Nettleton Guilty, Benton Acquitted.

only incapacitate him for a few days.

Adjournment was then made until 7.30, when Benton was placed in the witness box.

He said his home was in St. Louis, Mo., but that he was employed at the Oakland Hotel Resort, St. Clair, Mich., as second bar-tender. Came to the Falls on August 29th with Nettleton for two weeks vacation. Boarded at Mrs. Inkpin's, paid for board for one week in advance. Paid Mr. Glaspell for boat two days in advance. Nettleton bought a 25c. knife on Saturday to use on their fishing expedition. Bought a shotgun and ammunition to shoot ducks. On Monday night met two girls at Inkpin's, where they came for ice cream, and they decided to go for a walk and we passed Nichols and Barry. We then changed our position to the other sidewalk and Nichols and Barry passed us again. The girls then excused themselves to speak with another girl, and we went about 50 feet and stood waiting until their conversation would be finished. Barry and Nichols passed again, Barry nudging me with his shoulder and saying "Why the h— don't you give us half the sidewalk." When they had gone about 20 feet, Nettleton said, "If you think you can put us off, come back and try it."

Nichols and Barry rather rushed at us. I stepped off to avoid Barry, met him with my left hand and struck him on the face. The next instant he gripped me with both his arms about my neck and bore me to the ground. It seemed about one minute I was trying to free myself, and then Barry suddenly loosened both his arms exclaiming that some one had hit him on the head. Nichols said "I know you boys and we will get you for this." That was the close of the fight. To Mr. Devlin witness said that nothing was said about a revolver that he heard. He said he was 17 years old in November and was not a match for Barry according to his hold. Nettleton had the knife from late in the afternoon on Saturday until Monday evening. Went to Inkpin's and around by the bridge to avoid the crowd. Nettleton dropped the knife but had found it again. Nettleton said "I think I had to cut that fellow," meaning Nichols. They then went down to the canal for a couple of minutes. He did not see Nettleton wash blood off his hands. Constable arrested them when they were going to bed.

Percy Nettleton, who was then called to the witness stand, gave his age as 15 years. He said he worked at St. Clair, Mich., at the Oakland resort, with his friend, William Benton. He lived at Fenelon Falls with his mother and step-father between two and three years ago. His evidence was about the same as Benton's up to the commencement of the fight. He said he took the knife from his pocket while Nichols was choking him and opened it by putting his arms around Nichols until they met behind his back. Nichols' left arm was hurting him and he raised the knife to cut his left shoulder and make him release his hold. Was just in time to save himself being choked. Nichols released his hold. Denied meeting Nichols with the knife. Must have struck him more than once, but only intended to stick him in the left shoulder. Seeing Benton on his knees with his head almost on the ground, and Barry kneeling over him with his arms around his neck, he went and struck Barry one stroke with the knife. Thought he struck Barry on the shoulder to make him let go. Did not say anything about revolver. To Mr. Devlin he said he did not see any blood on the knife. There was blood on his hands and he washed them. He said he certainly would not have shot had he carried a revolver.

This finished the evidence in the case. Mr. McDiarmid then pleaded for the prisoner, pointing out what he considered weak spots in the evidence against him, and speaking of the nature of the provocation he had received. He thought the local boys had received no more than they deserved, and if a club had been used on them it would have served them right.

Mr. Moore, however, spoke strongly against the prisoner, saying that in the way in which he gave his evidence there was a coldness which did not impress him favorably at all. There was no excuse for using the knife on Barry in such a cold-blooded way. The people of this country are not going to stand for such ronsense. There were several things Nettleton could have done instead of using the knife. He would find him guilty of the charge laid against him, but would defer sentence for a few days to consider what his punishment should be.
