The Bank Premises.

The public library was moved two doors north last week, and the spacious store lately occupied by it is now being fitted up for the Bank of British North America, under the superintendence of Mr. G. H. McGee, who is "bossing the job," though he has not taken a contract. Great changes are being made, and, when finished, the bank premises on the north-west corner of Colborne and Francis streets will be up-to-date—"neat, but not ostentatious," as Mr. Robinson, the manager, says. The mammoth safe which arrived a few months ago is to stand on a stone pier built up from the rocky bottom of the cellar; the front is to be modernised and furnished with plate glass windows and a regulation bank door, and two plate glass windows will let light in from the Francis street side. The whole interior is to be painted, papered and made as good as new, and electric lights and a telephone will be installed. As the alterations and improvements will cost a good deal over a thousand dollars, it is almost a wonder that the Bank did not put up a building; but we don't know where it could have got a suitable and central site at a reasonable figure. But the new premises, which will, it is expected, be finished by the end of the month, are much more roomy than those to be vacated, and, until the business outgrows them, will afford the bank staff plenty of "elbow room," the want of which is badly felt where they now are. For years it has been said by our business men that a chartered bank would do well at the Falls, and their predictions have been amply verified by the rapidly increasing business done by the branch of the Bank of British North America since it was established here about six months ago. Its success is due partly to the confidence everybody has in the stability of the institution and partly to the popularity of its genial manager, Mr. R. A. Robinson, and his no less genial chief assistant, Mr. W. A. Bishop.

Sad News for a Sister.

On Friday last Miss Johnston, of Toronto, who was at the Falls visiting Mrs. W. L. Robson, an old friend of her mother's, received the sad news of the death of her brother John, who was drowned the previous afternoon in Moon river, in the Muskoka district. He and a friend named Dodge were in a canoe, which was upset by a sudden gust of wind. Johnston immediately struck out for shore, and suddenly sank when within a few feet of it; but his companion, who could not swim, clung to the canoe until help arrived. Miss Johnston came to the Falls on Monday of last week, and on the same day went to Rosedale with a party of campers. On Friday morning she returned by the Manita to spend the day with Mrs. Robson, and about two hours later Mr. Robson received a telegram from Toronto informing him of the accident. Shortly afterwards Rev. Mr. Sinclair, who had heard of the fatality, went to Mr. Robson's house and, as gently and cautiously as possible, broke the sad news to Miss Johnston, whose outburst of grief was terrible, as John was her favorite brother, and she had been speaking of him only a few minutes before she heard of his death. She left, accompanied by Mrs. Robson, for her home, 386 Front street west, Toronto, by the afternoon train. The body of the youth, who was only about 18, was recovered on Friday, taken to Toronto the next day, and the funeral took place at 2.30 p. m. on Monday.

Wearry Brain Workers.
Fagged out. Ideas come as slowly as molasses. You think of things just a minute or two too late. Snap's gone. The buoyancy that made work a pleasure—that's gone too. The doctor would tell you that you are run down, not eating enough nor digesting enough. Your stomach needs aid, your digestion needs a braiser too. Your blood requires phosphorus and iron that it may be formed readily. Now Ferrozone is a wonderful nerve-bracer and blood maker. It's food for the blood and nerves, and will make you strong, quickly and permanently. Sold by W. E. Robson.
