Sir Wilfrid's Return.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is home again, and he received the royal welcome he had a right to expect. As a consequence of the Premier's visit to England, Canada has become better known and her aspirations better understood. Trade relations between this and other countries have been improved; all of which will redound to the advantage of the Dominion, and all will participate in the results. With the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Georgian Bay Canal and the "All Red Route," Canada will have made large strides in the fulfilment of her destiny, and the people will have abundant cause to bless Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal party, a party which has been well described as the party of progress.

Keir Hardie in Canada.

The leader of the Labor party in the British house of commons is now in Canada, and, of course, was warmly welcomed, and eagerly interviewed by representatives of the press. The Globe of Tuesday last says:

"Mr. J. Keir Hardie, M. P., who showed his gifts as a speaker at a luncheon given in his honor by the Canadian Club yesterday, is one of the most striking figures in British politics. He is the embodiment of the movement which has grown under his guidance until it has become one of the great political forces in the old country, and may justly be described as the father of the labor party, of which he is the chairman. As he said yesterday, he is 'of the working class, born into the working class, and has lived among the working class.' Sent to work in a pit in an Ayrshire mining village when most boys are entering a school, Keir Hardie taught himself the rudiments of learning by the aid of a miner's lamp, graduated as secretary of a large miner's union while but a youth, took to journalism, and afterwards founded the Independent Labor party."

Mr. Hardie is what is called a "self-made" man; which means that he has risen to distinction in consequence of being gifted with mental and physical qualifications such as only a favored few possess. He was born in a small mining village in Scotland on August 15th, 1856, and his mother taught him what little she could until he was seven years old, when he went to work in a mine, where he remained until he was twenty-one. But such men as he are bound to rise, and by degrees he reached the prominent position which he now occupies. Mr. Hardie is not, nominally, a Socialist; but the aims of the Labor party and the Socialists are practically the same, the only difference being that the Socialists advocate more drastic measures than the Laborites, and would go the farthest. Not long ago Mr. Hardie said that he would not favor the deportation of the people of England to Canada or elsewhere so long as there were millions of acres of land in England awaiting cultivation; whereupon a capitalist paper sneeringly remarked that Mr. Hardie had apparently forgotten that the land was covered with title deeds impenetrable even by the roots of alfalfa. But what if they are? Title deeds are valid only by the will of the people; and we shall see what will happen across the lakes if Mr. Upton Sinclair's prophecy be fulfilled. The author of "The Jungle" predicts, in a later work, that within one year after the Presidential election of 1912 a Socialistic government will be established in the United States; and, if so, the era of grab and graft will be at an end and title deeds will be in danger. It is impossible that present conditions can long continue, for "men will not consent to starve by the thousand," and that thousands do die every year of sheer starvation, while tens of thousands are always on the verge of starvation, is beyond a doubt. "It's time for a change," and no remedy for existing evils except Socialism has yet been pointed out.

Mr. Hardie has for some time been in rather poor health, the result, no doubt, of over-work, and is taking a long voyage by order of his medical attendant. The Toronto World says: "He sails from Vancouver for Yokohama, and will cover the far east, returning next year by Canada and the States, when he expects to attract considerable attention to matters of interest to labor men and Socialists."

It Pays to Keep Good Cows.

Mr. William Fell, of Bury's Green, has a very fine herd of Ayrshire cows, twenty in number. Fifteen of these are old milkers, while five are fresh with their first calves. Mr. Fell has spent a great deal of money on his herd, and is now reaping the reward. For the month of June, 1907, his cheque from the Fenelon Falls creamery was $105.32, clear of all expenses. The advantage to patrons of the system of paying by test, which is followed at the creamery, is clearly shown in this case, as, if Mr. Fell had been paid by weight alone, he would have received only about $80. In cheese factories where they do not pay by test, each and every patron is paid alike, which is very unjust to the owners of good herds. For example, suppose eight patrons each supply 500 pounds of milk, the following table will show the cash received by each according to test:

TEST.	B. FAT.	PRICE.	TOTAL.
3.3	16.50	22	$3.63, or 73c. per
3.4	17.00	22	3.74 [100lbs.
3.5	17.50	22	3.85, or 75c. "
3.6	18.00	22	3.96
3.7	18.50	22	4.07
3.8	19.00	22	4.18
3.9	19.50	22	4.29
4	20.00	22	4.40, or 88c. "

This readily shows the unfairness of pooling milk, by which system the milk with a 4 per cent. test would only bring the same price as that with the 3.3 per cent. test, whereas it is worth 15 cents per hundred more. Butter fat at 22 cents per pound is equal to 80 cents per hundred pounds for milk for the eight patrons mentioned above, provided it was pooled. Figuring the skim milk at 15 cents per hundred pounds, there would not be much profit for the farmer. One cheese factory in this district paid 82 cents, another 76 cents and a third 70 cents per hundred pounds.

Farmers, get rid of the unprofitable cow. Sell her to the butcher, and not to your neighbor, as she will be just as much of a problem to him for a year or two as she was to you. And give your wife a fair share of the cheque each month to run the home with, as she does a great part of the work in connection with the milk. Don't increase her labor by requiring her to churn half the cream and sell the butter to obtain money with which to run the home.

The Counterfeiters.

The Lindsay counterfeiters had their preliminary hearing before Police Magistrate Jackson and County Police Magistrate Moore at Lindsay on Monday and Tuesday. Five of the gang, Charles Burke, A. Boyreau, Robert Logie, Richard Wynn and John Eveleigh, pleaded guilty to the charges brought against them, and were remanded until Friday, when they will be sentenced. The other two prisoners, George Miller and J. Gostlin, pleaded not guilty, and Miller, in his evidence, flatly denied the incriminating statements made against him by Burke and Logie, who had said that Miller, who is a printer by trade, had done the printing of the bogus bills. Judgment in Miller's case was reserved until Friday, and he was allowed out on $2,000 bail. There was no direct evidence against Gostlin, and he was accordingly dismissed.

ATTACKED BY A BULL.—On Monday last Mr. Edward Hopkins, of Somerville, was attacked by a dehorned bull which gave him a bad shaking up and broke one of his ribs. The morning will be devoted to aquatic sports on the canal, and the afternoon to athletic sports, baseball, etc., in the agricultural park. The steamer "Manita" has been chartered for the day, and will bring an excursion from Cobocook, and other excursions are being arranged. The coming celebration promises to be as great a success as those of the past two years, and will be more so if the people of the village want it to be, as they have the making of it—except that chances of the weather must be taken. So do all you can to help it along, and get your neighbors to follow suit. The Woodville band, an excellent organization, will provide music during the day.
