

Quick Cure For His Rheumatism

ROBERT J. PYLE FOUND IT IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

He Suffered for a Year, but His Return to Health was Quick and His Cure Complete.

Bourg Louis, Que., March 13.—(Special).—How quickly Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure rheumatism and other forms of Kidney Disease when taken in the early stages is shown in the case of Mr. Robt. J. Pyle, a well-known farmer living near here.

In an interview Mr. Pyle says: "Working in cold, wet weather was the cause of my trouble, and for about a year I had occasional cramps in the muscles and stiffness in the joints. I was often dizzy and felt depressed and low spirited. I was nervous and my skin itched and burned at night.

"When Rheumatism was finally added to my ills I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. One box cured me completely, and I have had no return of my trouble."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mr. Pyle's Rheumatism because it was caused by sick Kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure sick Kidneys. If you have any two of Mr. Pyle's symptoms, you have sick Kidneys and you need Dodd's Kidney Pills.

CANALS AND AUTOS.

Few things can more strikingly illustrate the changes brought about by the progress of recent years than the proposition to convert the vast number of canals in England into trunk motor highways for the exclusive use of auto traffic. The suggestion is made by no less practical a personage than Danson Cunningham, one of the most prominent members of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce and the Mersey Docks and Harbor Board. It is much less than a century since England was especially proud of her system of canals, connecting all important points of the country and supplying the then cheapest known form of transportation. They are still used to some extent, but the railways have taken away the larger part of their business, and it is now found, by experiment and in actual practice by large business houses of all classes that goods can be moved more cheaply by motor trucks than by rail for limited distances, because the cost of switching and loading and unloading on freight cars is saved, while deliveries are made with greater promptness and breakage is reached in proportion to the lessened number of times the goods are handled.

It is thought that the proposition to convert the canals into roadways for motor traffic will meet with opposition, since the English are not yet ready to abandon their canals altogether, and that the result of the agitation of the subject will be the building of special motor roads connecting all the great manufacturing centres of the northern part of the kingdom with one another and with the principal seaports.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A poor reputation may be better than none at all.

After a self-made man finishes a job he closes the factory.

A man's wife always agrees with him when he doesn't want her to.

The wise man does his duty and lets the other fellow do the explaining.

After a girl gets married she helps her girl friends to the same sort of trouble.

A friend may be a chap who hopes that he can use you before you can use him.

No man can appreciate the best of it until after he has got the worst of it a few times.

A bore is a man who, when he has an hour to spare, goes and spends it with some one who hasn't.

A man never questions a woman's sanity as long as she doesn't interfere with any of his crazy projects.

Even if a man has no other bad habit he is apt to send souvenir postcards to his friends every time he has occasion to visit another town.

RELIEVED HIS MIND.

Questioner Much Concerned About a Few Million Years.

An eminent English man of science recently delivered a lecture during which an amusing incident occurred. In the course of his remarks he said something to this effect: "It is a well-established fact that the sun is gradually losing its heat, and that in the course of seventy million years its heating power will be so diminished that all beneficial effects will be lost, and no life can exist on the earth."

As soon as this sentence was uttered, a sturdy Briton in the rear of the hall rose and signified his desire to ask a question. "Pardon me," he said, "but how long did you say it would be before this terrible calamity would occur?"

"Why, about seventy million years," repeated the scientist, with a smile.

The questioner fell back into his seat with a deep sigh of relief. "Thank heavens!" he muttered. "I thought I understood him to say seven million."

NEWLY DESIGNED BIPLANE.

Manchester Inventor Has Machine Which Should Break Records.

A cable from London says: A highly ingenious device, which undoubtedly will prevent many future accidents is about to be embodied in a new British aeroplane now nearing completion.

A difficult problem, which has always confronted aeroplane designers and has become more urgent than ever with the great increase in speed, has been that of enabling machines to land at a reasonably slow speed, and yet fly as fast as possible. The necessity of this provision may be gauged from the fact that the modern aeroplane, with its full load, weighs the better part of a ton, and that the usual flying speeds range from 60 to 80 miles an hour.

A. V. Roe, the Manchester designer, has adopted the expedient of providing his latest biplane, a very small machine, with "Swept-back" wings, and is expected to beat all existing records with what are termed "air brakes."

ROYAL NICKNAMES.

Princess Royal Used to Be Called "Her Royal Shyness."

The Royal Family are no more above nicknames than other people. The Prince of Wales has always been known in the family as "Davie," because when he was called "Eddie" it reminded Queen Alexandra of her lost son. The Princess Royal used to be called "Her Royal Shyness," from the agony of nervousness she went through if strangers were present; and Princess Alexander of Teck is often affectionately called "The Useful and Ornamental." It is also whispered that certain Royalties, a very beautiful daughter with a very plain mother, have been nicknamed by a mischievous young princess "The Daydream and the Nightmare."
