FENELON FALLS.

SOME PEOPLE SAY That They Cannot Wear Oxfords.

They claim that they aren't comfortable because they slip up and down at the heel.

That objection is made by those who haven't worn Oxfords for some years, and it is no longer true.

Oxfords that we sell are shaped at the heel to prevent all slipping.

There is no foot that we cannot fit.

There is no taste that we cannot please with some shape or shade or other.

Better see our oxford stock, get fitted and suited, and enjoy real foot comfort this summer.

As we said, we've got something to please everybody.

J. L. ARNOLD.

We have given our expert attention and personal study to the footwear question.

We have spared no effort to thoroughly equip our shoe department with a most complete and exclusive selection of newest shoe fashions and latest modes.

Spoiled Lives.

The supreme shame of the world is not the waste of natural resources, but the waste of life, the most precious of gifts. How many millions feel that their lives have been spoiled through no fault of their own! How few feel that they really succeed! Perhaps most who read this are conscious of the fact that they have missed some good and worthy object; not because they lacked inclination or real ability to secure it, but through lack of means to attain their ambition. One of the most remarkable aspects of the situation, in view of the hardness of life under present conditions, is the cheerfulness which amounts to heroism. People fail, and realize that they fail. Still they struggle on, always looking for something better, and always putting the best foot foremost. Nothing could be better evidence that mankind is capable of better things than this optimism and determination when the battle is lost.

There is no need of the world being ever in a condition where a majority of the people are kept from good through lack of means of obtaining it. They who think can readily find reason for poverty in wasted effort; and in robbery a reason for the spoiled lives that make this a miserable world. It all comes of mastery. A few, by controlling the means of life, keep the many from employing themselves in a way that might make them rich, and, at the same time, rob them of a greater portion of that which they produce. Because this has always been so is no reason why it should always be so in the future. There is nothing against the idea of a future life of happiness in the proposition that this life should be made more tolerable. Even the Master taught us to pray, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." If thousands of people find their lives wrecked because they are enslaved and robbed, the sensible thing is not to argue in favor of slavery, but to emancipate the world. This world is good enough within itself. There ought to be plenty for all. There ought to be opportunity for all.

These things could be if we would only arrange matters fraternally, in order to accomplish desirable results. The trouble is that we are not civilized; we are not moral; we are living in a state of anarchy. Socialists are proposing nothing except to end injustice and to secure opportunity for all; an opportunity which will end the curse of poverty, the curse of war, and the far worse, and all-pervading, curse of mastery. If it be possible to heal the individual, it is also possible to heal society. The efforts that have been unsuccessful may yet be improved, and lead to happiness and beauty in this world. There is an opportunity for you, but it does not lie in advancing yourselves at the expense of others, but in coming to better things as the entire world is lifted to a higher plane.—Appeal to Reason.

Why You Think As You Do.

What you are has been determined by environment. That is, you inherited the ability to talk; but the language you speak depended solely on the tongue heard. Had you been put away from human beings entirely, you would have spoken no words at all. This is recognized by all teachers and taught in all the schools. Unfortunately for civilization, the teachers do not press the importance of it on their pupils, and the parents are wholly ignorant of it. If they were not ignorant, they would inquire into the reasons why they are democrats or republicans, wise or foolish. They are what they are because they are taught that way. If Mohamedan children were brought up wholly under Catholic ideals, they would all be Catholics; if Catholics were raised under Mohamedan ideals, they would all be Mohamedans. This being true, it shows you why we have so many stupid voters—they have been trained to vote the name of a certain ticket, to look upon certain forms as right, and they do not know that their ideas are merely the REFLECTION of what others have been impressing on their minds—perhaps because their preceptors knew no better. Ask the average voter why he is such, and he will likely tell you that his father was the same; ask him what he knows about the party and what it stands for, and he will frankly say he does not know, or else will repeat, like a parrot, some statement given him, and which he could not explain to save his life. And his statement will be directly opposite that of some other voter, who has been taught the reverse. Socialists are trying to get the people to take up ALL the various ideals, look at them and compare them, and then they will have more definite ideals. They will do THEIR OWN thinking, instead of allowing others to do it for them. Of course, those who do the suggesting do not want this, because it would upset their power over their dupes. The more ignorant the people are of every side except the ones generally believed in, the better for the masters. The Socialist movement is educational on the broadest lines, but what the masters want is education along the most RESTRICTED lines.—Ib.

The iron rule of wages is much the same as the rule of gold.

All the wealth in all the world would not repay labor for a tenth of what has been exacted from it through the ages.
