Literature and Life.

ADDRESS BY MISS ETHEL ROBSON OF ILBERTON AT FENELON FALLS W.I. MEETING, FEBRUARY 21ST.

We in Canada to-day are not a literary people. In most homes there are a few books, and it is rarely we find people making friends of books. By making a friend of a book I mean reading it over and over again—making it a part of ourselves. Children in school get a certain knowledge of literature, representative of the best in poetry and prose. This is intended to stimulate their interest in literature. Take for instance an extract from 'The Mill on the Floss,' and different poems in the school readers. These are expected to lead the student to follow the authors into other fields of poetry and fiction. If they do not it is chiefly because these things are not known and loved at home. The study of literature can begin in a very small way, and it will stimulate an interest in other things outside the small circle to which many are confined. We in Canada have no literature of our own, though we have writers who have produced sweet poetry and good prose. The Scotch people have their Burns, who was able to invest the commonplace things of daily life with romance and sentiment. The reason people love to read fiction is because they often find their own thoughts expressed in the words of the author. A thought expressed doubles its value. A well told story brings the reader in touch with all kinds of life, but there should be a wise choice in fiction if we are to receive benefit from it. To-day we have to be content with the literature of other lands. The Bible, the foundation of Anglo-Saxon literature, the book which has colored all our thoughts and ideas of life, and moulded public opinion, has been given to us by the people of Israel. It speaks to human hearts, and fills them with a love of truth and righteousness. Among the arts architecture, sculpture, painting, music and literature, the last, the only one which makes no appeal to the senses, the poorest and meanest and most universal, is the one which the Divine Spirit has taken to manifest itself to humanity. Poetry and rhythm are the natural ways of expressing joy and happiness. Nursery rhymes and the literature for little children, and the child is delighted with the simple words and swinging rhythm, which would not appeal to it in prose. Life has been compared to a gleam of light. Poetry has the thought expressed in words which music lacks.

Poetry above all appeals to the imagination. If we lose the faculty of imagination we lose the fundamentals of belief in life eternal. To show the appeal to the imagination in poetry, the speaker recited a verse of Tennyson's 'Princess' beginning, "Home they brought her warrior dead," which she then gave in prose. The difference was so marked that one could scarcely believe the words meant exactly the same thing. The practical value of literature in lifting one out of the narrow life, in cultivation of the mind and heart, is of untold value. All literature is inherent in the heart before it goes into books. We find here the expression of ourselves, and heart responds to heart. If children go among refined people, they respond, as a rule, and become refined; if they are thrown into the company of coarse and rough people, some other element is naturally awakened. Women of refinement seek expression in many ways; in clothes, home, furniture, they show their love of the beautiful, the good and the true. There is one thing above all others that women can do best of all, because she has had centuries of training behind her; she can create the spirit of home. This is the greatest gift that women possess. It is not the merely material things of the home that count for most, it is the spirit of the home-maker. Music is conducive to happiness in the home, but there is one thing music lacks, the element of thought. Canada is in the making, and her women cannot afford to let any opportunities slip. Let her find out what is really worth while, and work for it. The speaker concluded with a Shakespearean, reading the balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet, which was much appreciated.

Railway Wreck at Haliburton.

One of the results of the big snow storm, that has tied up railway traffic the past week was an accident at Haliburton on Friday, when a snowplough and two engines jumped the track, right beside the lake, the plough and one engine going into the water. Fortunately there was a boom of logs close by, which prevented the plough and engine going under water. Conductor Woolcott and Engineers Ralph Clark and David Elliott were in charge, but escaped unhurt, although they stayed with the engines until the last moment.

possible before jumping. Auxiliaries were sent up from Lindsay as soon as possible, and had a tough contract getting the wreck on the track again. They were brought back to Lindsay on Monday. A good deal of repairing will be necessary to get them into shape for work.

School Board Makes Good Move.

In accordance with a suggestion made to the school board at a recent meeting by Messrs. A. A. Cameron and D. Robertson, the Board has decided to rearrange and improve the grading of the existing classes at the schools, and has engaged a continuation class teacher to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Miss Cowles.

The south ward school, it is understood, will be used exclusively for continuation work, and the north ward for other classes. The change will obviate the necessity of resident pupils going to Lindsay Collegiate, and among other advantages there will be a saving of some $400 by reason of the increased grants, due to the higher grading of the school.

FIRE AT VICTORIA ROAD.

On Saturday, Feb. 17th, fire broke out at the hour of 11.35 p. m. in the temperance hotel, known as the Victoria hotel. The alarm was given and after a hard fight of half an hour the flames were quenched. The cause of the fire was the explosion of a coal oil heater, which was being used in a bedroom. The loss amounted to about $200.00, no insurance on building.

Mr. Cliff Scott has sold his gasolene launch, "The Thief," to Mr. Wolsman, of Lindsay.

Port Perry citizens are complaining that the water in Lake Sengog has been too low for navigation, and assert that the extravagant and improper use of the water by Lindsay mills is the cause of the trouble.

Mr. W. G. Hunt of Calgary, has contributed $150 to the school board of his native town, Cannington, this sum being the amount of license money paid to the municipality before local option was passed.

Peterboro Times: Last night a local citizen, given to excessive drinking, was heard to say, "91 per cent of the drinking in Peterboro is caused by bad cooking in our homes." If that Peterboro man would hand to his wife one half of 91 per cent which he spends in booze, he would probably get better supplied, and better cooked meals. The Lord must hate a kisser who tries to cover up his shortcomings like the above.
