

42 GET BETTER LIGHT

Tests by Prof. McKergow, McGill University, Montreal, on leading oil-burning lamps show the Aladdin Mantle Lamp is the most economical and gives over twice as much light as the Rayo and other lamps tested. It is odorless, safe. clean, noiseless. Guaranteed. Better light than gas or electric. To introduce the Aladdin we'll send a sample lamp on CENTS WANTED Experience unnecessary. Every Ask for Particular home needs this lamp. One agent sold over 1000 on Ask for Particulars money back guarantee, not one returned. Another sold $800 worth in 15 days. Evenings made profitable. Ask for agents prices and trial offer MANTLE LAMP COMPANY 205 Aladdin Bldg. Montreal and Winnipeg, Cas

ONLY A MONTH;

OR, A CURIOUS MYSTERY EXPLAINED.

CHAPTER XVI.-(Cont'd)

And then with a pleasant farewell the stranger bowed and went out of the shop, leaving behind him a memory which did more to prevent the blue devils from gaining the mastery of Frithiof's mind than anything else could possibly have done. When he left, however, at his usual dinner hour he was with out the slightest inclination to eat, and with a craving for some relief from the monotony of the glaring Blanche who had won his heart in I'll look up Falck. I dare say he'll streets, he walked up to Regent's Park, hoping that there perhaps he might find the fresh air for which he was longing.

"Come along, will you!" shout ed a rough voice behind him. He glanced round and saw an evillooking tramp who was speaking to a most forlorn little boy at his heels.

The child seemed ready to drop, but with a look of misery and fear and effort, most painful to see in such a young face, it hurried on, keeping up a wretched little sort of trot at the heels of its father, who the tramp paused outside a publichouse.

"Wait for me there in the park," he said to the child, giving it a push in the direction.

And the little fellow went on obeand ripe red strawberries were temptingly displayed. Frithiof lingered a minute to see what would happen, but nothing happened at all, the child just stood there patiently.

"Have you ever tasted them said Frithiof, drawing nearer. The boy shook his head shyly.

"Would you like to?"

Still he did not speak, but a look of rapture dawned in the wistful child eyes.

to the costermonger; then signing alarmed. to the child to follow, he led the way into the park, sat down on said to himself. "I have tried to "I wish you wouldn't come in the nearest seat, put the basket of strawberries down beside him, and use." glanced at his little companion.

enjoy them," he said.

bidding, but began to eat with an ed the face which had so greatly eager delight which was pleasant struck him the day before, and to see.

ing to the basket. And Frithiof, to please him, strawberries.

"There, the rest are for you," he said. "Do you like them?"

cally; "and I like you." "Why do you like me?"

to me, and these is real jammy!" ger possible; he could only stagger he said no more. Then before long sciousness of being utterly and the father reappeared, and the lit- hopelessly beaten, which to a man tle fellow with one shy nod of the is so hard to bear. head ran off, looking back wistfully | Later on, when the summer twievery now and then at the stran- light deepened into night, and he ed which added the last drops to face in the pillow and sobbed aloud, Frithiof's cup of misery, and made in a forlorn misery which, even in it overflow. The troubles of the Paradise, must have wrung his mopast year, and the loneliness and ther's heart. poverty which he had borne had gradually broken down his health, Roy Boniface came back from Deand there came to him now a re- vonshire the following day, his holivelation which proved the final day being shortened by a week on blow. He was dining at his usual account of the illness of Mrs. Horrestaurant. Too tired to eat much, ner's uncle. As there was every he had taken up a bit of one of reason to expect a legacy from this the society papers which some one aged relative, Mr. Horner insisted left there, and his eye fell on one on going down at once to see wheof those detestable paragraphs ther they could be of any use. which pander to the very lowest Like many other business men he tastes of the public. No actual relieved the monotony of his daily name was given, but every one work by always keeping two or knowing anything about her could three hobbies in hand. The mania not fail to see that Blanche Romi- for collecting had always been enaux was the woman referred to. couraged at Rowan Tree House, The most revolting insinuations, and just now botany was his keenthe most contemptible gossip, end- est delight. He was contentedly ed with the words, "An interesting mounting specimens on the night way along Oxford Street, noticing him looking ill before we left." nothing, walking like a man in a "I don't know about illness," Frithiof would have passed by with- him to-day, for already we are short out observing them had not a fa- of hands." Norway, for the lips that had once be all right by to-morrow." been pressed to his wore a hard But he had scarcely settled himlook of defiance, and the eyes that self down comfortably to his work well the story he had just read. thiof came to trouble him. He heard her give a little artifi- Like most people, Roy was selcial laugh in which there was not fish. With an effort he tore himcloud had descended on him. He hall, where, after some difficulty, chiefly by a sort of instinct that he which, among dozens of others pre-

1

"Good heavens, Mr. Falck! how three Miss Turnours. ill you are looking!" exclaimed the tramped on doggedly. Presently head man as he glanced at him. the door to him, and replied nerv-"It's a good thing Mr. Robert will ously to his question. be back again soon. If I'm not very much mistaken, he'll put you into the doctor's hands."

