Exposures.

The Socialists have little need of pointing out the defects, the inconsistencies and the contradictions existing in the present state of society. The evils which afflict humanity are patent to every beholder. The single taxer lays bare the injustices and the inconsistencies. The reform politician explains them to his audience. The Christian minister sees them around him. The dailies press could not exist in its present shape were it not that the contradictions and the inconsistencies produce murderers, thieves, embezzlers, failures, suicides, divorces, monkey dinners, evictions, corrupt politicians and the whole panorama of an anarchical and senseless social system.
 It is in applying the remedy that Socialism comes to the front. Socialists do not need to criticize the present order. There is a self-criticism inherent in the present order which does away with all necessity for subjective criticism. A whole literature of ex-posure has risen and has formed one of the chief literary commodities of the American magazines.

There are persons, however, who are so blind, or rather whose environment has been so limited, that they cannot see the contradictions and inconsistencies of the present business and industrial methods. These persons generally dwell in peaceful village communities, where the methods of production are still in the peasant or artisan form. These persons sometimes exist in the capitalist atmosphere. They get their revenues regularly from the work of others. Personally they have nothing to do with the industrial system save to live off it calmly and contentedly, and to follow their own sweet will. By persons in the above limited environments the capitalist system is not understood. To them murders and suicides, divorces and corrupt politics, vice and slum miseries are utterly inexplicable, save on the assumption of a wicked devil who goes about to corrupt the hearts of men and women. These persons form the backbone of the Christian churches. They cannot explain the world on a rational basis, and therefore explain it on a supernatural basis. These persons employ a minister at a stated salary to explain the world, its origin and its mode of action to them. As the minister is not forced into the capitalistic arena, he little understands the business world. He, too, is forced to explain the world on a supernatural basis.
 Thus a false philosophy is taught from most of the pulpits, and the great capitalist world gives but slight attention to the moralizing homilies emanating from the pulpits.

Exposures are unnecessary. Corruption and vice are known to be rampant. The only thing is to solve the problem of present misery. This cannot be done by the churches. The remedy must come from scientific Socialism consciously applied to the economic structure of society.—Cotton's Weekly.

The Little Business Man.

It is pathetic to watch the expressions of the small business men when they are struggling over the acceptance of Socialist doctrines. They are afraid that Socialism will interfere with their petty trade. They wonder whether they should accept or reject the doctrine. The small business man does not realize that he is doomed.
 He has been finding it harder and harder to make a living. He has to work hard and the profits are small.
 Any slump in the local market will send him into bankruptcy. He hangs on and hopes conditions will get better. He does not realize that he is doomed. He does not realize that it is only a question of time when the gigantic trusts will reach out and take his business away from him as easily as he could steal milk from a baby.
 And he wonders whether he had better accept Socialism or not. The Rockefeller group of capitalists have already cornered oil and many other products. They are now reaching out for the retail trade of the big cities.
 The cigar and tobacco store are mostly controlled by the tobacco trust. The beef trust has the butchers in its grasp and is squeezing them. And the little trader wonders whether Socialism will interfere with his business.

We could point many morals to small merchants, but they will not listen. There will be a few of the keener ones who will join and fight for Socialism. But many of the traders will go on wondering till they learn by sad experience that their business has been taken away from them, and that they have nothing to lose. When they have been put on a meagre salary as clerk for some trust, or when they are refused work and sink into the rank of the day laborer or the unemployed, when in fact they have become proletarianized, they will become ripe for the Socialist message and remedy by revolution. But even when they are thus reduced, some of them will not have brains for the message, and will remain unenlightened to their dying day.—Ibid.

It is the working class which produces all the world's food, yet it is the working class that goes hungry.

 duces all the world's wealth, yet it is not the working class which enjoys most of it.

It is the working class which maintains all the world's colleges, yet it is not the children of the working class who are taught in them.
