

$25. After some time the pin is taken to the jeweler, when it is found that fifteen cents is a big price for the 'diamond'."

NEW POLES.—Our Water, Light and Power Commissioners have quite recently decorated the principal streets of the village with brand-new poles, and now the Bell Telephone Co. is putting up a row of them on the north side of Francis street west, because that side of the street is to be boulevarded—which will make it look "bully." Mr. Geo. A. Jordan, now of Lindsay, who is a judge of poles and has travelled extensively, told us when here, some months ago, that the Falls had a more gorgeous array of poles than any place he had ever visited; but what will he say the next time he comes? Unless he is just dazzled, we shall be very much mistaken. It's well to have something to be proud of, even if it's only the number and symmetry and altitude of our poles; but we've other things calculated to excite the envy and admiration of the world. First—ladies first, always—there are our girls; then come our scenery, our "ozone," our fire-fighting appliances, our reeve's new store, and last, but not least, our chronic grumblers, some of whom are probably now hard at work trying to prove that even the new poles on Francis street west will be paid for out of the taxes; the said taxes being the bane of their existence, occupying their minds and agitating their tongues from morning until bed-time, and officiating as nightmares during the hours that ought to be passed in dreamless and recuperating sleep.

THANKS.

We take this opportunity of thanking our many customers for the liberal share of patronage which they have given us since coming to this town. Our growth of business during the past six months shows us that our prices and goods must be right. Our aim is to please and satisfy every customer who enters our store.

We are now preparing for fall openings. New goods are arriving daily, and we are sparing no pains to make this season's offer the most attractive which has ever been shown here.

To quote prices would give but a faint idea of the values we will offer. Don't spend one dollar before you see our stock. It will pay you.

IT COSTS MORE

to produce a first-class article of any kind than to produce an inferior one, and honey is no exception. You may buy honey for less than ten cents a pound, but you take chances on the quality. If it's poor quality you are losing money, and if it's first-class the man you bought it from is losing money—and nobody with a business head will lose money twice the same way.

I keep the price at 10 cents and the quality at top-notch.
