

line drained by that river for a considerable distance) is now fully organized and willing to extend branches through any district where capital can be raised to pay the cost. But the company having a clause in its charter of incorporation which forbids the mortgaging or in any way hypothecating its undertaking, there is no way of raising funds for extending their lines but by the sale of shares of stock.

The writer, along with the vice-president of the company, recently took a trip through the south-western part of Somerville, and the prospects of an extension through that neighborhood appeared very promising. If the people in that vicinity are all as progressive and as anxious for the telephone as the ones seen by us, that neighborhood as far as Rosedale will have telephone connection with Burnt River, Fenelon Falls and incidentally the rest of the country very soon.

Yours truly,
SAM SUDDABY,
Sec. B. R. Tel. Co.

NEWSPAPER LAW.

1. A post-master is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law), when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until the payment is made.

3. Any person who takes a paper from the post office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the payment.

4. If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time and the publisher continues to send it, the subscriber is bound to pay for it he takes it from the post-office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post-office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

BUDDING TREES.

Practical Directions For Securing Good Results.

Budding is generally done in August, because then the bark is more easily separated from the wood stock of the tree, explains a Massachusetts writer in American Cultivator. Sometimes it may be in the early part of the month and sometimes the latter part, according to location and growth, and then again the buds you are desirous to insert must be sufficiently matured, which you can generally determine by the terminal bud being fully developed. Take from a branch of this year's growth. The life of the tree or bud lies in the cambium layer, or alburnum, and the two must meet—the alburnum of the bud inserted and that of the tree, which lies between the inner surface of the bark and the outer portion of the wood. Bear this in mind and keep to it and you can make no mistake, provided, of course, all the other requirements are carried out.

The buds should be plump and mature when taken from the shoots of the current year's growth. The "bud stocks" should be cut the day the buds are to be inserted, trimmed and wrapped at once in a damp cloth to prevent drying on. Trimming consists in cutting off the leaves, saving a bit of the stem to use as a handle in inserting. In cutting the buds use a sharp knife. Insert the blade of the knife one-fourth of an inch below the bud and cut up just behind the bud, removing but little of the wood and coming out about one-fourth of an inch above the bud. (See A.)

To insert the bud make a T shaped incision in the stock about two inches above the ground. (See B.) With the spatula of the budding knife loosen the lips of the bark in angle of the T cut and slip in the bud. (See C.) The bud must be held firmly in place by a bandage wound above and below, being careful to leave the eye of the bud uncovered. Raffia fiber (web), bast, candle wick or waxed cloth may be used for tying. Raffia is usually employed. If the bud "takes," remove the bandage in about ten days by cutting loose on the back side of the stock to prevent the hindering of growth of the bud. In three or four weeks cut off the stock just above the bud to stimulate the growth of the new bud.

Nursery Label.

This cheap and practical nursery label is used and, it is believed, got up by a Connecticut nursery company, Rural New Yorker, in illustrating the device, says it is informed by the nursery company that the label is not patented and all are welcome to use it.

It consists of a piece of hard wood 1½ by 2 inches and a foot long in dimensions. One surface is smoothly planed, and to the other is securely stapled a loop of well galvanized, heavy telegraph wire, the free ends forming a pair of legs nearly two feet long. These are deeply thrust in the soil, diverging as they enter, and form a good support. The smooth front surface of the wood may be coated with white lead paint and the name written with a heavy black lead or graphite pencil, making a record that will endure several years, or rendered more durable still by writing on a sheet of weather zinc, tacked to the surface.

ELM CITY LABEL.

No. "Best Way" to Feed.

There is no best way to feed the different breeds. Feed anything that will produce results. Whole wheat, oats and barley are good feeds for all varieties of poultry.
