

WAR.

War
I abhor,
And yet how sweet
The sound along the marching street
Of drum and fife, and I forget
Broken old mothers, and the whole
Dark butchery without a soul.

Without a soul—save this bright drunk
Of heady music, sweet as hell:
And even my peace-abiding feet
Go marching with the marching feet.
For yonder goes the life.
And what care I for human life!
The tears fill my astonished eyes
And my full heart is like to break,
And yet 'tis all embannered lies
A dream those drummers make.

O it is wickedness to clothe
Yon hideous grinning thing that stalks
Hidden in music, like a queen
That in a garden of glory walks,
Till good men love the thing they loathe.

Art, thou hast many infamies,
But not an infamy like this.
O snap the fife and still the drum,
And show the monster as she is.
—Richard le Gallienne.

The Telepost.

The telepost is a new method of telegraphy, that can transmit 1,000 words a minute over any wire, using telephone wires without breaking the conversations that may be going on. This is done by first writing the message on a machine that perforates paper like music is perforated for use on piano players; and this paper is run through the telepost instrument at any speed, delivering the message on a machine at the other end. This wonderful device is already in operation between the larger cities, and rapidly extending its lines, which accounts for the recent offer of the Western Union to send messages of fifty words for twenty-five cents to any point, for delivery next day by post-office. The new machine will do away with the old time telegrapher. It will displace tens of thousands of key men, and will deliver the message as accurately as it is written at the point of sending. Thus, under the present system, every new and improved device has an inevitable tendency to displace labor, and send it out on the street seeking somewhere to earn its bread. Under Socialism, it would simply decrease the hours of labor, to absorb more people without decreasing their incomes. But the workers believe in private ownership of the machinery of civilization, and the people who own it will of course work fewer hands as many hours as before, and thus save to their own use the wages formerly paid to the extra men needed with cruder devices for doing things. What elumps the workers are.

Save Your Teeth; Dentists Tell How.

There is an association in Canada, with headquarters in Toronto, which is doing in its way about as useful a work as any philanthropic institution in the land, and yet most of our readers hear its name only for the first time. It is the Canadian Oral Prophylactic Association, composed of some leading dentists in Canada. Its subjects are to give the public the necessary information for the care and preservation of the teeth, to do dental work for the poor, and assist needy students or dentists in the profession. The associations has been in existence for five years, doing excellent work, but doing it so quietly that few people outside the circle of those directly benefited have been aware of its operations. Recently, it has received a little well-deserved publicity through the Education Department, which has authorized the publication and circulation of a pamphlet on the "Care of the Teeth," prepared by the association.

The association had its beginning in a committee of Toronto dentist which was formed five years ago to investigate the subject of tooth pastes and powders. There are few dental patients who do not ask the operator to recommend a preparation for cleaning the teeth and keeping them in a good healthy condition, and these particular dentists wished to know something about the patent preparations from which they had to choose when called upon to recommend a tooth powder. So they formed themselves into a representative committee, and wrote to the manufacturers of the various popular preparations, asking for the formulae, so that they could determine which brand should have their endorsement. The manufacturers, however, did not co-operate with any degree of heartiness; and so the dentists had the various pastes and powders and washes chemically analyzed. The result was that in most of the samples were found ingredients that were harmful to teeth or gums. There was no preparation on the market that the committee was willing to unreservedly recommend.

The inevitable step was the preparation of a paste by the dentists themselves. After taking the best advice, a formula was prepared, and a paste called "Hutax" was placed on the market. Subsequently a "Hutax" powder was made and later on a "Hutax" tooth brush. The circumstances in which the "Hutax" articles were manufactured should be a guarantee of their quality. The most interesting point about them, however, is that from their sale no individual, and no incorporated association, makes a penny. Every cent of profit goes towards the philanthropic purposes of the Canadian Oral Prophylactic Association. Dentists as a class are a hard-working body of men. Wealth such as comes to the successful manufacturer or lawyer, or even the fashionable doctor, is unknown to them, notwithstanding that their work is important, and demands as much skill as the practice of surgery, of which, indeed, it is in effect a branch. Not out of their superabundance have the dentists given of their time and money to carry on an educational propaganda. Their offering is rather as the widow's mite; and one need not hesitate to apply the term public benefactor to the Canadian Oral Prophylactic Association.

The pamphlet on the care of the teeth, which has been recommended by the Minister of Education, should be read by everybody who own a set of teeth, or knows anybody else who does. If it were advertised at $5 a copy, no doubt there would be a rush to buy it, and every purchaser would feel that he had his money's worth, but when it is to be had for the asking its value is not appreciated. To condense a pamphlet which is in itself an admirable condensation will not be attempted here, but there is space for the mention of only a few points which should be observed if the teeth are to be kept clean and healthy. Chew your food well; tender beefsteak should be crushed between the teeth 50 time before swallowing. Bananas are very injurious unless chewed 20 times at least. Neglect of proper cleanliness of the mouth is one of the chief causes of decay of the teeth, as well as of other diseases. "Biscuits, bread and butter, candies, etc., eaten by children at bed time, without cleansing of the teeth afterwards, is responsible for the destruction of millions of teeth."