"Oh, it is chiefly this hot weather," said Frithiof, and as if anxidiently, until, just at the gate, he ous to put an end to the conversacaught sight of a costermonger's tion. he turned away to his desk barrow on which cool green leaves and began to write, though each word cost him a painful effort, and seemed to be dragged out of him room. But if you would just see by sheer force. At tea-time he wan- him, I should really be glad. You dered out in the street, scarcely will judge better if he should see knowing what he was doing, and the doctor or not." haunted always by Blanche's sadly altered face. When he returned he Don't let me trouble you." found that the boy who dusted the shop had spilled some ink over his much," said Miss Charlotte. "So order-book whereupon he flew into if you will find your way up alone. one of those violent passions to perhaps it would be best. It is the which of late he had been liable, so first door you come to at the top of entirely losing his self-control that the last flight of stairs." "Sixpennyworth," said Frithiof those about him began to look Roy went up quietly, opened the

"I can bear it no longer," he went in.

Yet after awhile there rose with-"There, now sit down by me and in him a thought which checked the haunting visions of failure and the And the child needed no second longing for death. He rememberagain those kindly words rang in "Eat, too," said the child, point- his ear, "Courage! the worst will

At length cloisng time came. He smiled and took two or three dragged himself back to Vauxhall, shut himself into his dreary little room, pulled the table toward the open window, and began to work at "Yes," said the child emphati- Herr Sivertsen's translating. But at last he was at the very end of his strength. A violent shivering "I was tired, and you was kind fit seized him. Work was no lon-But after this fervent little speech to the bed, with that terrible conger who would be remembered by could no longer make out the harhim to the very end of his life. | bor, and the shipping, and the fa-The next day, something happen- miliar mountains, he buried his divorce case may soon be expect- of his return, when James Horner looked in, the prospective legacy making him more than ever fussy and pompous.

"Ah, so you have come back; that's all right!" he exclaimed. "I had hoped you would have come round to us. However, no matter, I don't know that there is anything special to say, and of course this sad news has upset my wife very

"Ah," said Roy, somewhat skeptical in his heart of hearts about the depth of her grief. "We were sorry to hear about it."

"We go down the first thing tomorrow," said James Horner, "and shall, of course, stay on. They say there is no hope of recovery."

"By the bye," said Mr. Horner, "I have just remembered to tell you that provoking fellow, Falck, never turned up to-day. He never even had the grace to send word that he wasn't coming."

"Of course he must be ill," said Roy, looking disturbed. "He is the Frithiof grew deadly white. Feel- last fellow to stay away if he could ing sick and giddy, he made his possibly keep up. We all thought see how ill his friend seemed.

dream. Just in front of Buzzard's said James Horner, putting on his a victoria was waiting, a remark- hat; "but he certainly has the worst ably good-looking man stood on the temper I've ever come across. It pavement talking to its occupant. was extremely awkward without ily and saw Lady Romiaux-not the like a desert. However, of course you."

had ensnared him had now an ex- after James Horner's welcome depression that confirmed only too parture when the thought of Fri-

even the ghost of merriment, and self away from his beloved speciafter that it seemed as if a great mens, and set off briskly for Vauxmoved on mechanically, but it was he found the little side street in found his way back to the shop. | cisely like it, was the house of the

A little withered-up lady opened

"Mr. Falck is ill," she said. "He seems very feverish; but he was like it once before, when he first came to England, and it passed off in a day or two."

"Can I see him?" said Roy. "Well, he doesn't like being disturbed at all," said Miss Charlotte. "He'll hardly let me inside the

"Thank you, I'll go up then.

"It is noise he seems to mind so door as noiselessly as he could, and bear this life, but it's no use-no again," said an irritable voice from the bed. "The lightest footstep is torture."

Send

of your

1912

Prize Contest.

me

Ask at Any Reliable Store To Try Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen

For Student and Faculty One ink filling of, a medium sized Waterman's Ideal will write about 20,000 words. Think what a saving of time that means. You can write conveniently, for Booklet anywhere, with this pen, that you carry safely in your pocket. Waterman's Ideal makes poor writing good and good writing better. The rubber holder is strong and finely finished, and the pen point is 14-carat gold. With average care one Waterman's Ideal will last you for a lifetime. Avoid substitutes. Prices, $2.50 and upwards.

