair held at Whitby last Fall. This fair attracted much attention, and the plan is explained in full in the report, the official programme also being given. A perusal of the whole report by the directors and other officers of our agricultural societies will mean a marked improvement in the aim of our fall exhibitions and in the mode of conducting them. The importance of the educational side of the work, rather than the spectacular, is well and fairly emphasized throughout the report.

Roup in Fowls.

There are over eight millions of fowls of the domestic hen variety in Ontario, and the number is steadily growing, owing to the increased demand for poultry at home and abroad. Among the diseases to which these birds are liable is roup, which is also known as canker, distemper, and fowl diphtheria. A valuable treatise on the character, prevention and cure of roup, by Prof. F. C. Harrison, Bacteriologist of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, has been published in the form of a bulletin by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and may be had free by all who will write to the Department at Toronto for a copy. The bulletin is freely illustrated, and gives evidence of Professor Harrison's wide reading of authorities, while giving the results of his own carefully conducted experiments with affected birds. While admitting that there is a close resemblance between human diphtheria and roup in fowl, the author believes that the two diseases are not identical, and that contagion as between bird and man is hardly likely to take place.

A Treat in Store.

We are much pleased to learn that the Edna Sutherland Concert Company will give an entertainment in Twomey's hall on the evening of Friday next, the 17th inst. The members of the company are Miss Edna Sutherland, of Boston, reader; Miss Merrielle G. Patton, of New York, Contralto; and Mr. Frank Smith, of Chicago, violinist. They have been touring for some time in Canada, and, wherever they go, the Press speaks of them in the very highest terms.

The Scottish Canadian, of Toronto, says: "A long-felt want in the Canadian musical world has been at last satisfactorily filled by the formation of the Edna Sutherland Concert Company. Selected from the very highest talent, the members of the company stand at the head of their profession, and their whole programme is of the highest and most elevating character. Since their organization they have attracted crowded houses wherever they have appeared."

The Kingston Daily Whig says: "Miss Sutherland captivated all by her brightness and grace. The encore in which she described an old lady's trip to Washington, and the marvellous bargains to be had at the '49-Cent Store,' kept the audience laughing from beginning to end. Her perfect imitation of knitting was wonderfully realistic."

The Peterborough Examiner says: "Miss Merrielle Patton, the charming young vocalist was received with enthusiasm. She possesses a beautiful, sweet contralto voice, over which she has under easy control. The magnificent quality of her voice made her a prime favorite throughout the evening."

The World Wants a Man.

The publishers of the Toronto World want a representative in every postal district in Ontario. They are trying to secure 50,000 subscribers before the end of the present year, and are offering liberal commissions. The World scored a distinct success as the first one-cent morning newspaper published in Canada. It is easy to get subscribers for a bright paper like the World at only $3 a year, or $1.50 for six months. Bright and entertaining always, the World is conducted on broad principles, filled with good reading for all good people. It has been called the "farmers' daily," because so much space is given to markets and farm news. W. F. Maclean, M. P., editor of the World, says that the World has now over 6,000 well-to-do farmers on its subscription lists. New subscribers, who send $3 direct to the World, Toronto, mentioning this paper, will receive credit up to the 15th of April, or nearly 15 months, for $3. Any subscriber sending two new subscribers at $3 will receive the World free for one year.—Adv.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.—The council met on Wednesday evening and sat until about 11 o'clock. The proceedings are too long for us to publish this week.

Lost Hearing Quickly Restored.

No matter whether of long standing or not, deafness can be permanently cured by Catarrhazone, which never fails even in the worst cases. The pleasant scented vapor of Catarrhazone allays inflammation, prevents and cures the catarrhal condition that causes deafness, and relieves right away. Thousands have proved the efficiency of Catarrhazone, and with such a valuable remedy within easy reach there is no longer any reason for people to remain deaf. Catarrhazone is recommended also for Coughs, Colds, Catarrh and Bronchitis. Complete outfit, $1; trial size, 25c. Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont. Sold by W. H. Robson.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.—Mr. Kelly has resigned the position he has so long held as librarian and caretaker of the public library, and, at a recent meeting of the Board of Directors, Mrs. Calder was appointed in his stead. We have no doubt that she will perform the duties of the office to the satisfaction of the reading public.

CANDLEMAS DAY.—Monday last, February 2nd, was Candlemas Day, and everybody knows—or, at least, has heard—that the bears come out of their dens on that day, and, if they can see their shadows, go back again for another long sleep, as there is sure to be a good deal more cold and stormy weather. There was no sunshine on Monday, except for a very few minutes, during which the bears were probably not out; and, therefore, it is likely that the winter will soon be over, as we hope may prove to be the case, fuel being exasperatingly dear.
