which is put up for dispensing through druggists only in 1/2 oz. vials, each vial securely sealed in a round wooden case. Worthless imitations have been offered to the public, but always under an assumed name through which the imitator hides his identity and endeavors to evade responsibility for the deception.

HE IS FOND OF DISPLAY

THE GERMAN EMPEROR DEARLY LOVES TO POSE.

Times When He Throws Off All Reserve and Mixes With Guests on Equal Terms.

Ask the average Englishman what he considers the outstanding feature of the Emperor William's character, and ten to one he will answer: "His intense love of display and passion for posing." In a sense the reply is perfectly correct. Germany's ruler is fond of display and dearly loves to pose as the central figure on all occasions of ceremony, and brilliantly and well he fills that difficult role.

But there are times when the Kaiser loves to put aside for a time the majesty that hedges the monarch, and amongst them may be counted the occasion when he pays a round of visits among the great nobles of his land, with many of whom he is on terms of particular intimacy.

Strange though it may appear, King Edward insists far more strongly than his Imperial nephew does upon the observances of ceremony when paying a purely private visit. King Edward, though he never at any time "puts on airs," yet scrupulously avoids anything approaching to over-familiarity with his hosts. The Kaiser, on the other hand, becoming for the time being a member of the family, and mixes with the other guests on a footing of perfect equality.

THROWS OFF ALL RESERVE,

Nothing pleases him more at one of the great houses he visits than a "Herrn Abend," as it is called—that is to say, an after-dinner gathering of the gentlemen of the party for beer and cigars and friendly talk on topics of the day. At these gatherings the Kaiser is seen at his best, for he is a brilliant talker, and has a fund of entertaining anecdote which never seems to fail him.

But it is not only this genial bonhomie that renders the Kaiser a welcome guest in the houses of his titled subjects. The task of entertaining is greatly helped by the simplicity of the Emperor's tastes in the matter of eating and drinking. Though not a vegetarian, he has been known to declare that he could live on vegetables. As far as meat is concerned, he likes nothing better than a "German steak," made of finely-chopped beef fried with onions. His favorite sweet is a typically German dish, the well-known "Eierkuchen," a sort of compromise between an omelette and

AN ENGLISH PANCAKE.

He cares little for rare and expensive wines, with the exception, perhaps, of the famous Johannisberger brand. It was a bottle of the most celebrated Johannisberger vintage which the Kaiser took to Prince Bismarck when they last met shortly before the great statesman's death. Like most of his subjects the Emperor is fond of beer. Indeed, if he had his own way he would probably drink nothing else at dinner. The beer supplied to the Imperial table, by the way, is drawn direct from the cask, and is served in silver tankards holding about a quart each. In the summer-time, and especially when yachting, the Kaiser abstains from beer and wines altogether, and quenches his thirst with lemonade or iced coffee, for which he has a great liking.

Of all the great nobles who have had the privilege of entertaining the Kaiser on their own estates, there is none whom the Emperor more gladly visits than the Archduke Frederick, one of the richest landed proprietors in Austria.

THE EMPEROR AND THE ARCHDUKE.

have a sincere regard for one another, and Kaiser Wilhelm is never so happy as when hunting in the Archduke's preserves at Belle, in Southern Hungary.

The Kaiser's latest visit to the Archduke was marked by a most amusing incident. The Emperor, it should be mentioned, has a wonderful memory for faces, and prides himself on never forgetting one who has done him even the humblest service. On this occasion the servants and foresters of the Archduke were lined up as usual at the castle gates to receive the Imperial guest, whereupon the Emperor singled out an old hunchback, who, during a former visit, had carried the Kaiser's gun on various shooting expeditions.

When the old man advanced in obedience to the invitation, the Emperor held out his hand to him. The simple fellow seized it in both his own and shook it heartily. The Archduke, who stood behind the Emperor, signalled wildly to the old hunchback to kiss the Imperial hand, but the signalling only made him shake it more frantically than ever.—London Tit-Bits.

WEAK, PALE AND WORN OUT WOMEN

Can be Saved From a Life of Misery by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Women are called the "weaker sex," and yet nature calls upon them to bear far more pain than men. With too many women it is one long martyrdom from the time they are budding into womanhood, until age begins to set its mark upon them. They are no sooner over one period of pain and distress than another looms up only a few days ahead of them. No wonder so many women become worn out and old looking before their time.

In these times of trial Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are worth their weight in gold to women. They actually make new, rich blood, and on the richness and regularity of the blood the health of every girl and every woman depends.

