Dollar Patriotism.

We are shortly to be favored with the sight of a perambulating advertisement of the armor-plate trust in the shape of the battleship "New Zealand," whose arranged trip to these shores has been assiduously boosted in the capitalist press for these many weeks. The undisguised purpose of the visit is to impress upon the Canadian electorate the necessity of a "Canadian Navy" for the protection of "our" shores and property from the covetous, arrogant Germans. All other methods having failed, the populace having refused to get enthusiastic in response to the flag-waving stunts of the professional politicians, others are to be tried.

Those capitalist concerns which deal in the munitions of wholesale murder—guns, powder, armor-plate, uniforms etc.—form, if not the largest, numerically, at least the most influential, because of their immense wealth, groups in the parliaments of the great nations, and also in those of the South American republics. Their business is to sell their commodities, and if there is no demand for them, then it is their business to create that demand, which they proceed to do in exactly the same manner as do the manufacturers of chewing gum. To create a market for the latter commodity, the prospective buyers had to be impressed with the absolute necessity of the article if they wished to retain their digestion, or to recover it if lost. Having created an artificial demand by advertising, it can only be preserved by the same means, and every boarding is covered with instructions to "buy it by the box."

To create a demand for their commodities, the use-value of which is demonstrated in disembowelling, maiming and torturing mankind in the mass, it is necessary that a spirit of hate should imbue the peoples of the different nations in regard to each other. By means of their great wealth the armament manufacturers are enabled to control the policy of the great metropolitan dailies and the influential magazines, in addition to their tools in the different parliaments. Trivial incidents, such as that which took place in France lately, when some German visitors, either by accident or design, got foul of and had a scrap with some excitable French youths, are seized upon and magnified by their agents in and out of parliament into international significance. National hatred is fanned to the fever heat (as far as it is in their power to do so) and the moral is solemnly pointed out of the necessity of arming to the teeth to resist aggression from the hated enemy. This propaganda is carried on in both nations, often financed by one and the same concern, until sufficient orders have been secured to satisfy the greed for profits temporarily, and it is allowed to subside until the need for new orders are in sight, when it is resumed. That is "good" business.

It is more than doubtful whether the workers of the Pacific Coast will "fall" to this time-honored game. Conditions here are desperate and getting worse. Unemployment is rife, crime against property is on the increase, the army of street-walkers is being recruited daily, and hundreds in the city of Vancouver are speculating on their chances of getting one, two or three meals on the morrow. It is hard to create the spirit of exuberant patriotism out of conditions like those now prevailing in western Canada, and in addition, more Socialist literature has been sold this summer on the coast than in any winter previous. The gospel of the international class-struggle is gaining adherents at an increasing rate, and more and more are beginning to see that their only enemy is the capitalist class, irrespective of the flag that flies over them. The function of the armed forces of the state is better understood than ever, and it is realized that they bode no good to the worker. In spite of the mercenary patriotism of a hireling press, the enthusiasm over the visit of H. M. S. New Zealand will not emanate from the workers of the Pacific Coast.—Western Clarion, Vancouver, B. C.

Men's Legs Wanted.

The following appears among the classified advertisements in one of the German papers:—"Three thousand artificial legs are wanted by the government of a nation at present in war. Estimates considered only from concerns who are able to deliver this quantity. Address Dr. Richard Mauch, Cologne, Germany." These artificial legs are no doubt wanted by one of the Balkan states. Does an advertisement like this help to bring home a realization of the horrors of war? Who will wear these artificial legs? Not the people who have benefited by the war. They will walk on the two sound legs which they were born with. The working class who fought the foolish war will hobble around on the wooden legs from door to door, begging for bread from the masters they fought for.—Ex.

Socialism has reached a point where it cannot possibly be dismissed as an idle dream.

Wake up! Read; study your conditions of life. Become class conscious. Don't be a living replica of the ossified man.

Socialism aims at extending the principle of co-operation, which is now seen everywhere and is found to be good. Such being the case, why not have more of it.
