INVICTUS

WHY IT WILL PAY YOU TO BUY "INVICTUS" SHOES

You'll know the difference between good and bad leather only after you've worn it.

It's then that the inferior leather shows its defects both in looks and wearing qualities.

When you buy a pair of shoes you are at the mercy of the maker.

If he puts inferior leather into them he's going to lose your future trade.

But if he uses good, high grade, selected leather it means that you won't stop with one pair, you'll become a permanent buyer.

Men who buy one pair of INVICTUS shoes keep on using them from year to year.

Because INVICTUS shoes are made of the best selected leathers, by skilled workmen, or modern machinery, over stylish, up-to-date lasts.

They're made with the object of giving the maximum of wear, style and comfort that any shoes can give.

(After the Retailer.

There are 1,400 retail drug stores owned by one company in New York. There are 10,000 retail cigar stores owned by one company in the country. There are hundreds of restaurants owned by single companies. There are hundreds of grocery stores owned by single companies. There are hundreds of clothing stores owned by single companies. There are hundreds of nickel stores owned by single companies. There are hundreds of shoe stores owned by single companies.

Big companies are now putting branch stores all over the country to sell one line of goods. By this means they buy in such immense quantities that they save a good profit, which the little fellows can't get. They can make their advertising more effective. They can employ a higher degree of skill as manager. They are extending their line of stores day by day, and can do so on much less relative capital than the small dealer can. Just as all the iron works, all the oil refineries, all the smelters, all the cement plants, all the agricultural implement, automobile, engines, boilers, electrical plants and other industries are in rapid process of concentration, so the retail business is concentrating in the ownership of the gradually decreasing few. With a small capital, you cannot enter these lines with any hope of success. The more prominent of the small merchants in the cities are going to smaller country towns, where they will stay a few years, crowding out the old-time country merchants; and then they, in turn, will have to give way to the branch stores of the great corporations, as the latter sweep along toward ultimate monopoly. In every line of human activity this alarming tendency to concentration is glaringly apparent. Where is it going to end? How long will it take to drive the mass of small men into a hole, and to confiscate their business and property? Ten years, with the present progressive action, will do the trick. And then what will they do? Oh, the blind, stupid masses, that all these things are going on right before their eyes all the time, printed in every daily paper published, and still they are blind to its meaning and its effects on them and their children! Well, nothing can stop it. It must go on until the middle class is practically wiped out, before we can hope that they will wake up and go into politics, and change the system that is thus running to seed. All business, including farming, is going to be owned either by great corporations or by the public. In other words, it is to be private monopoly for the benefit of the few, or public monopoly for the benefit of all. Which will you vote for at the next election?—Appeal to Reason.

A Big or Little Prison.

Speaking of the Philadelphia strike, a recruiting officer of the street car company said, according to the papers, "I guarantee jobs during the strike and after it is over." In that one sentence you have the gist of the labor problem. One man controls the jobs, and men must serve him or starve. Under Socialism no man would control another man's job. A MAJORITY of the working people might control the jobs, as a majority everywhere has the power to do. But the idea of one man or a set of men having power to refuse men the right to work, or to say how much they should have or how long they should work, is repugnant to every man with enough brains to do any work. To have the power to give or withhold work is the same as having the power to give or withhold bread. To pen a man up in prison and refuse to give him anything to eat, is on the same principle as refusing him the right to work whereby he might eat—and prison if he steals, which hunger would force him to do. Because a man is out in the world instead of in a prison pen, makes no difference in the matter of hunger. And no opportunity outside to work to get food, leaves the man in just the same condition that he would be on the inside of bars without food. The size of the prison makes no difference. Can the workers be forever held in prejudice against Socialism, which would make them free of any man for employment, just because some of their leaders draw big salaries from the civic league? Vote for Socialism or starve. One or the other you will do.—Ibid.

Joking About It.

A colored man was brought before a police judge, charged with stealing chickens. He pleaded guilty and received sentence, when the judge asked how it was he managed to lift those chickens right under the window of the owner's house, when there was a dog loose in the yard.

"It would n't be no use, judge," said the man, "to try to 'plain dis thing to yo' all. If you was to try it, you would like as not get yer hide full of shot, and get no chickens nuther. Ef yo' want to engage in any rascality, judge, yo' better stick to de bench, whar yo' am familiar."—Puck.

History repeats itself just as often as it is safe to repeat the old game on the people.

There will never be peace on earth until the masters cease robbing the workers; no, nor good will either.