Your local dealer will supply Waterman's Ideals or get them for you. L. E. Waterman Company, Limited, 107 Notre Dame St. W., Montreal.

"I just looked in to ask now you

"Oh, it's you!" said Frithiof, nothing but ask questions."

"I've only just got back from this once!" Devonshire, but they said you! And then he fell into incoherent miliar voice startled him into keen "There can hardly be much do- hadn't turned up to-day, and I talk, chiefly in Norwegian. consciousness. He looked up hast- ing," said Roy. "London looks thought I would come and see after

> Frithiof dragged himself up and drank feverishly from the ewer which stood on a chair beside him. "I tried to come this morning," he said, "but I was too giddy to stand, and gave it up. My head's gone wrong somehow."

"Poor fellow! you should have were," said Roy, much shocked to given up before," said Roy. "You see how ill his friend seemed. seem in terrible pain."

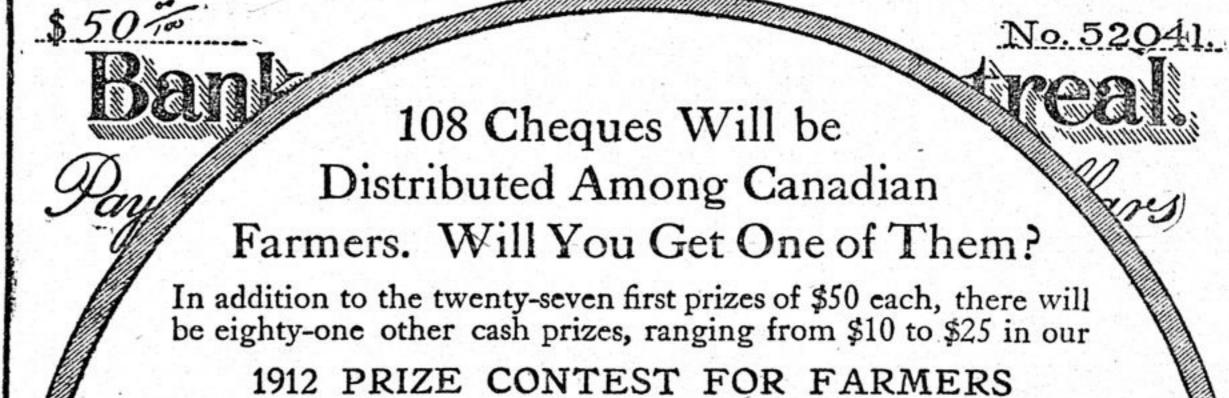

"Yes, yes; it's like a band of hot turning his flushed face in the di- iron," moaned poor Frithiof. Then rection of the speaker. "Thank suddenly starting up in wild excite-God you've come! That woman ment. "There's Blanche! there's will be the death of me. She does Blanche! Let me go to her! Let me go! I will see her once more-only

(To be continued.)

The area of the United Kingdom is 121,000 square miles.

Scotland has a total population not much more than half that of Greater London.

This contest is along the same lines as the one which was so successful last year, except classes, so as to give small users of cement an equal chance with those who use more, the that there are three times as many prizes, and Contest is also divided into nine divisions, one therefore three times as many chances for each contestant to win. Every farmer in Canfor each province. So you see you need only ada who uses "Canada" Cement is eligible to to compete with the other farmers of your own province, and not with those all over Canada. compete. The conditions are such that large tunities to win a $50 prize. The contest is divided into three classes, and there are first, second, third and fourth prizes ($50, $25, $15 and $10) in each class.

and small users of cement have equal oppor-

CLASS "A"- Prizes to be awarded to the four farmers in each province who use most "Canada" Cement on their farms in 1912. CLASS "B"-Prizes to be awarded to the four farmers in each province who send photographs of the best concrete work done with "Canada" Cement on their farms

CLASS "C"-Prizes to be awarded to the four farmers in each province who send the best description, telling how any piece of concrete work was done with "Canada" Cement. (Entries for this prize must be accompanied by photoparticulars' graphs of the work.)

Use a letter, postal or coupon. Address Publicity Manager

Canada Cement Company Limited

501 Herald Bldg. - Montreal

CANADA

In addition to thus being divided into

Don't think that because you have never used cement, you cannot win a prize. Many of last year's prize winners had never used cement before they entered the Contest. We will send you a free book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete,"

that will not only help you in the Contest, but will tell you efery-thing you could want to know about the use of cement on the farm.

Don't delay, but send us your name and address to-day and get this free book and full particulars of the Prize Contest right away.

free book. "What the Farmer can do with Concrete" will be sent to all who request details of the Prize Contest.