Parents should not think the temporary teeth of their children are not worth preserving. The too early loss of the first teeth is responsible for much trouble with the permanent teeth in later years. Do not mince up the food of children; let them do the mincing with their teeth. For each meal have at least one article of food that requires thorough mastication. There should be no drinking to "wash the food down." The teeth should be cleaned after each meal, as well as the last thing at night and the first thing in the morning. These brief notes will indicate the value of information contained in the pamphlet. The paragraphs describing the shape and size of the ideal tooth brush, and the proper method of brushing the teeth—which is by the way far removed from the ordinary practice—would alone make the pamphlet worth $5, if it were sold instead of being given away to all who ask for it.

SUCCESSFUL EYE WORK.

Mr. Montgomery, the Toronto eye specialist, is doing splendid work in connection with poor sight. Many very difficult cases have been fitted during the past week with great satisfaction. He will remain at Gould's Drug Store this week only. They who intend to consult him should put it off no longer.

SOME COMET INCIDENTS.

"Hannibal committed suicide on account of a comet. So did Mithridates. So did Louis Tomas, a wealthy owner of Hungary, only a few weeks ago. . . . King Louis the Debonair, of France, died from fear of a comet. So did Louise of Savoy, mother of Francis I. of France. Emperor Charles V. was so moved by the appearance of a comet in 1556 that he gave up his imperial crown, and became a monk."—Edwin Emerson's Comet Lore. And yet the world has gone on as usual.

THE RIGHT TO CUT TREES

Asked as to the right to cut trees standing on the highway, Municipal World says: "The property of an adjoining owner in trees growing upon a highway is somewhat peculiar character. Such trees cannot be cut down without notice to him, nor if he has planted or protected them without his being entitled to compensation, yet he cannot himself cut down or remove them, unless under a special resolution of the council, without being liable to fine, and possibly to imprisonment."

Review:—A deal was consummated last week whereby Perry Alexander takes over the property on the Gannon's Narrows, known as "Oak Orchard." Situated at the end of Gannon's Narrows bridge, it makes a pleasant motor run or drive from town of about sixteen miles. The roads in that vicinity are excellent. The old fashioned homestead is being renovated and undoubtedly "Oak Orchard" will grow in popular favor with our American tourists and Canadian visitors to the lakes.

Orillia Packet:—According to the papers, the Monarch Railway intends to push forward the survey of its electric line without delay. In some quarters there has been apprehension expressed lest this line may have a tendency to divert trade to Toronto. There is probably little ground for such fear. Orillia is too far from the city for there to be much temptation to go for the mere excitement of shopping there. The tiring journey takes the edge of the fun. And Orillia merchants have so far adopted the methods of successful city stores—offer so many special bargains, and such good values in all lines—that there is nothing to be made in dollars and cents by going to Toronto to shop. In fact, the people who patronise the home merchants exclusively will be found to save money as compared with those who make excursions to the city for shopping, taking into account only the cost of travelling, and saying nothing of the loss of time and other inconvenience. Under these circumstances, the Monarch Railway is likely to bring more trade to Orillia than it will take away. It may, perhaps, help to solve the automobile problems in the district through which it runs.

UNIFORMITY

WHAT do we mean by uniformity in flour? We mean stability and dependability, every barrel like every other barrel, every baking like every other.

Now, uniformity in flour comes only from eternal vigilance. It is the result of everlasting care and watchfulness at the mill. It can only be produced by the most advanced methods of milling and the most expensive up-to-date equipment.

One of the many great virtues of

Royal Household Flour

is its absolute uniformity. It never varies. It is the same yesterday, today, to-morrow. Year in and year out it is always uniform, always the best, always invariable in results whether for Bread or Pastry.

Royal Household Flour has to be uniform. It cannot be anything else. It is surrounded at every stage of production with the utmost care and watchfulness.

The Ogilvie Mills are models of up-to-date equipment—the machinery is the most advanced and most expensive—the inspection laboratory and test baking departments are the most complete and scientific in the world.

It has taken enormous Capital and the experience of a life time to achieve the absolute uniformity of Royal Household Flour. The watch, watch, watch and test, test, test which have made ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR the world's finest flour are your permanent safeguard as to quality.

Royal Household Flour is best for bread, best for cakes, best for pies, best for all household baking.

The season is now at hand when the boy who is too poorly to chop an arm load of wood or spade a small patch of ground in the garden thinks nothing of turning upside down all the grounds in the back yard in search of worms for fish bait and walking five miles to go fishing and thinks it fun.

It is given out that the Ontario Government has decided to introduce an amendment to the Liquor License Act, to prevent the sale of so-called patent medicines to individuals who are prohibited from purchasing liquor. Men on the "Indian list" find it convenient to resort to certain kinds of patent medicines to meet their craving for a "jag," and just as convenient to make their plea in court, that they have been taking medicine.

The Ghetto women of New York succeeded recently in closing the Koshier butcher shops, as a protest against high prices. Armed with bottles of kerosene, bands of women and children descended upon such shops as dared open, wrecked the furniture, beat the proprietors, and drenched their stock with oil.

In many cases, it is asserted, the retail butchers are in sympathy with the boycotters, but declare themselves powerless to hold prices down when the Beef Trust decides to force them up. Representatives of the Beef Trust declare that present prices are due to a shortage of animals, and that still higher prices are inevitable; but the excuse is contested. Mr. Charles Brown, an ex-dealer, asserts that the big packers alone are responsible for the high price of meat, and that they deceive the Government as to the facts by paying high prices to a few favored cattle dealers, to whom the Government representatives are referred for substantiation of the Beef Trust's claims. Other dealers, he states, are paid less than half for their cattle.
