

"TRUE AS PREACHING."—We don't know who wrote the following, which we find uncredited in an exchange; but it is, we are sorry to say, perfectly true, and ought to afford food for thought in all who read it: "A preacher came to a newspaper man in this way: 'You editors do not tell truths. If you did you could not live; your newspapers would be a failure.' The editor replied: 'You are right, and the minister who will at all times tell the whole truth about his members, dead or alive, will not occupy the pulpit more than one Sunday, and then he will find it necessary to leave town in a hurry. The press and the pulpit go hand in hand with whitewash brushes and pleasant words magnifying little virtues into big ones. The pulpit, the press and the gravestone are the great saint making triumvirate.' And the minister turned away looking very thoughtful, while the editor turned to his work and told of the surprising beauty of the bride, while in fact she was as homely as a stump fence."

THE COW QUESTION.—At the council meeting on Wednesday evening two petitions were presented—one for and the other against the prohibition of cows running at large within the limits of the corporation at any hour of the day or night. Although the petition against a prohibitory by-law bore nearly twice as many signatures as the other, there appears to be a general impression that such a by-law will be passed in the near future; and, if it be, it should not come into force until the owners of cows have had plenty of time to dispose of them, if they wish to do so. As we are no longer among the cow owners, it is to our interest that the by-law should be passed; but we have a foolish and weak-minded tendency to think of other people's interests as well as of our own. There is a great deal of vacant land in the village, the grass on which would be wasted if the cows did not eat it; and there is many a poor man whose cow assists materially in the support of his family. Why not enforce the existing by-law, which we think is restrictive enough, but which is almost totally disregarded, and see how it will work, instead of hastily passing the stringent one that is petitioned for.
