

BISHOP FOR FIFTY YEARS

"Oldest Catholic Missionary Lives in Far North"

The celebration at Grouard, at the western end of Lesser Slave Lake, of the fiftieth anniversary of Bishop Grouard—the oldest active Roman Catholic missionary in Canada—will be remembered as one of the most unusual and picturesque events in the entire life of the north.

Long before the date for the opening ceremonies Indians began arriving with their squaws and papooses from every point of the compass, and by the most primitive means of transportation, to do honor to the occasion. This great band of aborigines—of which there were at least a thousand—were dressed in their gaudiest costumes, and the riot of color was very magnificent.

The Indians encamped all along the northwest shore of the lake, and the trails of blue smoke arising out of the crests of the creamy white tepees made wavy lines against the green of the foliage and the deeper blue of the sky.

The ceremony began with a reception and was followed by mass and various sports.

THE MAGNETIC WEST

Roman Catholic Church Carling for Its People—Much Wealth From U.S.

So great has been the migration of United States farmers to western Canada during the past few years, that the Roman Catholic Church in the United States, finding that the movement included many of its members and communicants, has formed an association for the purpose of aiding and directing the settlers to a section where they could be in touch with communities of their own faith.

The association acquired a large acreage, known as St. Peter's colony, in the Quill Plains district of Saskatchewan. A monastery was established, and there is now a considerable Catholic population. The wealth of the immigrants settling in the west during the five years estimated as follows: British, cash, $37,546; effects, $18,773,000. United States, cash, $157,260,000; effects, $110,982,000.

The Queen's Laugh

There used to be an idea that Royalty and those in its train must not laugh or display appreciation in public. This notion has been completely exploded since the vaudeville performance at the Palace Theatre, when their Majesties and all their suite laughed so heartily at the comic "turns."

The Queen's laugh has in it a singularly merry ring, and is light and musical. It is said that when she was a little girl her mother, the late Duchess of Teck, used to try to make "Princess May" laugh so as to cheer her father when he got into one of the fits of depression to which he was subject.

Canada's Lobster Fisheries

The Canadian lobster fishery, in spite of serious depletion, "the greatest and most resourceful in the world." This statement was made by Mr. W. A. Found to the Commission of Conservation. He further stated that more than 50,000,000 lobsters are annually taken in Canada, and with efficient protection this important industry bid fair to maintain its present important status.

Telephones in Britain

The National Telephone Company of Great Britain served 250,000 telephone users, and had an income of between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 according to its last annual report. It employed 18,200 persons, and there were 516,888 stations, 32,153 having been added during the year.

A REMINDER

The witness looked youthful, and appeared to be rather uncomfortable, too. Consequently counsel assumed his most imposing manner. "You describe yourself as a writer?" he began. "Yes, sir." "What kind of a writer—a sign-writer?" "Not an author?" "Partly, sir." "What do you mean by 'partly'?" "I'm in father's office, sir. He's a money-lender, and I'm the author of all the sharp letters to backward borrowers. If you remember, I sent you one last week, sir."
