OUR COFFEE

Has made us many friends. First of all, they were coffee customers only. Then one day they decided to try some of our Tea.

They liked both. They are our steady tea and coffee customers.

Then they notice that our raisins and currants, peels, etc., are good, try them, delighted—and so it goes.

Our eatables aren't good only in spots—it's our aim to have them faultless through and through.

That's a high standard to set. Naturally once in a while we fall below it.

But that's our aim, and in attempting this we get just about as high an average of grocery goodness as any store in this country.

You may as well benefit.

Collectivism the Remedy.

The bread-and-butter question is the greatest question before any people, and until food, shelter and clothing are assured, but few people have any thought for anything else. But once these are assured, the people can have the opportunity to develop in lines to suit their individual tastes; and as Socialism deals directly with economics, it pertains almost wholly to giving people their physical needs. At one time almost all work was individual effort, but with the invention of machinery and the use of systems, the production and distribution of commodities became social; that is, tens, hundreds, and even thousands, working co-operatively in doing the world's work. In most things, the larger the unit the cheaper the commodities can be produced and exchanged. This is why the large factories, mines, etc., can produce more cheaply than the smaller ones. It is a process of natural growth, known as evolution, and explains why the trusts are so hard to dissolve. In fact, their principles have come to stay, despite the effort of the 2 x 4 politicians to turn the hands of progress backward.

The real and only objection to the trusts is their private ownership, by which all their good flows to the few. Socialism means the collective ownership of the means of producing and distributing wealth, in which each worker will have the opportunity to work, because he will be in part owner, and to receive the full product of his social effort. Socialism also means the private ownership of those things used privately by the individual or family. The collective ownership of the railroads, street cars, mills, mines, factories, and land when not used by the owner. It is said that "collective ownership of the railroads would double the price of village and farm property, because there would be no discriminating rates in favor of cities."

Socialism is a method by which the people will rid themselves of the ills of present society, for they are an outgrowth of capitalism. We find in history that at one time slavery was the method by which useful things were produced for society. Later it was feudalism, and, still later, capitalism as we have it now. The succeeding method always had its root deep in its predecessor, just as now co-operative methods are supplanting the competition which caused capitalism to attain its growth. We have come to a point in history that the people are pretty well disgusted with capitalism and its exploitation, and are demanding co-operation for the benefit of all the people, and not co-operation for the benefit of a few private owners.—George B. Kline.

Socialist News From Abroad.

In the recent elections to the langtag of Alsace-Lorraine, Germany, the Socialists gained eleven seats.

The Labor party's bill, nationalizing the banking system of Australia, has passed the Commonwealth Senate by seventeen to seven.

Finland, with a population of 3,000,000, has a Socialist party with 70,000 dues-paying members, and a voting strength of 320,000.

The Labor party of New Zealand has increased its representation from one to four in the recent elections. The Liberal Labor alliance is falling to pieces.

"Socialism is making enormous strides in this country," was the statement made by Lord Elmsley in London at a meeting of the Children's Non-Socialist League.

The Russian Government has refused to open the case of the Socialist deputies exiled to Siberia, although it has been proven that they were in no wise guilty of the charges that were laid against them.

The Socialists recently held a big demonstration in Mexico City, with a parade through the streets, ending in a big meeting at which G. de Lara was the principal speaker. Comrade de Lara had just served a four day sentence for attacking the work of some of the members of the chambers of deputies.

On January 10th a series of violent riots occurred in Paris, in the vicinity of the court house. A large number of rioters and policemen were injured. The demonstration was brought about by the trial of several unionmen on the charge of distributing revolutionary literature to soldiers serving with their regiments.

The January labor conference at Melbourne, Australia, is planning to endow the parliamentary Labor party with the right to recall members of Parliament who have been unfaithful to their pledges. Laborites are also anxious to secure a statute to automatically unseat any member who accepts an Imperial title.

The Swiss Socialists, who now number fifteen in the national assembly, caused a tremendous sensation by forcing a debate on the annual budget. Such a thing has not occurred for sixty-three years. The capitalists are provoked, and are calling the Socialists "wild Indians from the working class district.—Cotton's Weekly.

All values are the result of labor. But the laborious manner in which business men and real estate dealers endeavor to fleece one another has nothing to do with their production.
