ODD ADVERTISING

Newspapers Used in Novel Manner to Make Wants Known

About the last place in which one would look for advertising is the churchyard, but it has been demonstrated that even there all is fish that comes to the net of the far-reaching advertiser. It is recorded of a certain shopkeeper possessing a grim sense of humor that he had his grave dug some years before his death. On the marble he caused to be inscribed "Here lies John Emery, the Best Hatter in Ohio."

A Canadian firm went this one better. The senior partner having passed to his reward, his business associates erected a monument to his memory. The tombstone bore these words: "Here lies Abram Stokes, founder of the firm of Stokes, Stokes & Co., who for many years have manufactured pickles and bottled fruits. Best of all and without a rival."

For her late husband a grief-stricken widow across the ocean put up a stone with this touching inscription upon it: "Here lies —, dear departed husband of —, who now carries on his business of general outfitter, and always gives good value, terms cash."

Bill Nye, the lamented provoker of smiles, once had a cow to sell, or professed to have, and he advertised the animal in this manner:

"Owing to my ill health, I will sell at my residence in township nineteen, range eighteen, according to the government survey, one plump raspberry cow, aged eight years. She is of undoubted courage and gives milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her present home with a stay chain, but she will be sold to anyone who will treat her right. She is one-fourth Shorthorn and three-fourths hyena. I will also throw in a double-barreled shotgun, which goes with her. In May she usually goes away for a week or two and returns with a tall, red calf with wobbly legs. Her name is Rose. I would rather sell to a non-resident."

Another Englishman in his home paper boldly declared his want of a wife "who must be quite dumb and deaf, at least fifty years of age, and who hates music, children, pet dogs and all strong drinks."

"I have just arrived; have hands that love no rest; brains marvelous in energy, depth, imagination, power, conception, organization, comprehenston, instruction; am brilliant lecturer; noted journalist, clever linguist, competent mechanic, electrical engineer, fair typist, good automobilist, excellent demonstrator, known scientist, able physicist, methodical experimenter, fine conversationalist, expert psychologist, master oculist, inventor, patentee, hypnotist, traveler, etc.; appearance studious, thoughtful; manners refined, bright, engaging, gentle, jocular; character and principle, faultlessly honest, sincere, truthful; non-smoker; total abstainer; best public, private references; willingly become private secretary, companion, tutor to anyone who appreciates sterling merits; salary no question; good position essential."

INTERESTING MEMORIES

A Link With the Past Destroyed at Prince Albert

A fire at Prince Albert, Sask., which recalls many interesting memories, started in the wreck of the old steamer "Marquis" and consumed most of it before being extinguished. Surely no vessel ever rendered greater or more varied service. In 1882 she entered the fleet of the North West Navigation Co., along with the "Manitoba" and "Northwest." The line at that time consisted of the "Northcote" and the "Lily." After making regular trips from Grand Rapids to Edmonton until 1884, the "Marquis" sailed up the South Saskatchewan river with troops for the rebellion, and at Battleford succeeded in running the blockade. When the railway lines came and the surrounding country caught the spirit of rapid development all the boats were considered too slow, even for freight, and so one by one they disappeared. The "Marquis" was pulled up at Prince Albert on the south bank of the river at a point near the Hudson Bay Co.'s reserve. After her heavier timbers had been removed a homesteader took enough material for a shack, and a ferryman supplied himself with a new ferry. All that remains is about fifty feet of battered hull.

A Wise Player

Ira Thomas some day will probably be an officer in that oft-predicted, capital-labor war, and Ira will not be a captain in the army of labor, either. Ira, unless something unforeseen intervenes, will be a general in the camp of capital. The former Tiger catcher owns 34 houses and 2 stores and he is looking for investments of the same kind. In the five world's series in which he has figured, first with Detroit and later with the Philadelphia Athletics Thomas received $11,814 as his share of the spoils.
