A Simple Statement.

Socialism is a system of human society, based on the common ownership of the means of production and the carrying on of the work of production by all for the benefit of all. In other words, Socialism means that railways, the shipping, the mines, the factories, and all such things as are necessary for the production of the necessaries and comforts of life should be social property, so that all these things should be used by the whole people to produce the goods that the whole of the people require.

That is no Utopian dream, but the necessary outcome of the development of society. It used to be supposed that anything like the collective carrying on of an enterprise was impossible, because the personal supervision and control of the owner was necessary to the success of any such enterprise.
But we see to-day that the greatest undertakings are those which are owned by joint-stock companies, in which the personal supervision of the proprietors is quite impossible, and in which the business is managed and carried on by paid officials, who might just as well be paid by the community to carry on the enterprise in the interest of the general body of the people as be paid by a few wealthy men to carry it on for their profit.

To-day goods are not produced to satisfy human needs; they are simply produced to provide profit for the class that owns these means of production.
It is only for the sake of this profit that the property owning class owns these means of production. As a consequence, we have shoddy and adulterated goods produced. Also, as this profit is simply the difference between the value of the work which the working people do and the amount they receive in wages, the actual producers never receive the equivalent of what they produce, and therefore are never able to buy it back again. It happens, therefore, that, as the machinery of production increases and workmen are able to turn out more goods, they are thrown out of work, and they, with their wives and children, are in want and misery; not because there is any scarcity of the things they need, but because there is more of them than those who produced them can buy.

Under the present system, the very increase of wealth is too often a curse to the wealth producers, simply because those who produce have no ownership in the means of production, and no control over the wealth produced.
Under Socialism, the means of production would belong to the whole people, and the whole people would have control of the things produced.
Every increase of wealth would then benefit the whole community. Under the present system increased wealth means increased penury and suffering for the many. Under Socialism increased production would mean more leisure, more wealth, more means of enjoying life, more opportunities for recreation for everybody.

By the discoveries of science, the inventions of genius and the applications of industry, man has acquired such power over nature that he can now produce wealth of all kinds as plentifully as water. There is no good reason why poverty and want should exist anywhere on this earth. All that is needed is to establish a more equitable method of distributing the wealth already produced in such profusion.
That is what Socialists propose to do.
The work of production is socialized; it is necessary to socialize distribution as well.

What is to be done to supplant the present system by Socialism—to substitute fraternal co-operation for the cut-throat competition of to-day? The first thing necessary is to organize the workers into a class-conscious party; that is, a party recognizing that, as a class, the workers are enslaved through the possession of the means of production by another class; recognizing, too, that between these two classes there is an antagonism of interest, a perpetual struggle, a constant class war, which must go on until the workers become possessed of political power, and use that power to become masters of the whole material means of production. When that has been achieved, the war of classes will be at an end, because the division of mankind will have disappeared, the emancipation of the working class will have been accomplished and Socialism will be here.
—Socialist Standard.

Think! Think! Think!

Where did you get the ideas that control you? Who put them into your head? Why did they put them there?
Would men, if they could, give horses the knowledge of their power? Would horses remain enslaved if they knew their power? And would you men be enslaved if you knew your power?
You are kept ignorant, so those who use you can profit from you. Many of you are made stupid by drink and hard work until you are but little above the beasts of the field. At election time they who have been profiting off your degraded condition will smile at you and extend the glad hand and tell you what a great people we are, what a free country we have, how you are the equal of a king, and how you should vote them into a fat place. And that is how they keep you where you are, and how they continue to rule.
You are controlled by ideas, just as the Mohammedans are; just as are the Buddhists; just as are the Chinese; just as are the rum-soaked, blear-eyed, degenerate people of the abyss. When you begin to think, there will be one more link broken in human slavery.
The lowest cannot be made to use their brains; but enough can. Will you be one of them? Will you assert your god-hood?—Appeal to Reason.
