

Sale of Short Horns.

Ever since Thos. Stanton crossed the international boundary from Canada he has been a prominent figure in the Short-horn trade in this country. He has been connected with a few record-breaking events in the breed's affairs here, but it remained for him at Aurora, Ill., Friday, April 8, to add glory to himself, furnish an interesting chapter to Short-horn history, and incidentally add to the record-breaking list a few records and garner in much cash. He sent the Canadian champion Prince Imperial through the ring at $10,000, the highest-priced Scotch bull ever sold at auction in America, a heifer at $3,050, and made the highest average since the Platt sale in Chicago, as he sold 56 head for $85,995, an average of $442. This result exceeded the highest expectations of Mr. Stanton and everyone connected with the sale. He knew he had a superior lot of cattle. Most of them were quickly collected in less than a year. Much credit is due a man for the judgment used in the selection of such cattle. It takes grit and faith in the breed to gather in such cattle as he offered on sale day. He knew he had the goods. He had faith in them and manifested that faith by making strong but reasonable claims in publicity which proved effective, as he made good beyond the most sanguine expectations.

The attendance was the largest seen at public sale in recent years, representing many states and Canada. Prince Imperial was bred by W. A. Dryden, Brooklin, Ontario, and shown to championship honors by that breeder. He became Mr. Stanton's property at $2,500, and went to Geo. J. Sayer, McHenry, Ill., at $10,000 after a contest with Elmendorf Farm, Sir Wm. Van Horne and N. A. Lind. Such a bull has not been seen in an auction ring in this country in years. The list tells the story of the distribution of a most attractive lot of cattle. Such an excellent lot of heifers are rarely seen in an auction. They were the get of great sires, of show form and they sold at good prices.

It was a great day for the breed and a great feat for a man who deserved it. Few ever draw from supporters of the breed such a tribute as was shown Mr. Stanton on this occasion. He may well be proud of it. The cattle were widely distributed and many of the names are new to the breed. A better feeling was never manifested at a sale and the bidding was lively from the opening till the last animal was sent through the ring.

Increased evidence of the interest that the farmers are manifesting in the beef cattle industry is shown in the result of the week's sales, and Short-horn men are facing a bright future.—Breeder's Gazette.

To Build Big Barn.

The Port Perry Observer says:—Mr. Worden has closed negotiations with J. J. Grills for the erection on his magnificent farm of a mammoth barn, the dimensions of which will be 50x162 feet and the cost nearly $7,000. Operations are to begin at once. This barn will be the largest in the county, and is to be constructed throughout on the Worden system of barn-building. A number of years ago Mr. Grills was a tenant of the farm he now owns, and 350 acres of better land is not to be found anywhere. It is situated on the Kingston-road, in the township of Pickering, and three miles west of the town of Whitby. Leaving the farm three years ago, Mr. Grills migrated West and became financially interested in mining operations, and lately, ascertaining that the farm he formerly operated was in the market, he purchased it, and is now making extensive improvements, not the least being the erection of the magnificent barn referred to.

Fight for Their Land.

What promises to be a big and long legal battle between the Ontario Government and the Canadian Company has been opened before Chancellor Boyd in Toronto. The Government is acting on behalf of scores of farmers and land-owners in the southwestern peninsula to retain the oil and other mineral rights on their property. Preparations for this battle have extended over two years. It was precipitated by the discovery of oil in Kent county. The right of the farmers to dispose of boring privileges on their property was challenged by the Canada Company, who claimed control under patents from the Crown nearly a century old. The legal clash, in certain cases, threatened to become actual warfare, and farmers armed themselves to protect their property.

A Nest of Wild Pigeons.

Toronto Globe:—It now seems probable that the $1,000 offered by Dr. Clifton Hodge of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., for a nest of wild pigeons, will go to Mr. Z. Spence, a farmer in Harwich township, Kent county.

Mr. P. H. Bowyer, M. P. P. for East Kent, has written the Provincial Department of Agriculture, giving notification of Mr. Spence's find. Mr. Bowyer adds that Mr. Spence is thoroughly reliable, and has seen in his time thousands of wild pigeon.

The Department is notifying Mr. C. W. Nash, Provincial ornithologist. Several flocks of alleged wild pigeons have been reported to the Department heretofore, but they invariably proved to be wild doves.

Peterboro is receiving quite a revenue from fines imposed on "black list" men for being drunk.
