

TO LIGHTEN HOUSEWORK

Some Useful Hints as to Sundry Household Duties

The housewife with a regard for dust should keep on hand several sizes of soft varnish and paint brushes. So equipped she need not fear dust will disgrace her by sticking in the corners of mouldings, in the carvings of furniture, and along the edges of mirrors.

The scraps of soap left from household and toilet purposes need not be wasted. The former may be used to the tiniest piece in the soap shaker for the dish-pan, while the latter can be boiled down to a jelly with a little water and kept for shampooing mixtures.

Many persons do not know that soda exterminates germs, so be sure to keep a supply on hand to be used in drains and to wash out milk bottles and wipe out shelves of the pantry.

While a pantry need not be so carefully watched in cold weather as in summer, it should always be washed out once a week, preferably before fresh marketing is put in it. Scrub the shelves and walls with strong soapuds, in which has been put plenty of soda.

When silver is tarnished and must be cleaned in a hurry, it will expedite matters greatly to boil for a minute in soda water that is not too strong. Later polish in the usual way. Often all that will be needed is to rub well with a dry cloth.

All egg-dishes, milk bottles, glasses that have held milk, and pots in which custards have been boiled, cereal pots and dishes should be soaked in cold water before being scalded, and they can be kept clean with half the effort.

In scaling a fish, hold it under the water to keep the scales from flying. The scaling may be much more easily done if the fish is first dipped for an instant into boiling water.

Washing lamp chimneys by immersing them in water often makes them brittle. A safer way to clean them is to hold them for a few minutes over a steaming kettle. Then polish briskly with a soft cloth.

COW VS. AUTOMOBILE

A Humorous Comparison, With a Preference for the Bovine

A Kansas City man who has owned an automobile for a year offers to trade it for a cow. This is encouraging, in showing that the "back-to-the-farm" propaganda is taking hold where it ought to. A whole lot of people own automobiles who would be better off with cows. No civilization will ever outlive the gentle and mild-eyed sister of the ox. The world sucks its life from her udder, and poetry, commerce and statescraft subsist by reason of her ministrations. She is the dumb and inarticulate savior of little children, the friend of tottering age, and the fountain of healing to the sick. You don't have to wind her up to make her work, or pour her full of water when she gets hot.

She doesn't smell like an oil refinery, and you don't have to get down under her with a monkey-wrench every half mile to screw up something that has worked loose. Her spark plug is always in working order and her tires are punctureless. She never "blows" out, and your wife can run her as well as or better than a hired chauffeur. She is more precious than many limousines, and more beautiful to behold than the pictures in the Saturday Evening Post. She encourages domestic tranquility and makes for virtue and chastity. No man who owned and operated a cow was ever correspondent in a divorce case, or came home to find that his wife had left the dog and gone with the chauffeur.

The smell of gasoline suggests disloyalty, but the fragrance of fresh cow's milk awakens visions of peace, virtue and a holy content. It carries with it the breath of clover fields and the music of the voices of happy women and joyous little children hedged in by love and purity. A cow shed is the open door to paradise guarded by good geni, and the garage is often a sliding panel to the infernal regions. The two of them, the cow and the automobile, stand at the opposite poles of our civilization, and the choice we make is going to determine the destiny of a people. The announcement from Kansas City indicates a return to safety and sanity.—Paris Mercury.

A GOOD POSITION

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "wireless or" railway telegraphy. Since the eight-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country, there is a great shortage of telegraphers. R. and Wireless officials, and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Cincinnati, O., or Philadelphia, Pa.
