Socialism in Brief.

BY H. F. TITUS.

In one word, Socialism proposes to get wealth for all. Plenty of the good things of life for everybody. A fine house to live in, fine furniture in it, and fine lawns and trees about it. A table loaded with good things to eat. An abundance of clothing, comfortable and elegant. Opportunity and means to travel all over the world. Leisure to read and play and work. No poverty any more, with its filth and sickness and misery and vice. With all these things Socialism will get the consequences of all these things, a natural human development, large, healthy, noble men and women, a happy, energetic, progressive race.

You say all this is a dream? No; no dream at all, but an immediate possibility. By means of the vast new machinery of this modern world, we can produce wealth enough for all without any trouble whatever. A modern cotton mill in place of the old hand loom, a modern railroad in place of the old stage-coach, a modern Electric Light Company in place of the old candle mould, a modern shoe factory in place of the old bench shoe-maker; by means of these new appliances a man can produce a hundred or a thousand times as much wealth as in the times of our fathers. There is no doubt at all about this. Modern inventions have so increased the productive capacity of civilized mankind that all men could have an abundance of wealth by working only three or four hours a day.

Socialism proposes to get this abundance for all; and in order to get this abundance for all, we must do something. We are not getting it now. What shall we do to get it? Socialism proposes something very definite to do. It is this: Take to ourselves these vast new inventions and use them for producing wealth for all instead of producing it for a few. The only reason we are not well off now is that a few people own these great modern tools and refuse to let us work at them, except when they can make a profit for themselves. The fact is, not more than half of us are allowed by these capitalists, or great machine owners, to work even half the time. If we owned these factories and railroads and mines and mills ourselves, and all of us worked at them to produce wealth for our own use and happiness, all the troubles of poverty would disappear at once.

The only thing that lies between us and the promised land is this private ownership of the means of producing wealth. Therefore, what Socialism proposes to do, in order to get wealth for all, is to take possession of the Instruments of Wealth Production and run them for the use of all.

Old Age Under Capitalism.

"Orin Hall, who said he was 86 years old, was taken in charge by the police here yesterday. He said he had trapped from North Ferrisburg, Vermont. He is probably the oldest vagrant on record in Connecticut. Hall told the police that he had left the home of a son-in-law, Edwin B. Collins, in North Ferrisburg, because he was not wanted about the place, and that he had ever since been on the road."—Washington (D. C.) Times.

Nice, isn't it? This, brother, is what you have been voting for. This is what is likely to happen to you when you get old. This is the love this system bears towards its "honored" fathers. I'll wager that the old man has been voting for the G. O. P. all his life, too ignorant to know what his vote meant! Under Socialism every man and woman, on arriving at the age of fifty, would no longer be expected to do any work, but would be given an income that would enable them to live as well as any citizen of the nation. During their working years they would have produced the wealth that provided for the children and the aged, so that in their old age they would be paid back by being provided with an income from the labor of the children they had sustained. Capitalism makes the struggle for existence so fierce that children are forced to kick the old folks out of home; to often kill the old folks to get possession of their little property before their natural death; to quarrel over the estate like vultures over a carcass; to be anything but what human beings should be. The nation provides nothing for the old and helpless. It is run by the rich in the interest of the rich. Under Socialism great palaces, surrounded by every luxury the nation could produce, would be provided for our mothers and our fathers—and this would be for you and me when we get old. Because you and I would like this thing is the reason we should provide it for others. "For as we do to others, so shall it be done unto us." When we Socialists beg you to come with us and help provide such desirable things, you rise in your wrath—your political wrath—and accuse us of being traitors and fomenters of strife. And many of you who read this article will be kicked out by your children in your old age, helpless, wandering on the face of God's good earth, with no place to lay your heads. Oh, men and women of America! why will you be so blind?—Jas. A. Wayland.

The Law of Dollars.

The article of Millionaire Lawson, in Everybody's Magazine, is another startling exposure of the rottenness of the capitalistic system which both old parties are pledged to uphold. After showing how Rozers and Rockefeller "made $36,000,000 at a stroke which amounted to the boldest robbery," Mr. Lawson says: "There is to-day, uncontrolled, in the hands of a set of men, a power to make dollars from nothing. By a financial trick the people can be absolutely plundered of their savings for the benefit of the few. At no time in the history of the United States has the power of dollars been as great as now. Freedom and equity are controlled by dollars. The laws which should preserve and enforce all rights are made and enforced by dollars." Nor is this the saddest feature of the situation. "On the other hand," he concludes, "I have had to know about the horrors, the misfortunes, the earthly hell, which were the awful consequences of the taking of this vast amount. I have had to know about the convicts, the suicides, the broken hearts, the starvation and wretchedness, the ruined bodies and lost souls which strewed the fields of the 'system's' harvest."—The Vanguard.

A Fortune Built on Misery.

The Democratic party is prating of a return to "Jeffersonian simplicity." Shades of the great Thomas J. himself! You should see the home of Henry G. Davis, the party's Vice-Presidential candidate. It is a palace fit for an emperor. It surpasses in splendor every home in West Virginia save the home of the Republican United States Senator Stephen B. Elkins, who, by the way, is a son-in-law of Mr. Davis.

While Henry G. Davis lives in a style that is truly royal, the poor miners that delve in the earth and bring forth the wealth that pays for all the Davis splendor, are themselves housed like cattle. No dog or horse owned by Mr. Davis would be allowed to dwell for a day in the miserable shacks where the miners of his coal camp live. The rich man's dog and horse must have the comfort and convenience of life, but the poor human slaves which produce the rich man's wealth must be satisfied with a place to crawl into and sleep. Yet millions of working-men, by their votes next November, will declare that the continuance of this pitiful economic contrast is right and proper.—M. W. Wilkins, Socialist organizer.

What Preachers Have Said.

Rev. R. J. Bateman, of Baltimore, is visiting St. Louis, where the rich have spread a Bolshazzer's feast at so much per look, and took the money from the public treasury to do it. Here is what he sees, and shows how Socialism would destroy the home! Read what capitalism is from one of its supporters: "St. Louis, in the fulness of her glory, is a city whose immorality is only paralleled in history by the debaucheries of Babylon and Rome before their fall."

Rev. Whittaker, of San Francisco, in a recent sermon said that if Christ were on earth He would be found in the ranks of labor. There is no question about it, unless He has changed since He was on earth. He certainly would have little use for the modern mammoth worshipping churches, built with blood money wrung from wages withheld from the poor and by overcharges on the things of life. We would not find Him preaching for pay, either. Modern industrial life has vitiated the pure teachings of the Christ.
