

season with the following officers: President, Mr. Thos. Sadler; vice-president, Mr. W. H. Robson; sec.-treasurer, Mr. W. A. Bishop; representative members, Messrs. J. H. Brandon and J. D. Flav-elle; managing committee, Messrs. R. J. Moore, Thos. Graham and F. A. McDiarmid; skips, Messrs. T. Gaham, W. H. Robson, R. A. Robinson, J. Twomey, J. H. Brandon, Thos. Sadler, F. A. McDiarmid and W. G. Ellis. The membership fee for the season was fixed at $5 00, and it was decided to join the Ontario Curling Association. Some needed improvements are to be made at the rink, and everything points to a good winter's sport.

A POOR SNOW.—We didn't go to the agricultural show at Cobocook on Tuesday, and probably a good many of those who went wished they hadn't; for, as far as we can learn, the show was a very poor one, especially in poultry, the only tenants of the coops being, we are informed, two pairs of fowls, a pair of turkeys and a pair of geese. But there was a good display of politics, Col. Sam Hughes and Mr. Carnegie both being present; and an eye witness tells us that the affectionate manner in which Sam fairly embraced some of the free and independent electors was extremely diverting. In fact, Conservatism was so rampant that every judge on the ground and in the building belonged to that political party.

A ROASTER.—Not long ago Mr. Washington North set up an elaborate and costly soda water fountain in his restaurant, and now he has a peanut roaster, which, at a little distance, looks something like a diminutive fanning mill, and which, it is needless to say, is the "observed of all observers." It is run by a gasoline engine of probably about one hundred horse-power, which can be stopped in a moment by laying your hand on the fly wheel, and refuses to go on again until you give the wheel a shove. The peanuts are roasted in a sheet iron cylinder, which slowly revolves over a gasoline lamp, and when done are put into paper bags, each of which contains five cents' worth, and deposited in a sort of glass cupola at the top of the machine, to be kept warm until wanted. Since the roaster came to town the consumption of peanuts has increased at least one hundred per cent.

WHEN YOU BUY

a pound of honey in a glass jar you pay, generally, about 15 cents for it. The extra price is to pay for the glass—you know that.

When you buy honey in the comb you pay 15 cents a pound for it, too. The price is high, and you wonder why. You are paying for the package—the comb the honey is in.

The most economical way is to buy extracted honey in cans of 5 lbs. or more.
