The Disloyalty Cry.

Nothing could be more irrational than the claim made by a section of the Canadian press that reciprocity with the United States means ultimate political union with that country and disloyalty to Great Britain. The emptiness of the assertions is effectively shown up by the Globe, in a reference to the volume of trade between Canada, the States and Great Britain in the past, and the concurrent condition of national sentiment. The Globe says:

The whole fiscal history of Canada during the forty-three years that have passed since Confederation proves that it is not trade that holds us to the Empire, but the conviction of the people of Canada that the Empire is theirs as much as it is the Empire of the home-dwelling Briton. If trade is what is holding us to the Empire any mathematician can tell us just how long we are going to remain British. Here are the data upon which the calculation may be based. In 1873, the first year after Confederation in which full returns were available, Canada imported from Britain goods to the value of $68,522,000 and exported goods to the value of $38,743,000 to Great Britain. In the same year she imported from the United States articles to the value of $47,735,000 and exported $42,072,000. Ten years later the imports from Britain had decreased to $52,052,000 and the exports had increased to $47,145,000. In the same year the imports from the United States had increased to $50,032,000, while the exports had shrunk to $41,668,000. This tendency continued during the period when there was much talk of annexation. There was a steady increase of exports to Great Britain, a decline of imports from Great Britain, and a simultaneous increase of imports from the United States, coupled with relative decline of exports to the United States. So persistent has been this tendency that whereas in 1873 60 per cent. of Canada's imports from Britain and the United States came from Great Britain, in 1910 this had shrunk to about 30 per cent. of the total imports coming from these two countries, the figures being $95,350,000 from Great Britain and $223,501,000 from the United States. The exports to Great Britain last year were $149,634,000 and to the United States $113,150,000.

These figures indicate that the trade with the United States last year, including imports and exports, was over ninety millions more than with Great Britain. Now, if our allegiance goes with our trade, we should be rapidly becoming a nation of annexationists. That is precisely the argument of the Opposition Press. But what is the fact? At no time in the history of the Dominion has sentiment in favor of union with the United States been so non-existent. As trade relations with the United States have increased and have become more intimate there has been less and less talk of political union. Every Canadian who knows anything of the currents of public opinion in the Dominion knows this to be true. What, then, can we think of the sincerity of those who now raise the cry that increase of trade with the United States will destroy Canadian nationality? They are ignoring the facts of history, they are traducing the honor of a loyal people, they are dragging their country's flag through the mire for a miserable party advantage. It is the time-honored subterfuge of the professional loyalist, but it will fail as it deserves to fail. The pride of Canadians in their Dominion and their loyalty to the world's greatest Empire are not to be sold with their wheat and their bacon.

Ten years ago no Canadian could have anticipated the marvellous progress that Canada has made. If we stick to a truly national policy it will be the same in the future.—Toronto News.

Offer of Assistance in Drainage.

In July 1909 the Department of Physics at the O. A. C prepared a plan of drains for a 52 acre block of land that had never grown a crop, it was so wet. The drains were laid that autumn. In 1910 that 52 acres yielded potatoes and corn to the value of $2250. The farm lies within five miles of the city of London. Why had this land lain useless for generations? Perhaps the previous owners thought it could not be drained, as a matter of fact it was a difficult problem, for this land was very flat and the outlet poor. Perhaps they did not believe drainage would pay—this one crop should convince them. Or perhaps they believed in drainage but did not know just how to undertake such extensive drainage operations.

The Ontario Agricultural College is endeavoring to help those in doubt about drainage. Any farmer in Ontario wishing assistance in his drainage problems may have the same by making application to the Department of Physics, O. A. C., Guelph. As soon as possible after receipt of the application a drainage adviser is sent to make a survey of the land, after which he makes a complete map showing the location of the drains, the grade, size of tile etc. When completed the map is sent to the owner, so that he has accurate guide to follow in putting in his drains. As in previous years, the only outlay to the farmer is the necessary travelling expenses of one man in connection with the survey. The railways give a rate of a cent a mile for this work so that the travelling expenses are light.

After one survey in each locality a drainage demonstration is held right in the field surveyed, to which all the neighbors are invited. At this meeting simple methods are demonstrated of making a drainage survey, finding the fall of a ditch, determining the grade, digging to grade, etc.

Those wishing to make application for a survey should write the Department of Physics, O. A. C., Guelph, whereupon regular application forms will be sent.
