

but we have no doubt it will prove a profitable investment, as the hall is sure to be now in great demand for entertainments which formerly could not find sufficient stage room in town.

A REPEATER.—It is seldom that it is found necessary to run a local entertainment two evenings in succession to allow everyone opportunity to see it; but such was the case with the St. Andrew's Sunday school entertainment on Wednesday evening, when, notwithstanding the fact that the seating capacity of Dickson's hall has been considerably increased, so many people were unable to get inside that it was announced, before the curtain went up, that the entertainment would be repeated next night. The second turnout was also a good one, but, of course, not so large as the first. The entertainment was without doubt the best of its kind ever put on the boards in town, and the drilling of the children, who went through their parts like old heads, represented a great deal of hard work on the part of Miss Dickson, who had charge of the preparation of that part of the programme. The Singing School, by the "grown ups," was also a drawing card, and contained a great many amusing features. The total receipts amounted to over $60.
