

CANADIAN FIELD PEAS.

Thomas Shaw, Formerly of Ontario O. A. C., Tells U. S. Farmers of a Popular Crop in Canada.

The term Canadian field peas, or, as it is more commonly expressed, "Canada field peas," is used with much latitude in this country. Ask a pea grower in the United States as to the variety of seed which he sowed and the almost invariable answer given is, "I sowed Canada peas." That may mean that he grew any one of nearly a hundred varieties. A common type of the Canadian field pea is shown in the first cut.

The pea crop is one of the most important in Canada. In striking contrast with the magnitude of the pea is its insignificance in our own country. Great advances, however, have been made during recent years in growing peas in Michigan, Wisconsin and Montana and other mountain states.

Canadian feeders use peas largely for cattle, also as food for dairy cows, for swine and as a ration for ewes and lambs. The straw when well cured is relished by horses, cattle and sheep, though they may not take kindly to it at first.

Pea straw harvested rather under-ripe than overripe and properly cured will be eaten readily, but when allowed to get dead ripe live stock will eat little of it.

Until recent years the pea crop was harvested with the scythe or with the old fashioned revolving hayrake. The first method is slow; the second shells out many of the peas and so covers the vines with soil as to render the straw practically unfit for use. By the aid of a pea harvester the crop may be harvested speedily and in excellent condition on level soils. It is simply an attachment to an ordinary field mower, as shown in Fig. 1 of the second cut.

The guards in front lift up the peas so that the knife can cut them cleanly. The cut peas fall behind the mower in a stringlike row or swath and two men with forks bunch them and lay them aside, out of the way of the horses. Three men and a span of horses may thus harvest ten acres in a day. This attachment for harvesting peas is made in Canada and those now in use in the west have all been imported. On rear cut mowers a platform is sometimes used, as shown in Fig. 2.

With this attachment one man walks behind and with a fork throws the peas off in bunches. But the platform is of doubtful advantage unless the crop is evenly ripened, not too heavy and free from standing weeds of strong growth. Where the land has been plowed in ridges with furrows more or less deep between them, the working of the machine will be seriously interfered with.

Watering of the Horse.

An important thing overlooked by the average farmer is how and when the horse should be watered. We have seen farmers—in fact, the majority of them—in the morning fill the mangers with hay and the feed boxes with dry feed. As soon as these are eaten they lead the horse out to the trough, allow him to drink all he can hold, then hitch him to the plow and work him hard for two or three hours. These same farmers are all the time wondering why their horses are not doing better and why they can't be kept up in flesh like Farmer B's horses, across the way. The horse should be watered before he is fed. Then feed and curry him at least an hour before going to work. Just before you go to work water him again.—Detroit News-Tribune.

Continuous Potato Growing.

I know of some one living near me who has grown twenty-nine crops of round potatoes in twenty-nine consecutive years on the same piece of ground, and all the fertilizer of any kind that has been put on was simply sable manure. I know that to be a fact, and I can produce affidavits to that effect. When he dug the last crop I was there, and the crop was a marvel. The ground was, figuratively speaking, covered with elegant potatoes.—President Skillman of New Jersey Horticultural Society.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. A post-master is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law), when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until the payment is made.

3. Any person who takes a paper from the post-office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay.

4. If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time and the publisher continues to send it, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it from the post-office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post-office, or removing and leaving them uncollected for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
