

SQUARE MAKES CIRCLE

Seemingly Impossible Performance
Accomplished by a New Tool

The seemingly impossible achievement of making a circle by means of a square is accomplished by a new device which has been lately patented. A view of this implement is given herewith and anyone who may be the least bit familiar with the construction

HOW A CIRCLE MAY BE MADE WITH A SQUARE.

tion and use of a T-square will see at once how it is done and also the advantages of the improvement.

A flat, graduated rule has a socket at one end, designed to hold a point such as a piece of lead or lead pencil, and the length of the rule is traversed by a metal slide, designed to be secured at any point and adapted to perform the ordinary functions of a square. The slide is supplied with a projecting point which is used in making the circle in conjunction with the lead or pencil point, as shown in the illustration.

DOGS OF THE WILD

Australian Dingoes or Wild Dogs
Easily Domesticated

Although the highest authorities agree in stating that the dingo was at some remote period introduced into Australia, and that it subsequently reverted to a wild state—like the "wild" horses of the Andes—there are still those who regard this dog as one of the original wild dogs from which our domestic dogs are descended. In any case, the breed is one of very great antiquity, and therefore of the highest interest to all dog lovers.

The dingo is about the size of a collie and much resembles a wolf in appearance and habits, but he is much more easily tamed. Those who know him best are warm in his praise, declaring that the dog may not merely be tamed, but is capable of readily acquiring useful habits, and of becoming a good companion. Even his voice alters as he comes under the influence of domestication. In course of time he learns to bark, an accomplishment unknown to the dingo of the wild.

Natural Timepiece

There is no need for clocks on the Aegean Sea any day when the sun is shining. There nature has arranged her only timepiece, one that does not vary through the centuries. This natural time-marker is the largest sundial in the world. Projecting into the blue waters of the sea is a large promontory, which lifts its head three thousand feet above the waves. As the sun swings round, the pointed shadow of the mountain just touches one after the other, a number of small islands, which are at exact distances apart, and act as hour marks on the great dial.