Mrs. Urbane C. Webber, Welland, Ont., is one of the many women who owe present health and strength to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Webber says:—"About three years ago, while living in Hamilton, my health began to decline. The first symptoms were headaches and general weakness. After a time the trouble increased so rapidly that I was unable to attend to my household duties. I lost flesh, looked bloodless and had frequent fainting fits. I was constantly doctoring, but without any benefit, and I began to feel that my condition was hopeless. One day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and mentioned several cases in which she knew of the great benefit that had followed their use. After some urging I decided to try the pills, and had only used them a few weeks when I began to feel benefited, and from that time on the improvement was steady, and by the time I had used about a dozen boxes of the pills I was again enjoying the blessing of good health. I cannot too strongly urge other discouraged sufferers to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure all troubles due to poor, watery blood, such as anaemia, general weakness, indigestion, neuralgia, skin troubles, rheumatism, the after effects of la grippe, and such nervous troubles as St. Vitus dance and partial paralysis. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MUTINY IN A SCHOOL.

French Boys Attacked Soldiers Sent to Arrest Them.

The pupils of the Arts and Crafts School at Chalons-sur-Marne, France, mutinied a few days ago and bombarded a force of gendarmes who tried to arrest them.

An aggrieved pupil, who had hurled two or three heavy blocks of wood at his teacher, was ordered to leave. The pupils of his class, however, resisted the expulsion, and thrashed the masters who tried to turn him out.

The youth was then allowed to spend the night in the school, but in the morning a body of gendarmes entered the building. A stand-up fight with the first class followed, but the gendarmes seized the pupil and took him under a strong guard to the railway station.

A detachment of infantry was summoned, and all the thirty members of the first class were then captured and taken to the railway station. As soon as the first class had gone the second class revolted. They shut themselves in the carpenter's shop at the school, smashed all the windows they could reach, and sang revolutionary songs.

When the head of the school and the Perfect of Chalons returned from the railway station they had to summon another company of infantry to deal with the new outbreak. The soldiers were received with a tremendous volley of wood blocks, and several men were severely hurt.

Eventually the military stormed the carpenter's shop, captured the mutineers, and marched them all off to the railway station.

TORTURING SKIN DISEASE Afflicted this bright little girl

Mrs. F. Miner, of 311 Suffolk Street, Guelph, Ont., says: "A year since, while while living in Oshawa, Ont., my little daughter Lorinda, six years of age contracted a skin disease on the upper part of her body. This first broke out like tiny water blisters, afterwards taking the form of dry scabs. These would disappear for a short time and then reappear worse than ever. The clothes coming in contact with the skin set up such a severe irritation that it was impossible to keep her from scratching. We tried various preparations yet obtained no good results until we began using Zam-Buk. With each application the irritation and soreness was greatly relieved, and the child rested easier. Tho' continued using, the eruptions and scabs fast disappeared and in a short space of time the skin was completely cleared from the disease. It is now some months since we used Zam-Buk, and as there are no signs of any more eruptions breaking out on her body, we believe Zam-Buk has worked a complete cure."

Sure Regulators. — Mandrake and Dandelion are known to exert a powerful influence on the liver and kidneys, restoring them to healthful action, including a regular flow of the secretions and imparting to the organs complete power to perform their functions. These valuable ingredients enter into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, and serve to render them the agreeable and salutary medicine they are. There are few pills so effective as they in their action.

BRIDE AS CONSCRIPT.

Young Lady Finds Herself Enrolled in Army.

Mlle. Leys, a handsome young brunette of Dunkirk, France, recently became engaged, but when her parents applied to the registrar of births for the necessary copy of their daughter's birth certificate to lodge in the view of her marriage, they discovered that by a mistake the girl was registered as a boy, and that her name was down on the list of conscripts to be called up for military service this year. The mistake had arisen owing to the parents having called their daughter Arsene, a name of a rather masculine turn.

As in the eyes of the law the girl is a man, the mayor of Dunkirk has refused to publish the banns. Mlle Leys has, therefore, been obliged to petition a court to have the mistake rectified, which will take about six months. Meanwhile, the military authorities have notified her, as "Arsene Leys," that she will be called up for military service very shortly.

They Wake the Torpid Energies. — Machinery not properly supervised and left to run itself, very soon shows fault in its working. It is the same with the digestive organs. They restore to the full the flagging faculties, and bring into order all parts of the mechanism.
