CARE FOR SICK ON TRAINS.

German Railroads Have Special Cars for Them.

Excellent facilities are afforded in Germany for transporting invalids and cripples, who are unable to walk, according to T. J. Albert, Consul at Brunswick. The German railroad system provides a first-class car for invalids who can afford to use it. This car is fitted with every possible convenience for the sick. A special apartment, opening on the level of the station platform, with a double door, so that a stretcher can be carried in without the slightest difficulty, is set apart for the invalid and attendants. The balance of the car contains a kitchen, where meals can be prepared, and a section handsomely upholstered for members of the family or accompanying friends. For invalids who travel second or third-class an apartment on an ordinary car is used, opening in like manner with a double door on the station platform.

The charges for transporting sick and helpless persons have hitherto been moderate. For invalids travelling third-class the charge has been the cost of four tickets, free transport being granted for two attendants. This rate is still granted when the car containing the invalid apartment belongs to a regular train with a fixed destination; otherwise in the future six tickets second class must be purchased and an extra rate paid if the car has to be specially ordered.

CROWN PRINCE AT OXFORD.

Became a Student at Magdalen College, October 10.

With his tutor, a Magdalen man, the Prince of Wales went into residence at Magdalen, Oxford, on Oct. 10, occupying a large suite of rooms in the cloisters. His royal highness will attend history lectures, but it is understood that he will not try for a degree.

As an undergraduate at Magdalen the day of the Prince will be mapped out about on these lines:

He will be called by his servant at 7 o'clock. Breakfast is at 8 o'clock and the undergraduate may either partake of it in junior common room or in his own rooms. He will have told his servant when he was being called what he will have for breakfast, which at Oxford is usually very copious, including bacon and eggs, fried sole and salmon cutlets.

Lectures and "reading" are from 9 until 1 o'clock, followed by a frugal luncheon, consisting ordinarily of bread and cheese and beer or water.

The time from 2 until 5 is devoted to exercise, and then comes a shower bath, a change of clothing, tea and a couple of hours of reading.

At 7 comes a very excellent plain dinner for about 2s. He must dine a fixed number of nights in hall during full term—usually about five nights in the week.

After dinner the men gather in the junior common room and take coffee or visit one another's rooms or go to the Union, where once a week there is a debate, or to one of the many essay societies, which are a feature of university life. It is possible to leave college up to a certain hour, outside which limits men have to get special leave from the dean. But from 9 to midnight is for the "reading" man the principal time for work. If he "slacks" during that time he is hopeless.

IT'S THE FOOD.

The True Way to Correct Nervous Troubles.

Nervous troubles are more often caused by improper food and indigestion than most people imagine. Even doctors sometimes overlook this fact. A man says:

"Until two years ago waffles and butter with meat and gravy were the main features of my breakfast. Finally dyspepsia came on and I found myself in a bad condition, worse in the morning than any other time. I would have a full, sick feeling in my stomach, with pains in my heart, sides and head.

"At times I would have no appetite for days, then I would feel ravenous, never satisfied when I did eat and so nervous I felt like shrieking at the top of my voice. I lost flesh badly and hardly knew which way to turn until one day I bought a box of Grape-Nuts food to see if I could eat that. I tried it without telling the doctor, and liked it fine; made me feel as if I had something to eat that was satisfying and still I didn't have that heaviness that I had felt after eating any other food.

"I hadn't drank any coffee then in five weeks. I kept on with the Grape-Nuts and in a month and a half I had gained 15 pounds, could eat almost anything I wanted, didn't feel badly after eating and my nervousness was all gone. It's a pleasure to be well again."

FOR HIS FAMILY'S SAKE.

Paterfamilias was a very robust man, but he called in the doctor. If the truth be told, Paterfamilias was so healthy, so big, and so robust, that he had grown into the habit of bullying his family.

"I don't know what's the matter with my family," he remarked to the medico, "but my wife is nervous, my children are suffering from something—I don't know what. In fact, the whole household is upset. All the servants are bordering on nervous prostration. What do you think about it?"

The doctor was a friend of the family, and knew a little of its history.

"I think it would be all right," said he, "if you took a six months' tour of Europe—alone."

"Me?" replied the father ungrammatically, in his surprise. "Me?"

"Yes," replied the doctor, "For the health of your family."

Sam Slick once said that kisses were like creation—made out of nothing and very good.

Sleeplessness.—Sleep is the great restorer and to be deprived of it is vital loss. Whatever may be the cause of it, indigestion, nervous derangement or mental worry, try a course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They exert a sedative force upon the nerves and where there is unrest they bring rest.

BRIDGET'S CHARACTER.

Bridget left Ireland with an excellent letter of recommendation from her last mistress, but on the way over the letter fell into the sea and was lost. Not knowing how to find work without her recommendation she appealed to a friend to write one for her, and he gave her the following:—"To all concerned: Bridget Flaherty had a good reputation when she left Ireland, but lost it on the way over."

DEAN SWIFT AND ASPARAGUS

Asparagus was a great dish with Dean Swift. Dining with him one day, George Faulkener, the Dublin publisher, asked for a second helping of his favorite vegetable, but Swift pointed to the stalks on his guest's plate and said:—"Sir, first finish what is before you."
"What!" exclaimed Faulkener, "eat my stalks?" "Aye, sir," belittled the imperious Dean; "eat your stalks, or you will get no more. King William III. always ate his stalks." Asked once, when he was telling the story, whether he really did eat his stalks, Faulkener replied: "Yes, certainly; and if you had dined with Dean Swift you would have been obliged to eat your stalks, too."

'Tis a Marvellous Thing.—When the cures effected by Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil are considered, the speedy and permanent relief it has brought to the suffering wherever it has been used, it must be regarded as a marvellous thing that so potent a medicine should result from the six ingredients which enter into its composition. A trial will convince the most skeptical of its healing virtues.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.
Sirs.—I came across a bottle of your MINARD'S LINIMENT in the hands of one of the students at the University of Maryland, and he being so kind as to let me use it for a very bad sprain, which I obtained in training for foot races, and to say that it helped me would be putting it very mildly, and I therefore ask if you would let me know of one of your agents that is closest to Baltimore so that I may obtain some of it. Thanking you in advance I remain,
Yours truly,

"Dickie, I'm awfully sorry you use tobacco! I don't like it, and mamma simply loathes it. Will you stop when we are married?" "Isn't that asking a lot, dearie?" asked Dickie. "I wouldn't care for myself," answered the girl, "but you know it makes mamma very ill." "Well, then," he promised cheerfully, "I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll never smoke when your mamma is with us." She threw her arms around him. "Darling," she murmured, "That's so good of you! I was afraid you'd insist on smoking once in a while after we were married!"

Two black-faced minstrels were giving an entertainment on the sands of a certain seaside holiday resort recently. While one of them was telling funny stories about the humors of boarding-house landladies the other went among the crowd making a collection. He at length went up to a stern-looking woman, who promptly snatched the tambourine from his hand and poured the contents into her lap. As she returned the empty tambourine to the astonished minstrel she exclaimed: "Tell your friend who knows so much about landladies that I'm the one he forgot to pay the last time he was here!"

of the bowels is an absolute necessity for good health. Unless the waste matter from the food which collects there is got rid of at least once a day, it decays and poisons the whole body, causing biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches. Salts and other harsh mineral purgatives irritate the delicate lining of the bowels. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills—entirely vegetable—regulate the bowels effectively, without weakening, sickening or griping. Use Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills
